

TELECONI, THE SCIENCE OF VIBRATION, THE GREATEST METHOD IN THE WORLD FOR TREATMENT OF DISEASE

Thousands of People Are Rejoicing in the Restoration of Their Good Health Through the Efforts of James Austin Larson, the Originator of This Great Boon to Humanity—They Tell Their Stories in Their Own Way

PROMINENT BANKERS SPEAK OF LARSON

The line that is drawn between a business and a profession these days is very thin and, as a rule, the professional man to be successful must have all the main attributes of the ranking of the man of commerce. Especially does this apply to the professional man who is traveling and yet is performing those duties which he has made a life study.

Mr. James Austin Larson, whose remarkable cures as the result of the Teleconi treatment given in his consultation rooms in the Hotel Astor are causing widespread discussion, has started on a crusade which he hopes will be successful. The discoverer and inventor of that great vibratory system, whose aim in life has seemed to be to do the most good that he can, had a large and lucrative practice in the city of the Middle West. As his patients grew more numerous the idea shaped itself what a grand thing it would be if a central home could be established where all who wished to be benefited by Teleconi could stay and which—after being founded by Mr. Larson—could serve as an everlasting memorial to the discoverer after he had ceased practicing. Mr. Larson chose a suitable spot for his home and then started on his travels. His sole idea in leaving the great city where he had been made famous being to introduce his methods and prove their efficacy; to plant a seed of publicity that would grow and make the name of Teleconi as familiar to hundreds would travel to this home and undergo the treatment. Mr. Larson is now practically assured of enough followers to start the building of this sanitarium.

Knowing well that there are many who question the bona-fides of a man who comes as a comparative stranger—even if he has proved a good Samaritan in the methods that he has employed before their very eyes for the alleviation of pain, Mr. Larson has carefully preserved many of the testimonials he has received from men of position in the financial world. There have been many bankers among his patients and of the thanks that have been sent to him in gratitude for the cures he has consummated, the following is a fair example:

THE COLLIER COUNTY NATIONAL BANK

McKinney, Texas. Jesse Shain, president; W. E. Newcome, vice-president; T. C. Goodner, vice-president.

Mrs. A. G. Jackson, Forth Worth, Texas. "October 19, 1904.—Dear Mr. Larson: In reply to your inquiry of late date, I am glad to say that after two months' treatment by J. Austin Larson I am permanently cured of my complaint. I did twelve months ago, when I was attacked with jaundice in a severe form which held on to me for months, but by last summer I was able to go about as usual; but my liver was torpid and inactive, causing indigestion, colic and constipation. I fortunately had Mr. Larson to treat me, commencing the middle of August, and I began to improve at once, and soon my liver was acting all right and the indigestion, colic and constipation all disappeared. My color changed from a yellow to a healthy, florid complexion; had a fine appetite and good digestion; a gain of ten pounds in flesh, with a renewed vitality, vigor and strength. For a torpid liver would unhesitatingly recommend Mr. Larson's treatment." T. C. GOODNER, Vice-President.

A personal letter to a friend. Of James Austin Larson's business standing there can be no question. In every city that he has visited he has been complimented on the exactness with which he has carried out what in the commercial world would be called contracts. The following letters picked at random will show how he is rated among bankers:

FARMERS' BANK. Frank Cowden, president; E. S. Hobart, vice-president. Downey, Ill., July 5, 1904.—To whom it may concern: Having known James Austin Larson for many years, I cheerfully testify that he comes from one of our best families, and has always been a man of honor and integrity. He lived in this community for many years and has the confidence of those who know him. While a youth here he proved himself an apt student and a thorough scholar. Our best wishes go with him.

FIRST NATIONAL BANK, Concordia, Kas. T. J. Atwood, president; C. E. Sweet, vice-president.

March 19, 1904.—To whom concerned: Regarding James Austin Larson, I have to say that he carried an account with us, and his relations with us have been business-like and prompt. As to his skill as a healer, we have no personal knowledge. We have no reason to think that the testimonials which have appeared in our city papers are not true, and the few sentiments of those whose names are attached. Very truly, T. J. ATWOOD, President.

THIRD NATIONAL BANK, Bloomington, Ill. John J. Cowden, president; Samuel W. Waddie, cashier.

