

NEGLECT

IS RESPONSIBLE FOR NINE-TENTHS OF ALL TOOTH TROUBLES

Dr. B. E. Wright.

Make up your mind today not to procrastinate any longer, but visit this office, find out what work is needed, and have it done at once.

Delay makes large dentists' bills because, sooner or later, you have to come, and a small filling at the right time will save the tooth; neglect it, and the trouble will spread.

Where teeth are missing, your health and personal appearance demand a bridge. You will never realize the ease and skill with which this work is performed until you visit my office, and the comfort afterward is worth fifty times what it costs.

REOPEN AUGUST 15

Logging-Camp Owners Reach an Agreement.

WILL BRACE UP MARKET

Employers Also Decide to Raise Price of Board in Woods, but Postpone Cutting Wages of Their Employees.

A majority of the logging camps on the Lower Columbia River and its tributaries will remain closed until August 15. This was the action decided on by the owners of the principal camps, who held a meeting in this city yesterday. A committee was named to ascertain the amount of surplus logs in the market with instructions to report at another meeting of the loggers August 10. At that time it will probably be decided to resume work in all of the camps August 15.

Representatives of most of the large camps attended yesterday's meeting, which was held in the Chamber of Commerce rooms. Reports from the different camps were to the effect that no logs had been cut for from 30 to 60 days in the interest of the logging business. As a result the surplus of logs that existed a month ago has been largely used up, leaving an open market for the product of the camps when operations are resumed.

It was decided to advance the price for boarding men in logging camps to $5 a week or 25 cents a single meal. This price formerly charged was from $4.20 to $4.50, some camps charging $5. No action was taken toward reducing the wages of the men, who are being paid from $1 to $4 a day. If any change is made in the wage schedule it will not be made before the camps resume work and then but a slight reduction is expected, since the scarcity of men is a condition that requires a maintenance of the existing scale if men are to be kept.

Letters were read from the loggers' associations of Gray's Harbor and other Puget Sound points advising the Oregon loggers that the Washington camps expected to resume cutting logs about August 15, when the surplus stock of logs in this state will be exhausted.

The proposed increase in freight rates on all shipments of lumber to Eastern points was informally discussed, the loggers recognizing in the threatened action of the railroads a serious blow to the branches of the lumber industry in the Pacific Northwest. They will join hands at the proper time with the lumber manufacturers in resisting any advance in the existing rate schedule on lumber.

The Pacific Coast Lumber Manufacturers' Association of Western Washington has pledged a fund of $100,000 to oppose the efforts of the railroads in raising the rates on lumber and a committee has been appointed to confer with the Oregon dealers and secure their cooperation.

"We have taken no definite steps towards resisting the proposed action of the railroads," said Philip Buchner, president of the Oregon & Washington Lumber Manufacturers' Association, yesterday. "We have decided to wait until the new rates have been announced when we will take practical steps to ward off what we consider would be a serious blow to the lumber industry in the states of Oregon and Washington. It is expected these rates will be published about August 1. It is quite likely we will act in conjunction with the Washington dealers who have already taken steps to fight the action contemplated by the railroads."

Among the leading Columbia logging camps represented at yesterday's meeting were the following: Muckler Bros., Oregon Timber & Lumber Company, Chapman Lumber Company, Twin Falls Logging Company, Conwitz County Logging Company, L. S. Franck Logging Company, O. K. Logging Company, Silver Lake Railway & Timber Company, Ostrander Railway & Timber Company, Erik Logging Company, Bremner Logging Company, Deep River Logging Company, Sorenson Logging Company, Goodsell Logging Company, Jennings & McRae, E. C. Shevlin Timber Company, Oak Point Piling & Lumber Company, E. E. McLaren Logging Company and the Ladd & Bourne Logging Company.

TEACHERS' SUMMERCOURSE

INSTITUTE WILL BE CONDUCTED AT CORVALLIS.

Instructors Will Be Prepared for Agricultural Course to Be Begun in Common Schools.

