

SENATOR FULTON EXPLAINS LETTER

Did Not Advise Oregon Stockmen to Ignore Forest Reserve Regulations.

MERELY EXPLAINED LAW

Believes Federal Government Cannot Delegate Power to Punish Trespassers, but Had No Intention of Counseling Trespass.

Senator Fulton emphatically denies the implication contained in a dispatch from Washington, published by The Oregonian yesterday, that he recently advised his constituents in Eastern Oregon to ignore the rules and regulations of the Department of Agriculture for the grazing of stock in forest reserves.

As to other features of his published correspondence with J. D. Combs, of John Day, Senator Fulton has no apology to make, and in that connection yesterday gave out an interview setting forth plainly his own views on the subject of forest reserves and cattlemen, especially with reference to what he believes to be exorbitant grazing charges imposed by the government.

"The letter I wrote Mr. Combs," said Senator Fulton at the Imperial last night, "was hastily written; was not designed for publication and was in response to a specific statement of facts by him. My letter was not so carefully guarded in language as it would have been had I any thought of its being published, and it may be misleading without a knowledge of the particular facts to which it was addressed."

Mr. Combs wrote me that certain Government officials had notified farmers residing in the vicinity of a forest reserve not to turn their stock out to graze before June 1. I think it was, as no stock would be permitted upon the reserve until then, and if any were found there they would be taken up and the owners prosecuted. That in substance, was his statement as I recall it. He further said that it was a great hardship on the farmers to be compelled to keep their stock up until so late in the season as June 1, when I had only that state of facts in view. I went so far as to say that in my judgment there was no law making it a crime even to drive stock into a reserve.

Did Not Counsel Defiance—
"I did not advise, and certainly would not advise, any such action. I simply intended to illustrate how far the law was from making it a crime for a farmer to permit his stock to be at large, and by reason thereof to go upon a reservation without his direct agency in the matter."

"Now, while I do not believe there is any law making it an offense to drive stock upon a reserve, I certainly would not, and do not advise any person to do so without the consent of the proper officials. I do not believe there is any such law, because I do not believe Congress has delegated to a department official the power to prescribe what shall or shall not constitute a crime. But be that as it may, it must be conceded, I think, that Congress is without authority to make it a crime for one to permit his stock to go at large within the limits of a state."

Whether or not lands shall be fenced in order to guard against trespass by stock is a policy that must be determined by a State Legislature, and not by Congress. Oregon has a fence law. If the general Government would prevent stock lawfully at large from going upon its lands it must do as other proprietors do, namely, fence its lands, or police them with a sufficient force to keep the stock off. It may be that Congress has power to make it an offense to drive stock into a reserve. Indeed, I am inclined to think it has, but it has not done so, unless it was competent for it to delegate to the Department of Agriculture such power, which I deny.

"Still, all I was in any way understood as saying was that neither Congress nor the department can subject an owner of stock to a penalty because his stock, being lawfully at large under the state laws, goes on an unfenced tract of public land without his connivance. That very question was discussed in the United States Senate during the last session and the leading lawyers of the Senate, notably Senator Spooner, emphatically and unhesitatingly expressed the opinion that Congress was without power to enact such a law."

Rights Same as Individual's—
"So far as such matters are concerned, the relation of the general Government to its lands is exactly the relation of an individual to the lands he owns. If it is the policy of the state to allow stock to run at large, and to require a land proprietor to fence his land would be tantamount to trespassing, then the general Government must fence or otherwise guard against such trespassing. And, while I do not believe Congress can delegate to any official the power to make it a crime to drive stock upon public land, still I wish distinctly to state that I do not advise any person to violate any such order or rule when made. By so doing he invites litigation and trouble."

"I do not believe, however, that our farmers and stockmen have the right, when our state law permits, to turn their stock at large and, should the animals without their connivance, go upon a reserve. Indeed, the government is without power or authority to impound the stock or arrest the owner, and for any official to do the one thing or the other would, in my judgment, be a clear violation of his duty and the law."

"I also wish to say that it is not my understanding that Secretary Wilson contends for any such authority. He is one of the most just and conscientious men I have ever known."

"As regards the charge made by the Government for grazing stock on its reserves, I have always contended that it should not, in any event, be in excess of the actual cost to the Government consequent thereto, which, in truth, is practically nothing, as few if any additional rangers are required because of the presence of the stock. The price charged by the Government is not only burdensome to the stockmen, but has already created a large fund which is being employed in part, I am informed, in forestry experimental work in California and other states. Surely such a tax should not be imposed on our people."

