Sheriff Stevens and Deputies Will Make Effort to Recover Bodies Lost in Oregon Slough When Auto Plunges Off Trestle.

FEATURES OF THE AUTOMOBILE ACCIDENT. THE MISSING—Frisco Day, a Portland chauffeur, and Esther Mabel Monto, the divorced wife of James Monto, a Portland fireman.

Plunging 25 feet from the Vancouver trestle into the surging waters of Oregon Slough, a five-passenger touring automobile carried at least two occupants to death late Friday night.

The occupants of the car were Esther Mabel Monto, who went by the name of "Monte," and an automobile driver named Frisco Day. Mrs. Monto is the divorced wife of James Monto, a Portland fireman.

That there were more than the two killed in the long plunge is the belief of Ed Hollenbeck, who was in charge of the machine which now lies 65 feet below the surface of Oregon Slough.

Saloonkeeper Meets Couple. Frisco Day was last seen alive in Portland at about 11 o'clock Friday night.

Mr. Aldrich is not alone among the prominent party men of the state who believe the commoner will be forced into the fight as a candidate.

HOSTS PAY LAST TRIBUTE TO ROSE

Thousands See Blaze of Final Parade.

NOISE PANDEMONIUM REIGNS

Sway of Rex Oregonus Ends at Hour of Midnight.

RULER IS SEEN UNMASKED

Gleaming Floats Again Wind Through Streets Acclaimed by Cheers of Multitude—Weather Permits Fitting Finale.

With one last abandonment to noise of every description a few minutes before midnight, Portland's fourth annual Rose Festival ended.

Not including the reception of His Majesty, Festival week saw seven elaborate pageants, or parades. Three of these were at night and two of them particularly elaborate electric affairs.

The night parades were "The Spirit of the Golden West," an allegorical representation of the manufacturing interests and resources of Portland, and "The Dream of Rex Oregonus," the title of the two electric parades.

One of the most pleasing things of the week was the spontaneity with which the buildings and streets were decorated. Although the decorations were almost ruined by the rain Friday night, and every one of the hundreds of Chinese lanterns on Seventh street reduced to a pulp, the spirit of the thousands gathered on the streets did not suffer.

Clear Skies Follow Rain.

The overcast skies led many to believe there would be no parade, but the weather man prophesied fine weather and was able to make good his prophecy.

Although a great many visitors had left the city, for over an hour before the commencement of the parade the grandstand was filled with people; the streets were lined to a great depth; and every tall office building was black with people silhouetted in the white light from the windows.

It was thought the queens and princesses selected to ride on the gorgeously illuminated floats would be afraid of the cold. This was not the case. Nearly every one reported.

In the hope that there would be vacancies, ten applicants reported at Rose Festival offices for the position of every young woman in the parade.

Carnival Spirit Abroad.

Horns, ticklers and the ever-present serpentine were much used. Fortunately there was no near tragedy such as occurred Thursday night when a serpentine was ignited by an electric spark on the float of Don Quixote.

APOLOGY IS SENT BY BURGOMASTER

AMERICAN PUP CREATES INTERNATIONAL INCIDENT.

Koepenich Dogcatcher Is Official With Secretaries of Embassy and Loses Position.

BERLIN, June 11.—(Special.)—Irwin Laughlin, first secretary of the American Embassy, was recently on an automobile trip with the Turkish Ambassador to Germany, and Mr. Seymour, the secretary of the British Embassy, through the famous suburb of Koepenich, where William Voigt, the cobbler, played the part of an army captain and held up the burgomaster and other officials.

Mr. Laughlin had an amusing experience in the town. His Pomeranian pup jumped out of the car. He was not muzzled, in accordance with German regulations, so Mr. Laughlin went after him. A wordy war ensued between Mr. Laughlin and the dogcatcher. The Secretary of the Embassy gave his name and position to the municipal official and paid him a fine of three marks for violation of the muzzling regulations. The dogcatcher was obdurate. He began climbing into the car to seize the dog.

The Embassy made formal representations to the Foreign Office on the subject and a satisfactory letter of apology was received from the burgomaster of Koepenich, and he said that the over-zealous dogcatcher would be dismissed.

KANSAS WHEAT DEFENDED

"First Quality" Not Necessarily Misbrand, Says Witness.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., June 11.—The contention of the Government that no flour made from Kansas wheat could be truthfully branded as coming from it to be good.

In charging misbranding in this case, the Government averred that Kansas wheat contained from 10 to 20 per cent of yellow berry, and that flour made from it could not be first-class.

"I have seen wheat that contained 80 per cent of yellow berry," testified Barnard, "yet I considered the flour from it to be good."

Barnard further said he did not consider that the color of a flour would prove anything as to the quality of bread it would make.

SENATE WRANGLES OVER TARIFF AGAIN

Sundry Civil Bill Provision Starts Debate.

BEST EVER, ALDRICH REPEATS

Rhode Islander and Beveridge Continue Their Contentions.

BAITING STIRS UP HEYBURN

Senator Hale's Plea to Cummins "Not to Wind Him Up Again," Causes Idaho Man's Ire to Rise—Debate Not Finished.

WASHINGTON, June 11.—Large amounts of politics were mixed up with the debate on the sundry civil bill today, and it was all over the tariff.

In the sundry civil bill was a provision for $250,000 with which to enable the President to investigate the operation of the present tariff law.

