CUPID TOYS WITH BRITISH PRINCESS

She Loves Young Nobleman and Threatens to Elope With Him.

FORBIDDEN TO MEET HIM

Name Is Withheld, but There Are Only Four Eligibles, and Gossip Is Guessing—Romantic Love of King's Daughter.

BY THE COUNTESS OF BLANKHIRE (Special Cable to The Central News and...)

LONDON, Aug. 25.—We are threatened with a scandal of the first magnitude. It concerns a royal Princess, and I do not doubt but that the United States will get the first details, as the English papers will be rather averse to publishing anything involving the royal family. The facts are that one of the Princesses has fallen madly in love with a young scion of one of the oldest families in Great Britain. He is also madly in love with her. But the august father of the Princess, for what are said to be good reasons, which cannot however be made public, refuses to countenance a marriage. The Princess does not know of the objections.

Princesses on the Market.

So far as the lady is concerned, it is not hard for the gossip to guess who she is. For of the royal Princesses of a marriageable age in England there are but four. Of these, Princess Patricia of Connaught is the youngest. "Pat" is a lovely girl, and a healthy girl and a very charming one, too. She is athletic, fond of sport and fairly good looking. She will have very little difficulty in making a good marriage. Then there is Princess Victoria of Schleswig-Holstein, daughter of Prince Christian. She is devoted to breeding the noble cats, and is perfectly wrapped up in her model catery. She makes a great deal of money selling kittens and does not care at all for society or for fun. As for marriage, she has had in years gone by a very good offer from a Grand Duke of the Russian Imperial family, which she refused. Then comes Princess Louise of Schleswig-Holstein. She is fairly young, pretty, has a good figure, is charmingly pliant in every way and is of a very lively and romantic spirit. She is said to be very popular for the slow-going notabilities of the German court, that she shocked them almost out of their senses when she was very young. Some time ago she was betrothed to Prince Arbert of Anhalt, a very staid and beefy minor royalty. Their married life lasted about two years, and then came the divorce. Princess Louise is said to have been very unhappy in her marriage and has been "carrying on" here ever since.

King's Romantic Daughter.

But England does not mind the vagaries of any one so long as that one has either money or rank. Louise is scarcely the sort of Princess who cares for life without plenty of lovers. And so she always has a cavalier in attendance. The fourth, Princess Victoria of Wales, the daughter of the King and the only unmarried member of the family, she lives with her mother and is nearly always in the hands of a nurse and medical attendant, for she is subject to epilepsy and has fits at all sorts of inconvenient times. She also is reported to be a little queer and does some remarkable things. Her great hobbies are bicycling and photography. She is 37, and has had an offer of two marriages, but the King has always, on medical advice, refused to allow her to marry. Some time ago she had a romantic affair with a young man who was given a good appointment at the utmost ends of the earth. The attachment was broken off at the last moment. A very interesting story is told of her. Here you have the four Princesses, and as the gossip has got no further than the first-named facts of the story given, I cannot quite say the name of the Princess. But any girl who gives to the public, if the young lady means what she says and elopes with the young officer. Then, of course, she is a very interesting person to the royal family will make the best of a bad job.

American Girl's False Step.

An echo of Cowes week comes in a gossip little paragraph about a young American unnamed who took a queer chance of coming into the presence of their Majesties of England and Spain. It is said that this girl, and I cannot vouch for the fact that she is American, was aboard an American yacht at the great yacht racing meeting. On the Britannia were gathered all the royalties. The boat in which they had boarded the Britannia lay still alongside. The American yacht, carrying the royal yacht at a high speed when this young lady fell or jumped into the water. There were, of course, instantly many shouts. The American yacht shot past the Britannia, but stopped her engines and lowered a boat. But the Britannia's gig, of course, immediately rowed out and picked up the girl, who was practically exhausted and in a precarious condition indeed. She was lifted into the boat, but alas for her hopes, the accommodation of people who leave home without an umbrella and get caught in the rain. The manufacturer recently paid a visit to the United States and saw how the John Crawford umbrella was made and worked there. On his return he started one here.

Loan Office for Umbrellas.

The modus operandi differs somewhat from the American style. Umbrella depots are established in all tobacco and barber shops. If any man or woman wants an umbrella he calls at the nearest depot, and in exchange leaves 50 cents and his name and address. Next morning a man calls at the residence, takes away the umbrella and gives the customer back his money minus 2 cents charged for the loan of the umbrella. The scheme so far has been an immense success.

MILLIONS IN DEATH DUTIES

British Treasury Reaps Harvest From Death of Rich.

LONDON, Aug. 25.—An American, the late George Smith, of Chicago and Scotland, has held the record for the largest amount of death duties paid on a single estate. This has just been eclipsed by the probate of the will of the late Alfred Bell. The estate of the late Mr. Smith paid England's Chancellor of the Exchequer over $4,500,000 in duties. Mr. Bell's executors have this week paid just over $5,000,000. The death duties on estates of all persons, whether citizens or not, are charged at increasing rates of from 1/2 per cent on values under $500 to 8 per cent on $2,000,000. The revenue from this source averages some $50,000,000 annually. The present Chancellor, Mr. Asquith, estimated the revenue this year at $88,500,000. But he is in luck. Millions have died one after the other, and although one-third of the fiscal year has passed, Mr. Asquith is already over $10,000,000 ahead of his schedule.