July 8, 1904.—To whom it may concern: I am a convert to Teleconi. I speak from personal experience. I am a graduate of two medical colleges, and have myself practiced medicine for many years. My complaint is one that all women will understand—nervous exhaustion due to motherhood. While in Missouri I was treated by Dr. Carson, a famous healer. He did me much good, and naturally when again suffering and unable to sleep I read in the Tacoma newspapers of the work of James Austin Larson and Teleconi, the science of vibration, I was interested. From what I read I imagined that Teleconi was not unlike the other treatment with which I was familiar, and I was not mistaken.

THIRD NATIONAL BANK, Bloomington, Ill. John J. Cowden, president; Samuel W. Waddie, cashier.

July 8, 1904.—To whom it may concern: I am a convert to Teleconi. I speak from personal experience. I am a graduate of two medical colleges, and have myself practiced medicine for many years. My complaint is one that all women will understand—nervous exhaustion due to motherhood. While in Missouri I was treated by Dr. Carson, a famous healer. He did me much good, and naturally when again suffering and unable to sleep I read in the Tacoma newspapers of the work of James Austin Larson and Teleconi, the science of vibration, I was interested. From what I read I imagined that Teleconi was not unlike the other treatment with which I was familiar, and I was not mistaken.

Any of these letters can be seen at Mr. Larson's offices, Oregon Hotel.

JAMES AUSTIN LARSON
The Man of Teleconi, Now at the Oregon Hotel

WOMAN M. D. PRAISES TELECONI

(By Mrs. Dr. Marie Fiske, 611 South Eighteenth Street, Tacoma.)

"I am a convert to Teleconi. I speak from personal experience. I am a graduate of two medical colleges, and have myself practiced medicine for many years. My complaint is one that all women will understand—nervous exhaustion due to motherhood. While in Missouri I was treated by Dr. Carson, a famous healer. He did me much good, and naturally when again suffering and unable to sleep I read in the Tacoma newspapers of the work of James Austin Larson and Teleconi, the science of vibration, I was interested. From what I read I imagined that Teleconi was not unlike the other treatment with which I was familiar, and I was not mistaken."

Treated by Mr. Neville. "I was treated by Mr. Neville, the associate of James Austin Larson, and I do not hesitate to say that Teleconi gave me the relief I sought. The action of the heart, which had been badly impaired, immediately grew better and the first night after trying Teleconi I slept like a child and awoke in the morning refreshed and in good spirits. After the second treatment I came home and did a full day of hard housework, and again slept well. For six years I was in Hot Springs, Ark., seeking relief in the healing waters. Nervous exhaustion had made of me a nervous wreck. My heart action was weak, and I had run down in weight to a little more than 70 pounds. After leaving Hot Springs and taking the vital treatment under the direction of Dr. Carson, I gained rapidly and soon added 20 pounds to my weight."

All Run Down Again. "After leaving Missouri and stopping vital treatments—and I took them only two weeks—I again found myself running down, and when I happened to see the announcement of the presence of James Austin Larson in Tacoma, I was practically a physical wreck. As I have said, I have taken two Teleconi treatments and feel like a new woman. I consider the treatment marvelous. It is so quick in results that the patient is startled with the change in feeling. Is there any wonder that I should gratefully subscribe to the efficiency of this marvelous restoration of life to the debilitated human body?"

Is Not a Skeptic. "I am not a skeptic. I have in my practice accomplished cures where others have given up the patients to die. I know what is possible and as a professional practitioner, I do not hesitate to say that Teleconi is all that Mr. Larson, its originator, claims for it, but more. I think he is modest in his claims. This I say from my own knowledge of the human body, gained in years of practice in the medical profession. I have come to realize that medicine is not a science, but an experiment. A bold assertion to come from a practitioner. Yes, but it is true. Surgery is a science, but medicine is a guess. I know what to do in certain cases, but I am honest enough to admit that I have often found the expected remedy to fail of results, and have then tried other drugs. That is not science. It is guesswork."

Teleconi No Guess. "And that is why I so heartily endorse Teleconi—because it is a science—the science of vibration, of which I profess to have considerable knowledge. One of the medical colleges from which I graduated was an electric school. I think more of it than of the other. I know just what Teleconi will help—having investigated—and I can cheerfully recommend the treatment to any person suffering with rheumatism, stomach trouble, constipation, indigestion—and, above all, nervousness, to which women are so often subject. I say this for the benefit and information of my sex. Since taking the Teleconi treatment, I have studied the principle of it."