Many Senators took part in the discussion precipitated, and Senator Clay, of Georgia, started the fireworks by charging that the measure was intended to delude the insurgent Republicans into the belief that there was to be another revision of the tariff, which he tried to prove by Republican Senators, with some measure of success.

Aldrich and Bailey in Controversy.

Senator Bailey, in supporting him, succeeded in bringing Senator Aldrich to a defense of the tariff, and the latter dragged in Senator Beveridge. The Indiana Senator and the Rhode Island Senator found opportunity to thresh over their old controversy over the authorship of the investigation provision of the Payne-Aldrich tariff bill, but with the result that each held to his original contention.

Mr. Aldrich declared that he and he alone had been responsible for the provision. While claiming credit for the tariff commission bill of last session, the Indiana Senator asserted that but for the general agitation resulting from that bill, there never would have been an investigation clause in the present bill.

Regulars Fear No Revision.

Mr. Aldrich said he desired the information the $250,000 would elicit a justification of the present law, which he and numerous Republican Senators pronounced the best tariff law that ever was placed on the statute books.

Senators Bailey and Johnston made reference to the telegram sent by Senator Beveridge to Senator Clapp after the close of the Indianapolis convention, in which the Indiana Senator was quoted as saying he "had kicked the stomach of the tariff bill."

Mr. Johnston construed this language to mean that Mr. Beveridge had "disturbed the epidemics in the abdominal region of the tariff."

"Winding Up" Heyburn Resented.

Mr. Heyburn was among the speakers and Mr. Hale called forth the epithet of "insolent" from the Idaho Senator by appealing to Senator Cummins "not to wind him up again," when the Iowa Senator sought to interrupt his Idaho colleague.

The fact appearing that various Senators still desired to be heard, Senator Hale reluctantly moved an adjournment without reaching a vote on either Senator Clay's motion to strike out the provision or on the final passage of the sundry civil bill.

The Senator from Maine expressed deep regret that an appropriation bill should be the occasion for such a political debate.

Mr. Clay declared the tariff provision to be clearly political. He repeated that there was no necessity for

MRS. SAGE AIDS BIRD FUND

Special Effort Will Be Made to Protect Robins in South.

NEW YORK, June 11.—(Special.)—Mrs. Russell Sage today gave $10,000 to the National Association of Audubon Societies for its work in the South.

The $10,000 is to be used in educational work in Georgia, Florida, Alabama, North Carolina and South Carolina along the general lines of work of the association, whose object is to protect wild birds and animals. The $500 was given to start a special robin protective fund, which the association is raising in an effort to protect the robin from extermination in this country.

According to T. G. Pearson, secretary of the association, the fondness of some Southerners for robin pie is reducing the number of birds of this species to an alarming extent. The association hopes to obtain the enactment of laws in the Southern states which will protect birds.

WOMAN PUT IN TRUNK ALIVE

Deaths of Mrs. Charlton and Miss Reid Are Connected.

HUSBAND IS NOT FOUND

Third Degree in Russian Being Administered to Spolotoff—Great Weight of Trunk Indicates Slayer Had Accomplice.

MILAN, June 11.—(Special.)—A post-mortem examination has been held in the presence of the King's procurator in the case of Mrs. Porter Charlton, whose body was found in a trunk in Lake Como yesterday.

The examination was conducted in secret and lasted three hours. In addition to seven blows on her head, which were not mortal, the surgeons discovered an ugly wound on the face which had broken the nasal bone and disfigured the woman's features. The doctors ascertained that the woman had been shut up alive in the trunk and had died of suffocation.

Husband Not Traced.

The efforts of the police to track Porter Charlton, the woman's youthful husband, have been fruitless. The police have ascertained that Charlton and his wife dined at the Hotel Room, on June 2 and 3. Charlton later on June 5 returned to the hotel alone and bought a bottle of brandy, which he took away with him. He returned to the hotel on June 6 and said that Mrs. Charlton was ill.

Spolotoff persists in his denial that he saw the American later than June 3, but the police have collected evidence that he was in their company on June 6. Several witnesses declare that they saw Charlton on June 8 take a midnight train for Lugano. He had a ticket for Lugano and Lucerne and the police believe that he went to London.

Accomplice Is Suspected.

The villa that was occupied by the couple at Moltrasio has been examined. The police found a bloodstained mattress. They suspect the murderer threw his victim over the bed and stunned her, after which he placed her body in the trunk. The police weighed the body and trunk and found they reached a total of 140 pounds. This leads them to believe the murderer could not have carried them to the lake unaided, hundreds of persons have been examined without obtaining any important evidence.

The police have found a scrapbook containing press clippings collected by Mary Castle, familiar papers relating to her father's contract with Robert Ferguson's company, a life insurance policy, a certificate of marriage with Neville H. Castle, documents relating to her divorce and her photographs, signed Mamie. All the papers are being translated.

Arrest Believed Important.

The police attach great importance to the arrest of Spolotoff, who draws a pension from the government. He lived at Reggiano and Acazio, in Swiss territory, and crossed the frontier daily. He is suspected of smuggling sugar and coffee from Switzerland. He speaks English fluently, and to this fact is due his acquaintance with the Americans.

Spolotoff was in Moltrasio on Monday and told a chemist that his pension had been increased, and he showed rings he had recently purchased. Italian detectives believe that the rings belonged to the murdered woman. He is being put through the third degree in Russian, and it is hoped to obtain a confession from him.

Charlton wrote a letter to Spolotoff
