Then, hits by Blankenship and Streib, neither of which went out of the diamond, combiled Ven to severe.

Indians. Croll boosted his hitting average some more by lifting one to the left garden for two bases. Essick juggled Blankenship's grounder and the fast little catcher immediately appropriated another base while Bill and Donny were deciding on what kind of a curve would pussle Householder most. Apparently they guessed wrong, for Eddle hit the next one over the length of the field, Croll and Blank galloping in.

And again in the eighth the skies were Indians. Croll boosted his hitting average

And again in the eighth the skies were gloomy for the Bouvers. Blankenship and Householder both hit again in succession. Julie Streib sacrificed, advancing them a peg, and Donohue let a quick break from Essiek get away. Blank came across and Householder followed a few minutes later, when Larry McLean came in too fast on a hit from Mott's bat. The locale did not even get dangerous during the scauce. Mitchell found his batting eye and hit for two out of three batting eye and hit for two out of three times up, but the other Blues who usually are good for bingoes could not connect clean on the lopsided twirler from the Sound city. Then, toe, Portland played rather listlessly in the field. Justice Howard said the only question for the court to decide was whether the proper proceedings have been adopted to have the names removed. He intimated, however, that there was no law under which a man could be compelled to serve as a trustee against his will

"The whole purpose of the beneficent legislation of 1905 will be defeated." said Mr. Untermyer in the course of his argument, "if by devious methods those at present in control of the insurance companies and particularly of the Mucual Life shall be permitted to obstruct the free and intelligent exer-cise by qualified voters of the right of suffrage conferred upon them. In exercising that right they are entitled under that act to co-operation of the defendant in enforcing upon the com-pany the performance of all its statu-tory duties in the matter of nomina-tions and elections. The superintend-ent of insurance is specifically given the supervision of the election and required to aprove the form of ballot. These are duties resting upon him in his official character solely, and are in every respect public ducies, and properly subject to enforcement by the courts.

"The dishonest purpose that animated the trustees of the Mutual Life Insurance Company in making these unauthorized nominations is as clear as it is contemptible. They have taken a leaf out of the book of disreputable politicians. The nomination of a few reformers in conjunction with tried and true henchmen of the political machines is a favorite resert of political bosses driven to desperation, and not infrequently hitherto has accomplished the purpose of confusing enough voters to insure the election of candidates who otherwise would have been defeated."

"The only question that seems to be involved here," said Justice Howard, "is whether you can place a man on a ticket against his will."

"Men are nominated every day in the week without their knowledge," re-piled McKeen, "and it is generally con-sidered a high compliment. Our com-pany has not yet received any declina-tion of the men named in this pro-

"If no immediate relief is guaranteed we are authorized to treat with other steamship lines, and will use our utmost endeavors to secure better conditions in the matter of transportation facilities than are now in evidence. We know that Seattle has been favored by a first-class line of steamships by this company, and we propage to find out why Portland should be discriminated against in this way. The steamship company has told should be discriminated against in this way. The steamship company has told us that they cannot get crews to man their vessels, but at the same time there is no interference with the vessels they send to the Sound and other points, which would indicate that they either do not care for the local trade, or that they shy at the expense of placing new vessels in commission to handle the trade.