Results of Inquiry. "Permit me to explain. Teleconi is the science of vibration. An example: Let there be mental derangement and harmonious vibration of the nerves of the body is disturbed. A great calamity will cause the vibrations of the human system to become harmful in sympathy. The information transmits to the body the vibrations of ill, and the human being suffers mentally and physically—for there can be no bodily suffering without its foundation in the mental. It is the vibrations that do the damage or the good. Presume instead of hearing of disaster and calamity you receive information that you have suddenly come into a great fortune. You are overjoyed. The thrills of delight are transmitted to the nerves, and you are exhilarated. You cannot fail to be benefited physically, because you are mentally elated and the transmission of the vibrations are harmonious and nerve-resting."

"Someone on the Wire." "Compare the theory of vibration—the science, if you like—Teleconi—with the telegraph and telephone, and you will understand more readily. Take the telephone. You call a number and can get no response. Then there is someone on the wire. When the functional parts of the body refuse or fail to work, then you may depend upon it, there is also something on the wire that should be heeded. Establish harmonious vibration in the human system and you have ease not disease; concord, not discord; rest, not nervous lack of interest in life."

Belief in Teleconi. "In gratitude to James Austin Larson and Teleconi the science of vibration, I want to say, in conclusion, that I, as a professional woman—a doctor—believe that Teleconi will cure many and relieve the few who have so long neglected their physical condition as to be almost beyond hope. I say this voluntarily and with thankfulness—if for nothing more than for a chance to assist in restoring the functions of nature by refreshing sleep, made possible by Teleconi."

Helpless for 20 months of suffering with four operations—then a little over a week of treatment by Mr. James Austin Larson and she is able, with the assistance of one friend, to walk down the stairs from the consulting-room of the Hotel Astor. Such is the case of Mrs. E. G. Craigie. Twelve days ago she was on her way from Ladner, Vancouver for another operation for cancer. She was unable to walk and her poor, wasted frame had not strength enough to take nourishment. She heard of Mr. Larson and his invention of Teleconi and she decided to give him a trial before undergoing another operation—her only hope of life. A week ago last Tuesday she was taken to the consulting-rooms at the Astor in a back and carried up the stairs. Mr. Larson examined her and found her whole side paralyzed as the result of the surgical operations. The case was one of the worst in his experience, and although he cheered the woman as much as possible by holding out a slight chance for her recovery, in his own mind he considered that there was very little chance of her again getting the use of the muscles of her leg. And yesterday she walked down the stairs from the consulting-room and up to her bedroom at the Fairmont Hotel, where she is staying during her treatment.

Tells Her Own Story. The reporter called on Mrs. Craigie yesterday. She is the mother of three little boys, but is living apart from her husband. Before going to Ladner, where her mother resides, she lived in Vancouver.

"I can't say enough in praise of Mr. Larson," she replied to a query by the reporter. "I feel that he has saved my life. You cannot imagine how it is to feel, after you have given up all hope, that you are on the road to recovery. When I first went to Mr. Larson my side was one solid cake and I could not use my leg at all. Today I walked, with the assistance of a friend, and I feel sure that I will be absolutely well again. I had no appetite when I came to Vancouver, and now I am able to take good meals and enjoy them. The matter that comes from the abscess is lessening every day and the wound is healing up. I can feel myself growing stronger. My bowels were constipated but now they are as regular as clockwork. I am a new woman."

Beside Mrs. Craigie was an empty tray, which had contained her dinner. The sunlight streamed into the room and lighted up the wan face, adding its brightness in the hope that was written on it. The thin arm was stretched out until the hand grasped a glass of water.

"A week ago I could not have lifted this," said the patient, with a little smile on the lips which showed the color of returning health.

Watched Case Progress. There are many at the Hotel Astor who have watched the progress of Mrs. Craigie. Some of them have been inclined to scoff at the methods of Mr. James Austin Larson, especially at the idea of Teleconi relieving—even curing—such an advanced and complicated case as that of Mrs. Craigie. The picture of the helpless invalid being carried up to the consultation-room had daily excited their curiosity and pity. There were no scoffers at the hotel yesterday when a reporter asked them about the incident of Mrs. Craigie walking down stairs, aided only by a friend.

"I didn't believe that Mr. Larson could cure such a case when I first saw the woman brought here," said Mr. Joseph Reed, the proprietor. "It is nothing short of a miracle, the change that has been wrought in her every day. I have spoken to her while she was waiting for her treatment with Teleconi. At first she did not care, but as her treatment progressed, and her health became better, you could see the light in her eye. Whatever Teleconi is, whoever Mr. Larson is, between them they have saved that woman's life. I am not the only one that believes this."