One of the millionaires who died recently was Sir Charles Tennant. Mr. Asquith married his daughter, and the curious spectacle is afforded of the Chancellor's death harvest including over $1,500,000 taken from his father-in-law to help along his budget.

Other estates which have paid huge sums within the last few weeks are those of the Earl of Hchester, Lord Masham, the inventor of textile processes and machinery; John Goddard, a retired provision dealer, Mr. Steinkopf, founder of a table water and owner of the old St. James Gazette. These estates were all multi-millionaire affairs. Last month ten millionaire estates paid up, and hundreds in the hundreds of thousands class. Some of the names of America's millionaires will grace the books of the different Chancellors of the Exchequer. There will be Rockefeller, Astor, Van Alen, Croker, Vanderbilt, Goelet, Morgan, Gould and a host of lesser degree, who will contribute. If they die in England or not, it matters little. None can escape, for they all own something English or in England.

DRUNKEN SWEDEN RUN AMUCK

After Killing Thirteen People, Insanity Plea Falls Him.

STOCKHOLM, Aug. 25.—Oscar Svenson has been sentenced to the gallotins, despite the fact that his friends and relatives swear that he is hopelessly insane. Svenson is a man of 40, a rough cattle-breaker as a little roadside station, waiting for the slow-going notabilities of the German court, that she shocked them almost out of their senses when she was very young. Some time ago she was betrothed to Prince Arbert of Anhalt, a very staid and beefy minor royalty. Their married life lasted about two years, and then came the divorce. Princess Louise is said to have been very unhappy in her marriage and has been "carrying on" here ever since.

SHOCK TO DANISH "CLIMBER"

Desired Guest Entertained by Cook in Kitchen.

COPENHAGEN, Aug. 25.—An excellent story is told this week by the Stiftenstidende, the standing of the newspaper being sufficient cause to accept the story as true. A very prominent hotelier of the capital who entertained largely has been recently desirous of becoming a political hostess and entertaining a Cabinet Minister. To date she has not been successful. Her new cook announced that on Wednesday she desired relief from her duties as her uncle and aunt were to visit her. The business refused the leave, for she had arranged a big dinner for that night. She wished to oblige her cook, however, and so she herself could have the uncle and aunt and entertain them in the kitchen with what was left from each course of the banquet. This arrangement was satisfactory, and both the dinner upstairs and downstairs passed off successfully.

ISLAND REVOLT AT WAGING TIME

Washington Officials Deplore Cuban Outbreak While Root Is Absent.

MAY NULLIFY HIS VISIT

Talk of Help Being Furnished by Enemies of Monroe Doctrine in Foreign Countries to Insurgents in New Republic.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 25.—(Special.)—The Government is much worried over the Cuban situation. This fact became known tonight. The State Department officials, although making every effort to conceal the fact, fear from the private advice that have been received that the revolution is a well organized and powerful one and that the insurgents are well supplied with funds.

Uncle Sam does not wish to interfere in the slightest degree in the affairs of the young republic. This is not because he is indifferent over the outcome, because it is realized that even assistance in suppressing the revolution may be misconstrued by other countries. He believes that such an undesirable happening would put in the first all the fact that has been rendered by the notable visit of Secretary Root to the South American republic.

Ever since the Spanish-American War there has been an impression abroad that the ultimate aim of the United States was to annex Cuba. This feeling was strengthened by the diplomatic representatives of continental governments, who sought political gain through the breaking down of the to them obnoxious Monroe doctrine. It was almost at fever heat in certain South American countries when Secretary Root announced that he would make his now famous visit of peace to the island.

The Government was warmly congratulating itself upon the successful outcome of his visit when the news of the Cuban uprising was received. First the reports were treated rather lightly, but the growth of the insurrectionist movement led to an investigation that has disturbed rather than quieted the nerves of high officials.

PLANS FOR INTERVENTION.

Talk of Commission Named by Roosevelt to Settle Quarrel.

HAVANA, Aug. 25.—Among the suggestions made with the view of bringing about a peaceful settlement of the insurrection is that of conceding to the Liberals the annulment of the Insurrection Law, which has been one, in which both political parties, the Moderates and the Liberals, shall participate fairly and freely. Another is that a commission be appointed by which Roosevelt to investigate the matters in dispute, and it is also proposed that a commission composed of government supporters and insurgents, in which the American Minister shall be chairman, be appointed to decide on a basis of settlement. None of the plans appears practicable. The Government is wholly unlikely to begin negotiations of any sort at this stage.

CARRY ARMS AND AMMUNITION

Steamer Sails for Havana With Cargo for Palma.

NEW YORK, Aug. 25.—(Special.)—When the steamship Mexico left Brooklyn this afternoon for Havana, she had in her hold 15,000 Remington-Union repeating rifles, 500,000 rounds of ammunition and six Gatling rapid-fire guns for President Palma's forces in Cuba. The shipment was to have been larger, but the vessel could not carry more. The Kansas, which will sail next Thursday, will carry 3,000,000 rounds of ammunition and 500 Remingtons for Palma's aid. The firm that shipped the supplies said that the guns were ordered by cable on Thursday. It was a rush order and called for immediate shipment. Since then the entire force of the firm has been cleaning and boxing rifles and cartridges. The steamship is due at Havana Wednesday morning.
