NEW HAVEN, Conn., Nov. 21 .- A erimson tide of banners swept in tri-umph over Yaje Field in the dying light this afternoon, for the men of Harvard, after seven leng years, had beaten Yale, 4 to 0,

A goal from the field, kicked by Vic-tor H Kennard, of Brookline, Mass., fresh from the side lines, and standing on Yale's 28-yard line, with the crimline planted on the 15-yard line, the winning score just as the first was closing.

Greek Against Greek.

The game was a battle of football giants After all, granting to the Harvard men their full share of credit for the victory, the sons of Ell can point as a consolation to their goal line, which was not crossed by a foe of even such worthy metal. Man forman, the teams were equally matched. Each team's defense was stronger than its offense, and the best-laid shans of strategy well-nigh went for maight.

The critical point in the game came in the second half, owing to the failure of a forward pass. Yale had been rallying with a desperation been of knowledge that time was fleeting and had worked the ball to Harvard's 2-yard line, when Johnson, the quarterback, gave the signal for the play which proyed so successful against Brows. This time the place for its executions was the diagonal opposite Brown. This time the place for its execution was the diagonal opposite spring. The ball went back to Philbin, who passed it cleanly over the ourushing crimson forwards to Payne. But the ball was not thrown more than five yards from the center line, and, the play being regarded as faults under the rules, the ball went to Harvard. A great sigh of relief went up from the Harvard side of the field and not five minutes later the game ended.

Battle Stubbornly Contested.

That this was a critical moment is proved by the fact that throughout the second half the Harvard team did not once have the ball in Yale's territory, second that the threater team on not once have the bail in Yale's territory, and yet so stubborn was her defense that neither Coy, with his terrific plunges, nor the tremendous efforts of Yale to open holes, was able to push the bail nearer than the 15-yard line. So well matched were the teams that neither get nearer than 15 yards to its opponent's goal. Occasionally there would be an end run which was not very successful, except when flarvard directed one against Captain Burch's end. This style of play was worked mostly outside of tackle, when the ends had been drawn out. There were no speciacular rushes, although Coy's attempts to turn the Harvard ends were nearly so, for several times he crossed the field in his endeavor to find an opening.

The longest run was by Wheaton, of Yale, at the Rickoff in the second half, when he returned the ball 15 yards. The longest rush was by Verwiebs, the crimson follback, who started in the grame for Harvack and this netted is yards around the yard. As whole the game was rather off-fashioned in type. Harvard was actimes now to perfect the Yale lines not perhaps, because of the weakless of any particular man, but more often owing to the speed with wilds he did not be yearly was actimes about to peretrate the Yale lines not, perhaps, because of the weakless of any particular man, but more often owing to the speed with wilds he did not yards and the range like one the yards around the rend. As a whole the game was rather off-fashioned in type. Harvard was actimes about to peretrate the Yale lines not, perhaps, because of the weakless of any particular man, but more often owing to the speed with wilds he did not game and the purity much better than Rogers and Dean. Wisconsin was seldom falled to return from 19 to 15 yards on pents. The lines was shown in the second light.

Harvard guided during the entire game 55 times, weiting 241 yards, an worage distance of 3 2-7 yards to a will be a second of 3 2-7 yards to a will be an Jowns, while Tale failed to hold the crimson for a down once, simply because a kick was resorted to when two Images had falled to give the needed to be a falled to give the needed to the plants. This mate the exchanges in the plants. The rishing had its companions, for it worked up the sudience to a bigh pitch of expectancy every few minutes.

In sloaing, Coy lifted the built nine times for a total of 313 yards, an average of 12% yards, fiarvard called upon her fullbacks to kifk and the total of their efforts was 125 yards for 11 times, in average of 13 2.2 yards.

From the start of the same to the end there was overeagerness among the players to be in the fight and this brought many penalties, Harvard losing 120 yards on 12 penalties and Yale 55 yards on six penalties. As yards on alx penalties, Neither team tried many of the resourceful plays which the revised rules

sourceful plays which the revised rules have brought out.

Corbett and Coy were both conspicuous for steady work, quick plays and flerce plunges. Corbett gained steadily for Harvard during the entire game. Towards the close of the first half the Oregon hopgained four yards outside of left tackle then went through a hole in Yale's line, putting the pigskin on Yale's 30-yard line. In the last half the Harvard halfback made seven yards in two rushes.

The victory of Harvard undoubtedly was due to the quick judgment of the Harvard coaches in sending in Kennard to try for a goal, though Verwelbe, whom he succeeded, had been playing finely. The change in the line-up was made instantly, and when it came the line-up was on Yale's 12-yard line. In another second Kennard at fullback received the ball, and, applying his toe to it, the goal was made amid wild scenes on the Harvard side of the field. Few thought that this would be the only score made.

halted to let a player recover his breath. Cheer leaders found little response to the call for a song except when the tension was relaxed. In this respect the game stands out unique among the many which have been played here.

Before the game was begun, when the tens of thousands were pouring into the stands and the bands were playing, the songs were inspiring in their volume and melody.