He took the reporter to the desk clerk, who also had noticed the daily change in the woman.

Refuses All Fees. Mr. Austin Larson, like the great bloodless surgeon Lorenz, takes many cases which he asks no recompense. Mrs. Craigie, he discovered after he had given her several treatments, had scraped together only enough money to bring her to Vancouver, and to keep her the few weeks she would be here. She is not in good circumstances, and has to support her three little boys. Hearing of this, the specialist refused to take any fee whatever, despite the fact that Mrs. Craigie pressed him to do so many times. The case is an interesting one to him, and one of the most difficult that he has handled, the success that he is now certain will attend his efforts will be the only remuneration he will get, beyond the undying gratitude of the woman he has rescued from the grasp of death.

"He has saved my life," says Mrs. Craigie. "I cannot ever repay him." Vancouver. (B. C.) Daily Province.

TELECONI IS THE LIFE

Says F. G. Linstead, After Being Cured by J. A. Larson—Science of Vibration Makes Sufferer From Constipation and Torpid Liver a Well Man.

"Teleconi is the life, just as James Austin Larson claims it is," said F. G. Linstead, who is employed by the St. John Lumber Company, as he emerged from the apartments at the Oregon Hotel of James Austin Larson, the Teleconi expert.

Mr. Linstead was asked what Teleconi is, a question that is upon the lips of hundreds of Portland people at this time.

"It has certainly put new life into me," he continued Mr. Linstead. "For eight years I have been a constant sufferer from constipation and torpid liver. Now I am a new man altogether, all due, I am positive, to this wonderful treatment they call Teleconi. "During all the time of my indisposition, it has been necessary for me to take strong medicine for every day, and even then my head was constantly heavy and I was dull and listless and my body was so numb that I was in mortal fear of paralysis. Now, my head is clear and my mind active. The dull, heavy feeling in my body is gone and I am just as natural as I would ever wish to be. Teleconi works quickly and surely. As a cure for such troubles as afflicted me, it is all that is claimed for it, and I am glad to state publicly my earnest belief in the treatment. My belief is based upon a successful trial of it."

One only needs to listen to Mr. Linstead's story to be impressed with the fact that Teleconi is a make-up that gives claims that have been made for it by its distinguished originator, James Austin Larson. There is one very decided feature in favor of Mr. Larson's method and manner, and that is that he does not claim to cure everything by Teleconi. He candidly admits that he can do nothing for such ailments as cancer, consumption, diabetes, Bright's disease, chronic deafness and organic heart trouble. He is equally as firm in his statement that nearly every other trouble comes within the scope of his treatment.

You cannot but be impressed with the conservatism of the man. It is just this quality in his make-up that gives thinking people confidence in him and his claims. If, as Mr. Linstead claims, Mr. Larson can cure constipation and torpid liver, his treatment, sooner or later, will receive universal recognition in the curing of this very prevalent complaint.

SAYS LUETGERT'S WIFE IS ALIVE

Lawrence Harmon, celebrated as the attorney defending Adolph Luetgert for the alleged murder of his wife and the dissolution of her body in a soap vat, in Chicago in 1897, is stopping in Portland temporarily arranging business matters for his clients. Mr. Harmon succeeded in securing a life sentence only for the man whom he believes to this day was the victim of the Chicago police and newspapers. Luetgert died in Joliet prison shortly after.

"I am as firmly convinced as I am that I am alive," said Mr. Harmon yesterday afternoon, "that Louise Luetgert was alive after she was said to have been murdered. I have the affidavit of a woman who knew her well to the fact that she met her at a depot at Atlanta, Ga., May 25, 1897, nearly a month after the alleged murder, talked with her for two hours and introduced her to her husband as Mrs. Luetgert. I also have indisputable evidence that she was seen and recognized still later than that in the State of Ohio. I know that she was alive, the intention of Mrs. Luetgert to leave her husband and children and have good evidence to the effect that she was pleaded with by the hour to return to Chicago from the East to save her husband from execution. I am satisfied that she refused to return unless she was sentenced to be hanged. She said that if she were sentenced to the penitentiary for life, it would be good enough for her. Of the children she thought nothing, calling them pups. One of the boys, Arnold, is now living in Seattle."

The wife of Mr. Harmon in company with James Austin Larson, famed originator of Teleconi, the science of vibration in the treatment of human life. The two gentlemen met in the corridor of the Oregon Hotel, where Mr. Larson is located, for the first time in many years.

