Explore Vancouver Parks and Trails

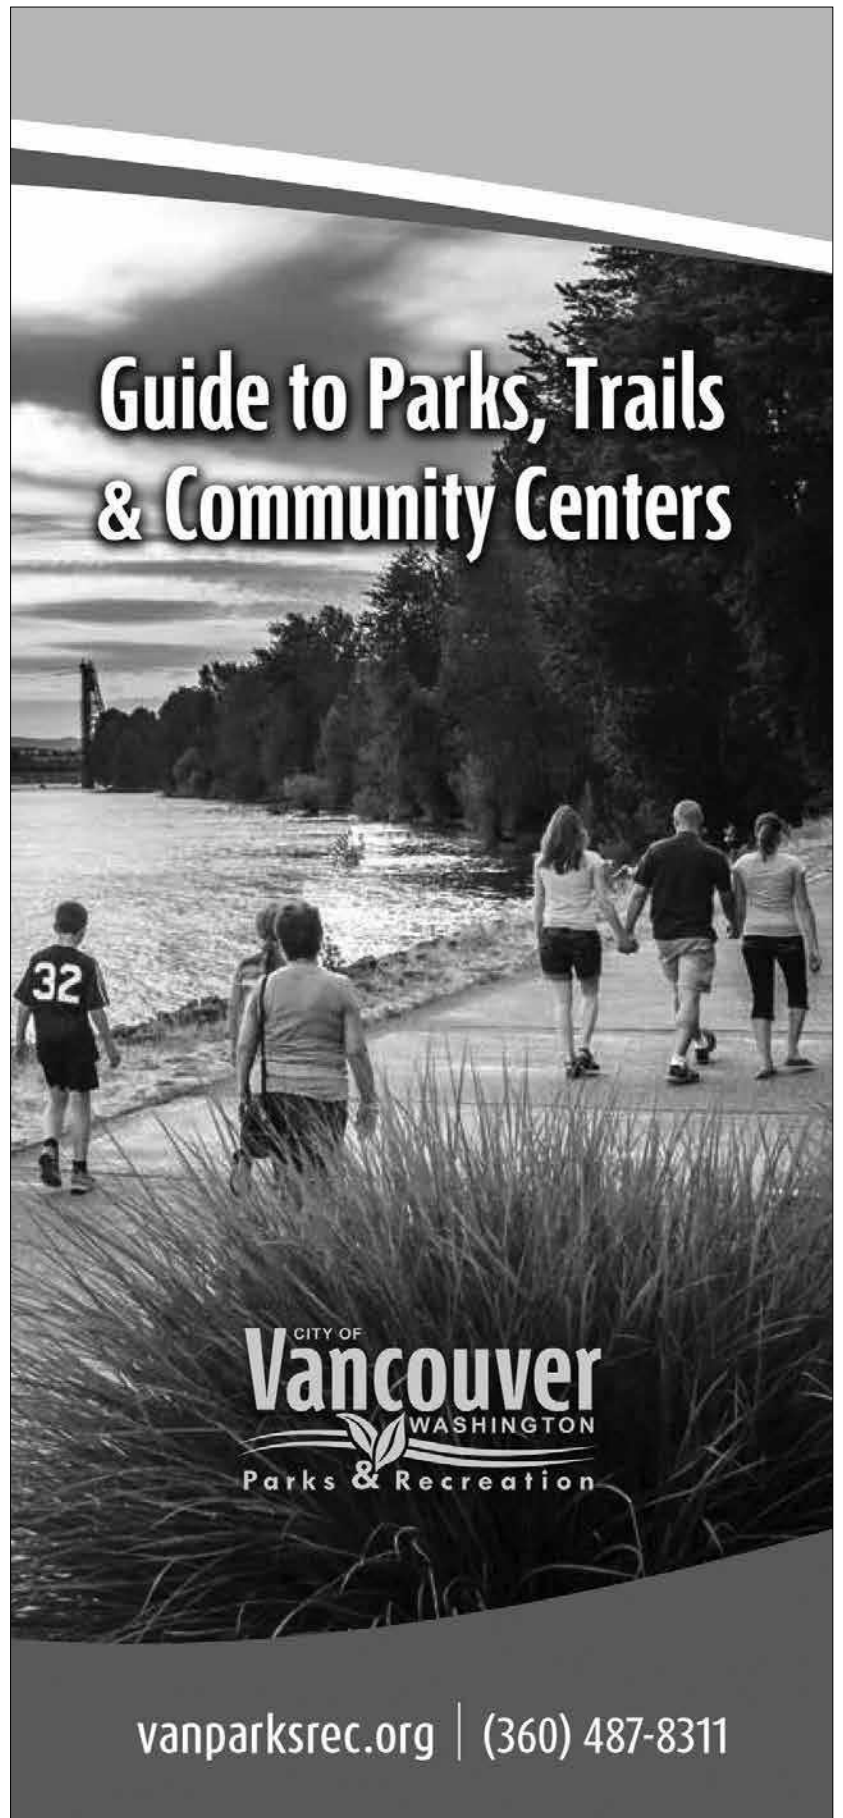

Outdoor enthusiasts can explore Vancouver area parks and trails with the help of two new maps developed by Vancouver Parks and Recreation.

The "Guide to Parks, Trails and Community Centers" provides a map of regional and local parks, trails and community centers, along with information about amenities found in the parks and details about the Vancouver's three community centers.

"Trails of Vancouver and Clark County" provides a large overview map of trails located throughout the county, along with detailed information and maps for seven specific regional trails in the area.

"We want to encourage people to get outside and discover all the wonderful parks and trails Vancouver and the surrounding areas have to offer," said Vancouver Parks and Recreation Director Julie Hannon.

Both maps are available at no charge at Vancouver City Hall, the Marshall and Firstenburg Community Centers, Vancouver Tennis Center, Water Resources Education Center, Fort Vancouver National Historic Site, and the Pearson Air Museum.
