Chairman of Mazamas' Outing Committee Reports.

UNUSUALLY EARLY

C. R. Sholes Declares That Conditions Are at the Best Now for the Ascension of the Big Mountain.

Friday, June 16, C. H. Sholes, chairman of the Mazama outing committee; O. C. Youum, of Government Camp, and Ernest G. Byre, of Salem, made an ascent of Mount Hood. This is one of the ear-liest ascents ever made, and might have been the earliest, had not the guides from Cloud Cap Inn climbed to the summit of Cloud Cap ion climbed to the summit on Wednesday, the 14th, after laying the life-line on the north side of the mountain. Mr. Sholes returned Saturday afternoon, and talks enthusiastically of the pleasures of a trip to Mount Hood so early in the season. Describing some of his experiences, he said:

"I did not know that it would be possi-

'I did not know that it would be possito make the climb so carly, but with Mr. Yocum I wanted to go over the snow fields as far as Crater Rock, and per-haps to the big crewass, for I had heard that it might be necessary to build an arifficial bridge in order to cross it, so enormously had it widened last year. I also wished to make an examination of the road between Sandy and Government Camp with reference to the Sierra Club's excursion to Mount Hood July II, for which the Mazamas have promised them an automobile trip from Portland. I was delighted to find the road in much better delighted to find the road in much better condition than I have ever known it. The only difficulty in the way of automobile travel is between the toligate and Government Camp; but Ed Coalman, who has charge of the repairs, told me he was making every effort to put the road in first-class condition for the autos. Much effective work has already been done below the teligate in the way of widening low the tailgate in the way of widening narrow places, removing stumps and rocks and filling low places, and Mr. Coat-man assured me that this week he would begin with a sufficient force of men to reeye all obstructions in the road from the tollgate to Government Camp. He seemed to understand that taking the Sierra party to Mount Hood and return in siles would advertise Mount Hood as an attractive and accessible tourist resort all over the world, and he posi-tively assured me that before July 1 he would have the road in such condition that the round trip could be made easily

Effect of Light Snowfall.

"On account of the light snowfull the past Winter, the road is dry through the heavily-timbered portion, where ordinarily so early in the season there would be many places it would be difficult for an automobile to get over. The fact is, as soon as the obstructions are removed beyond the tollgate, this road of 50 miles will become one of the most delightful automobile trips on the Coast. Mile after mile is now like a boulevard, winding amid magnificent forests, through whose overarching columns the sun's beat is subdued to a shudowy coolness even in midday; here and there skirting great canyons within hearing of roaring waters, opening upon access of wildness and beauty Just now the rhodedendron is in full bloom, and from the Zigzag nearly to Government Camp the woods on either side of the road are gorgeously arrayed in their pink blossoms. What the rose is to Portland the laurels are to Mount Hood, and it is almost worth the trip just to pass through miles of them.

Conditions at Their Best.

"We have usually considered the first of July as early enough to make the trip to Mount Hood for the purpose of going to the summit; but the conditions this year are so different on account of so little snow, and the coolness of the Spring which has delayed its melting, that con-ditions for climbing are better now than they will be at any future time this In a few days the snow will have disappeared as far as timber line, but beyond it is one vast unbroken field of dazzling white, almost as smooth as a floor, with few inequalities in the grad-ual ascent to Crater Rock. Beyond Crater Rock, one sees evidences of the enormous breaking-up process which be-came so noticeable last reason. Far to the left of the arete, along which we ascend to the great crevasse, the upper part of the snow field which plunges so precipitously to the steaming crater, is broken into huge blocks of ice and snow which are tilted up and apparently ready any moment to plunge into the open crater. Just above the great crevases another almost as large is opened, but is much shorter, and at the present time the route of ascent is the same as has been followed for several years, leaving the arete just below the crevasor, going west as far as Geer Rock, where the crowing is made, then proceeding up the the right of Geer Rock to the Scene of Rare Beauty.

"On the day of our ascent, the view from Crater Rock toward the summit was one of rare beauty and grandeur. In the brilliant sunlight the snew shone in all its untarnished brightness. The spires and minarets along the southern rim of the summit stood like priests clothed in white samite guarding the shrine of a temple. With the background of the intense azore of the sky that pic-ture haunts the memory as long as life, and makes visible one's conception of the Great White Throne.

To those who desire to climb Mount Hood, or only visit its lower levels, I so would say, go now; never can the trip be made more pleasantly, or the ascent more early and safely. Mr. Youm will act as guide for any party not exceeding in number. I cannot say too much in praise of his care and skill as a guide. It is little exaggeration to say that he is as familiar with Mount Hood as most nen are with their own homes. Although years on the mountain, he has never had an accident.

Swiss Opinion of Hood.

"A few years ago two Swisz guider Mr. Yocum to go with them to the sum mit. After leading them over a new and extremely difficult route, arriving at the top on a perfect day, he said their etthusiasm was boundless. Although they had spent years in the Alpa, and were familiar with mountain scenery, they de-clared to Mr. Yocum that in its range and extent, the view from the summit of Mount Hood surpassed anything that could be seen from any of the Alpine peaks. They also stated that if there was such an isolated peak in Switzer-land, from which so grand a view could a large city, should not be made a more attractive tourist feature."

A visit to Japan during the progress he war seems rather hazardous to many. but Mrs. I. Frohman had the pluck and trage to make the trip to the Flowery Kingdom alone when hostillties were at their height and all tourists under strict surveillance by the Japanese. Friends who were to accompany her decided at the last moment that it was not safe to travel in the Orient during war times, but that did not deter this little woman from carrying out her long-cherished plans, and unaccompanied she started out on a court. "If your hand is shaky, I will find four months' journey. She visited all the you guilty of assault, but if it is steady, principal cities both of China and Japan principal cities both of China and Japan, met many of the best families, and was playing in the world's great programme,

"As it is not the plan to install amalgamating plates when erecting, the concentrating plate when erecting the concentrating plate the concentrating plant this season. I thought it advisable to realize on this now. Our exidized zone is not deep, not running much below 30 feet of the surface. The shipping ere is found in a rich body of one or two feet width on the hanging wall side of the vein for a distance of 200 feet in length. In all the upper and lower workings this rich body has been found alongside of the milling grade. It was quite rich at the surface, and in the 500-foot tunnel continues to turn out well. For the length of the 200-foot shoot the vein averages about 12 feet in width. It is this are that will be concentrated as soon as we get our plant installed."

Mr. Stewart called attention to the fine display of Oregon minerals at the Lewis and Clark Exposition as an evidence that the mining industry in Oregon is one of the main resources of the state, and capable of great development in the future.