Mr. Harmon gave an interesting talk of his experience with Teleconi, in which he is a firm believer.

Speaking of the work of Mr. Larson, Mr. Harmon said: "I was pretty well run down in 1902, had rheumatic pains and needed a general toning up. I had known of Teleconi and, knowing the character of treatment he administered, I decided to try it for myself. I want to say that no word of commendation for this man's work can be too strong. I know that people are skeptical about such matters; so was I. But he treated me successfully. After that my wife was severely afflicted with stomach trouble, indigestion, nervousness and was in quite bad shape. Mr. Larson treated her and was equally as successful in that instance. I had suffered severely from rheu-

HER RHEUMATISM NOW CURED BY FAMOUS TELECONI

Wife of Chilliwack's Reeve Adds Indorsement to the Methods of Mr. James Austin Larson

Mrs. C. A. Kickbush, wife of the Reeve of Chilliwack Municipality, a resident of the fertile valley for nearly thirty years, is one of Mr. James Austin Larson's patients, who heartily indorses Teleconi. She has just completed two weeks' treatment for rheumatism that practically prevented the use of her right shoulder, and is now to all intents and purposes cured. In regard to her case she said: "I had suffered severely from rheumatic pains and tried various so-called remedies in vain when I saw Mr. Larson's advertisement in The World. I started treatments over two weeks ago and immediately there was an improvement. This has continued until now all trace of the malady has disappeared. I was also suffering from shortness of breath and Teleconi has cured this. I cannot say if the cure will be permanent, but I feel that it will, for I have not felt so well in many years. The money I have paid to Mr. Larson for his treatments I feel has been well spent, and I am quite willing to indorse his discovery for cases like my own."

Mrs. Kickbush and her husband are well known in Chilliwack, where they have one of the finest ranches in the valley. Her experience with Mr. Larson is only one of the many cases that have been cured since the inventor of Teleconi made his headquarters in Vancouver.—Vancouver (B. C.) Daily World.

LEADING SPOKANE WOMAN TAKES TELECONI

Constipation, Stomach Troubles, Rheumatism, Paralysis, All Yield to Teleconi as Administered by J. Austin Larson.

The skeptic is ever present. He must, like the man from Missouri, be shown. The doubter can see no merit in anything he does not understand. Teleconi, the science of vibration, is one of the mysteries the skeptical are curious about, yet cannot grasp. All they have to do, however, is to write to any of those who have been relieved or cured by the science of vibration and ascertain the efficacy of the Teleconi treatment as administered by J. Austin Larson.

Case of Mrs. Cross. There is the case of Mrs. R. Cross, of Spokane, a woman who was on the verge of mental as well as physical collapse, owing to stomach and other troubles to which the sex is often victim. Constipation had rendered her almost mad. She turned to J. Austin Larson and Teleconi and today she is as well a woman as she ever was. David Neville, who has recently arrived from Spokane, said to the writer: "I saw Mrs. Cross just before leaving Spokane. She is a living testimonial to the efficacy of Teleconi, and to the fact that the cures effected by it are permanent. She is mentally, as well as physically strong, and gives due credit to Teleconi."

Husband Says Marvelous. "Marvelous is the only word I can find that comes anywhere near describing the cure that has been brought about by J. Austin Larson's treatment," Mr. Cross said in speaking of his wife's case. "When Mr. Larson undertook the case Mrs. Cross was in a serious condition, suffering from nervous troubles of more than a year's standing."

"The muscles of the back and spine were so severely contracted that the nerve centers were benumbed; her eyes troubled her, and the skin across her forehead and neck was drawn so tightly that it was with difficulty she held her head up. She was unable to eat or sleep and was in continual misery. Now she is well and happy and Teleconi and Mr. Larson are entitled to the credit."

Other Spokane Cases. Other Spokane cases handled successfully by J. Austin Larson were referred to by Mr. Neville, who said that Spokane was certainly the place for doubters to turn for information as to the efficacy of Teleconi.

"I saw Mrs. Cross just before leaving Spokane. She is a living testimonial to the efficacy of Teleconi, and to the fact that the cures effected by it are permanent. She is mentally, as well as physically strong, and gives due credit to Teleconi."

IS BIG VICTORY FOR TELECONI

Mrs. E. G. Craigie, After Four Operations, Is Carried Up to James Austin Larson's Consulting-Rooms, and Surprises Friends by Walking Down Waiting Hack.