"It is true that stockmen's associa-

The Suit's Testimony

By Himself

JUDGE—look at me now. See the way my lapels bulge—Notice the unevenness of my shoulders—how they have fallen away—See how broken and lumpy looking I am in front—Don't you think from the way I'm twisted here and distorted there that I'm about the worst looking Suit you ever saw in your life?

Yet there's good material in me, Judge. If I had been properly cut and made up, you wouldn't see me in this terribly twisted condition—not much.

But I wasn't!

Between these two prisoners my present condition was assured.

For the tailor there cut me altogether improper, then hustled me through a lot of inexperienced, hunger-driven operatives who "slammed" me together any old way.

And when I came from their hands, I was badly made—I felt it.

I should have been carefully taken apart and made over by skilled tailoring experts—then I might have had a slight chance of being a good suit.

But no—that would cost money.

I was thrown to Old Dr. Goose—the Hot Flat Iron—for his work is cheap.

He stretched me here and shrunk me there—till every thread and strand of fabric ached and ached.

But he made me look the part of a well-made suit like thousands of other improperly cut and poorly tailored suits he has so "doped."

—To soon come to the state you see me in now, Judge—disgraced and dishonored.

Now that's the charge I have against the prisoners.

I might have been made into a suit that would hold its Shape for Life—
How do I know?

Because there are clothes so made—"Sincerity Clothes" is their name.

Yet I won't find a Sincerity Suit in my condition—not in a thousand years—For Sincerity Clothes are made right from Start to finish.

Sincerity Clothes are designed and Cut by the most expert and knowing tailors in America.

Then they're tailored by expert needleworkers—who Sew Shape and Form permanently into the Fabric.

When a Sincerity Suit is made, it is rigidly inspected—the few slight alterations that may possibly be required are made by expert needleworkers—not by Old Dr. Goose.

All these things cost money of course—A Sincerity Suit costs the Sincerity Makers more money to make than it costs the prisoners here to make me—

But—here's the most remarkable part—A Sincerity Suit doesn't cost the wearer a Single Cent more than I and my class of Poorly Made suits cost him!

All first grade ready-to-wear dealers carry Sincerity Clothes, Judge—if you want to be sure, see that this label is in the Coat—it insures Style, Service and Satisfaction.

PROMINENT PHYSICIAN

Secures New Pine Product—A Boon to Consumptives and People with Severe Coughs and Colds—Heart of Tree Is Cut into Small Blocks

The heart of the tall pine tree is cut into small square blocks. This is the method pursued by a prominent physician in his process of obtaining what is known to druggists and doctors as the concentrated oil of pine. The vital juices are extracted by hydraulic pressure and go through a refining and condensing process, and yield this wonderful curative oil of which a great deal has recently been written. It has proven a most certain remedy for lumbago and rheumatism. It also makes a splendid salve to be applied externally by mixing it with lard or vaseline. But for the quick cure of coughs and colds it has no equal.

For this purpose one-half ounce of the Concentrated oil of pine is mixed with two ounces of glycerine and half pint of good whiskey. Must be well shaken and used in tablespoonful doses every four hours.

It should be borne in mind that the real Concentrated oil of pine comes put up in small half-ounce bottles, each enclosed in a round screw-top case and sealed. This case is intended to protect the contents from the atmospheric changes. There are several patent medicines put out by chemical houses that use a similar name and package. These are frequently dangerous but can be avoided by making sure to get the "Concentrated" oil of pine. It will be found in the prescription department of every first-class druggist.

Uses the Telephone to Get Reven-ga

S. Esbush Charges That "Doc" Roach, Former Employee, Sent "Phony" Calls for Express Wagon.

"DOC" ROACH believes the telephone to be one of the top liners of modern conveniences. That it can be used for many purposes is his belief, and his experiments usually have been attended with a great degree of satisfaction. He has even used it as an instrument of personal revenge. He carried his experiment a trifle too far, however, and is in jail as a result. He was before Judge Cameron in the Municipal Court yesterday morning, but the case was continued until next Tuesday for further evidence.

S. Esbush caused the arrest. He swears that the constant use of the telephone by Roach inconvenienced him. Roach, it appears, formerly worked for Esbush in an express business, but Esbush discharged him for business reasons.

For revenge, Esbush charges, Roach went to a saloon and began the indiscriminate issuing of orders to the express office, sending Esbush and his employees on all kinds of wild-goose chases, until they learned that a fakir was busy.

Esbush suspected Roach, and laid a trap to catch him in the act of telephoning the fake orders, in which Esbush was successful, he declares. A spy found Roach in a saloon, trying an order over the telephone to the express office.

Esbush then swore out a warrant, on a complaint charging disorderly conduct and the arrest was made.
