Ancient legends are brought to life in a classical Chinese dance performance that not only entertains, but also educates and inspires.

5,000 Years of Civilization on Stage

A classical Chinese dance troupe comes to Keller Auditorium for performances, Friday, March 27 through Sunday, March 29.

Shen Yun is a non-profit and independent dance troupe that showcases performance art that was unavailable in China for nearly 60 years because of the Cultural Revolution. Dancers and artists who fled the country found themselves wanting to preserve this threatened cultural tradition, and in 2006, a group of leading classical Chinese artists came together in New York with one wish: to revive the true, divinely inspired culture of China and share it with the world. This was the beginning of Shen Yun Performing Arts.

Drawing top talent from around the world, many of its artists are winners of international competitions in dance, choreography, and music. Now in their eighth year of performing, the dance company travels for about six months every year, now having performed in 20 countries and 100 cities.