Helpless for 20 months of suffering with four operations—then a little over a week of treatment by Mr. James Austin Larson and she is able, with the assistance of one friend, to walk down the stairs from the consulting-room of the Hotel Astor. Such is the case of Mrs. E. G. Craigie. Twelve days ago she was on her way from Ladner, Vancouver for another operation for cancer. She was unable to walk and her poor, wasted frame had not strength enough to take nourishment. She heard of Mr. Larson and his invention of Teleconi and she decided to give him a trial before undergoing another operation—her only hope of life. A week ago last Tuesday she was taken to the consulting-rooms at the Astor in a back and carried up the stairs. Mr. Larson examined her and found her whole side paralyzed as the result of the surgical operations. The case was one of the worst in his experience, and although he cheered the woman as much as possible by holding out a slight chance for her recovery, in his own mind he considered that there was very little chance of her again getting the use of the muscles of her leg. And yesterday she walked down the stairs from the consulting-room and up to her bedroom at the Fairmont Hotel, where she is staying during her treatment.

Tells Her Own Story. The reporter called on Mrs. Craigie yesterday. She is the mother of three little boys, but is living apart from her husband. Before going to Ladner, where her mother resides, she lived in Vancouver.

"I can't say enough in praise of Mr. Larson," she replied to a query by the reporter. "I feel that he has saved my life. You cannot imagine how it is to feel, after you have given up all hope, that you are on the road to recovery. When I first went to Mr. Larson my side was one solid cake and I could not use my leg at all. Today I walked, with the assistance of a friend, and I feel sure that I will be absolutely well again. I had no appetite when I came to Vancouver, and now I am able to take good meals and enjoy them. The matter that comes from the abscess is lessening every day and the wound is healing up. I can feel myself growing stronger. My bowels were constipated but now they are as regular as clockwork. I am a new woman."

Beside Mrs. Craigie was an empty tray, which had contained her dinner. The sunlight streamed into the room and lighted up the wan face, adding its brightness in the hope that was written on it. The thin arm was stretched out until the hand grasped a glass of water.

"A week ago I could not have lifted this," said the patient, with a little smile on the lips which showed the color of returning health.

Watched Case Progress. There are many at the Hotel Astor who have watched the progress of Mrs. Craigie. Some of them have been inclined to scoff at the methods of Mr. James Austin Larson, especially at the idea of Teleconi relieving—even curing—such an advanced and complicated case as that of Mrs. Craigie. The picture of the helpless invalid being carried up to the consultation-room had daily excited their curiosity and pity. There were no scoffers at the hotel yesterday when a reporter asked them about the incident of Mrs. Craigie walking down stairs, aided only by a friend.

"I didn't believe that Mr. Larson could cure such a case when I first saw the woman brought here," said Mr. Joseph Reed, the proprietor. "It is nothing short of a miracle, the change that has been wrought in her every day. I have spoken to her while she was waiting for her treatment with Teleconi. At first she did not care, but as her treatment progressed, and her health became better, you could see the light in her eye. Whatever Teleconi is, whoever Mr. Larson is, between them they have saved that woman's life. I am not the only one that believes this."

He took the reporter to the desk clerk, who also had noticed the daily change in the woman.

Refuses All Fees. Mr. Austin Larson, like the great bloodless surgeon Lorenz, takes many cases which he asks no recompense. Mrs. Craigie, he discovered after he had given her several treatments, had scraped together only enough money to bring her to Vancouver, and to keep her the few weeks she would be here. She is not in good circumstances, and has to support her three little boys. Hearing of this, the specialist refused to take any fee whatever, despite the fact that Mrs. Craigie pressed him to do so many times. The case is an interesting one to him, and one of the most difficult that he has handled, the success that he is now certain will attend his efforts will be the only remuneration he will get, beyond the undying gratitude of the woman he has rescued from the grasp of death.

"He has saved my life," says Mrs. Craigie. "I cannot ever repay him." Vancouver. (B. C.) Daily Province.

SPECIAL

James Austin Larson will maintain offices in Portland for several months. Teleconi is becoming so popular, however, that those who desire a full course of treatment had better enroll at once as the list is rapidly approaching completion. Mr. Larson may be seen in rooms 212 to 216 Oregon Hotel at the following hours: From 9 to 12; 2 to 5; and 7 to 8 P. M. Positively no Sunday hours.