Arrangements have been completed for a Summer course in agriculture at the Oregon Agricultural College, beginning August 29 and continuing to the 31st inclusive. The purpose of the course is to give the teachers of the state such preparation as they may need for the use of the agricultural book to be introduced next year into the seventh and eighth grades of the public schools. It is hoped that as many of the teachers as possible will avail themselves of this opportunity of acquiring a knowledge of the new subject.

Dr. W. J. Kerr, president of the State Agricultural College, who is in the city in connection with the institute, said yesterday in speaking of the special course:

"The importance of agricultural education is recognized more and more as the people become informed regarding the necessity of giving to the farmers of the country the same advantages in preparation for their life work that the people in other vocations and professions have. Competition in agriculture, as in other enterprises, is becoming keener all the time and the farmer who succeeds must be up-to-date in his work, applying scientific principles and following business-like methods. The necessity for this is shown by the fact that while the agricultural products of the United States last year aggregated in value about $7,000,000,000, the damage to farm crops by different pests is estimated at upward of $100,000,000. The damage by the codlin moth to the pear and apple crops alone last year in the United States was approximately $20,000,000. To reduce these losses to a minimum, it is necessary that the farmer should know something of the pests with which he has to contend and of the most successful ways of destroying them. Furthermore, in order that the maximum yield of different farm crops may be secured at an expenditure of minimum time and money, the farmer must follow modern cultural methods."

"A great work is being done in agricultural education by the agricultural colleges of the country. But these institutions do not, and cannot, reach a sufficient number of the farm population. Only about 2 per cent of all the children in the common schools graduate from the eighth grade, and of these only a very small proportion ever receive college training, while a very large proportion remain on the farm. Hence the necessity of providing for work in agriculture in the common schools.

"Oregon is one of the first states in the Union to introduce agriculture into the common schools, and no means should be spared to make this work a part of the education of the children. Very few of the teachers have received any special training in scientific agriculture; some, perhaps, are even without experience on the farm. Therefore, the text-book adopted, although one of the best of the kind published, is prepared for general use, and of necessity omits many things of local importance and perhaps contains other things of no special value to people here.

"That the agricultural college may be of as great service as possible in this movement for agricultural education, it is fitting that the magnificent equipment the institution has for agricultural work, and the services of the specialists in different subjects of agriculture, should be utilized to the greatest extent possible in preparing teachers for this new work. It is for this purpose that the special Summer course is established. The work will consist of lectures on the different subjects treated in the text, with such illustrations and demonstrations as may be helpful to teachers in getting an understanding of the subject. The professors will indicate the parts of the text which may be advantageously omitted, and will give supplementary material to be used by the teachers in adapting their work to local conditions."

Dr. Kerr is in Portland for the purpose of conferring with architects in regard to the plans for the new dairy barn, for which the last Legislature made an appropriation.

The plans for the new shops are all completed and their construction will add much to the efficiency of the mechanical department. The contract for these buildings will be awarded next week. The buildings for the women's dormitory and Department of Domestic Science and Arts are nearing completion and with the equipment which will be provided, will very largely increase the facilities for thorough and efficient work at Corvallis.

ASCEND WITHOUT GUIDES

Two Portland Letter-carriers Go to Top of Mount Hood.

F. W. Farrer and John Good, two Portland letter-carriers, succeeded in making the ascent of Mount Hood without guides last Sunday. They made the trip on bicycles and carried their camping outfit with them. Leaving Portland July 13 they reached the summit at 11 A. M. July 21. This is not the first time they have ascended the mountain, but it is the first time they have done so without guides.

steps in the snow and ice up the last and almost perpendicular incline. "Just before reaching the top, upon looking back to see if our fellow-climbers were coming, we saw them turning back with one of their number apparently helpless. We reached the summit at 11 A. M. July 21, 1907. This is not considered a speed record by us, as we could have made it in considerable less time had we not been encumbered by photograph outfits.

"We overcame all obstacles and were quite successful in taking views of different parts of the mountain. This was our fifth trip up the mountain, which is an unusual record for a party without an official guide. We stayed on the summit only a short time, as the wind was blowing a hurricane. We commenced the descent, taking pictures on the way, to our camp at the timber line, and started on our homeward journey all in good trim. "We could not locate the record box on the summit, as six feet of new snow had fallen a few days before."
