GIRL FOUND; $3660 GONE

UNKNOWN SISTER OF OTTO PANNIER LOCATED IN EAST.

Heirs of Portland Man Who Died on Board Barge in 1904, Never Received Judgment Money.

Discovery of an unknown sister of Otto Pannier, who lost his life in 1904, in an accident aboard a barge belonging to the Oregon Round Lumber Company and which was sailing a ship of the Asiatic Steamship Company in putting to sea, yesterday led to the investigation of a search of the court records as to what became of the sum of $3660, which was paid into the United States Court in satisfaction of the judgment which the Oregon Round Lumber Company paid. It is charged by Assistant City Attorney Benbow that the heirs of Pannier have never received the money, and his statement is supported by the fact that the administrator of the estate has never filed an accounting of what he did with the funds. The case has been pending in the County Court for six years. Pannier was an unknown laborer in Portland when he lost his life aboard the barge in 1904. B. D. Straubal, at that time a resident of Portland, made application to be appointed administrator of the estate, which was valued at $11, according to the report submitted to the County Court. With the permission of the County Court, Administrator Straubal secured the services of Attorney H. H. Riddell, and a suit was begun in the Federal court for the recovery of the life services of Pannier. After a trial a judgment was rendered in favor of the administrator for $3660. At that time the defendant companies appeared in court and satisfied the judgment, which was released by Attorney Riddell, and appears in his handwriting on the margin of the record of the judgment. After securing the cash it appears that no further report of the estate was made to the County Court, and that soon thereafter Straubal went to Alaska. The case still appears on the court docket for final settlement. Attorney Riddell was yesterday insistent upon the claim that he had delivered the money to Straubal, but admitted his negligence in failing to secure a receipt. "I suppose I should have followed the case through the County Court, and looked after the disposition of the money. I did not do so, and really thought that everything would be all right after I portioned the money between the administrator and myself. I took the case on a contingent fee, and was entitled to 50 per cent of the judgment. "I do not know where Administrator Straubal is at this time. The last I heard of him he was in Alaska. I will try to get him back here immediately, and cause a settlement of the Pannier estate to be made." Attorney Benbow, who was retained by the sister of Pannier, the latter being a resident of Newark, N. J., was reluctant to discuss the case. "We have been unable to find Mr. Straubal, the administrator, to secure his side of the case, but we hope to have him in Portland within the next three days," said Mr. Benbow.

MID-OREGON MAN WINS

CENTRAL STATE DRY FARMER CAPTURES SIX PRIZES.

Only Beaver Delegate to Spokane Congress, Tillman Reuter, Proves Zone's Wealth.

What is considered the best boost Central Oregon has received since the Oregon Trunk and Oregon Central began construction on their lines, is the record made by Tillman Reuter, of Madras, who won five sweepstakes prizes at the National Dry Farming Congress at Spokane recently. In competition with all the prominent dry-farming districts west of the Mississippi, Mr. Reuter, the only delegate from Oregon, took first prizes on wheat grain, vegetables, onions, corn and alfalfa. Where Mr. Reuter's farm is located in Crook County the annual rainfall is light, being around ten inches. A few years ago Mr. Reuter adopted the methods of dry farming advanced by Professor Campbell and his efforts along improved lines of cultivation soon produced attractive results. The quality of products raised by Mr. Reuter, as shown by the exhibit pictures for Spokane, is considered the best that can be raised by the dry-farming system. "I consider that Mr. Reuter's success is one of the great achievements for Central Oregon," said Don P. Rea yesterday. "His work will open up a great field for dry farming in the central part of the state, where thousands of acres hitherto considered worthless for grazing purposes, can be made highly productive by using the dry-farming system." The showing made by Mr. Reuter has been brought to the attention of the Portland Chamber of Commerce. It is planned to bring Mr. Reuter to Portland soon to give a demonstration of the work he has been doing on his farm. Efforts will be made to secure the display made by Mr. Reuter at Spokane and install it among the permanent exhibits at the Chamber of Commerce.

THREE LOST IN HILLS

COLVILLE PEOPLE SEEK MOTHER AND TWO DAUGHTERS.

Search for Lost Horses Ends in Seekers Becoming Lost in Wild, Tree-Clad Hills.

SPOKANE, Oct. 29.—Many eager searchers are tramping over the wild mountain section about Lost Spring, 15 miles north of Spokane, in the hope of finding Mrs. L. St. Clark and her two daughters, aged 6 and 15 years. Leaving their ranch home, six miles south of Colville yesterday at 10 o'clock to hunt their horses, they have not been heard from since. When they did not return last night, the entire neighborhood was aroused to engage in the hunt. Word was sent to Colville and a large searching party was formed. Another party started from Arden Hill. The searchers succeeded in following the three to Lost Spring, where all trace was lost. It is believed they became confused in the wild, rough section and are wandering about in the forest. The situation is rendered more serious by a threatening snow storm.

OBJECTS TO HOME RULE

Dr. C. T. Wilson Says Measure Should Not Pass.

PORTLAND, Or., Oct. 29.—(To the Editor.)—The article on the "Home Rule" bill in the Oregonian and also the letter by the Attorney-General on the meaning of the measure were very helpful to voters who must decide on the merits of the bill. The two points made were that its adoption "would not exempt cities and towns from the operation of the constitution and criminal laws of the state"; and second, it "would not exempt cities from the operation of the local option law within said corporate limits." These two points are admitted by the forces opposing this bill. The points that we are making against the proposed amendment are: First, to give cities and towns exclusive power to license, regulate and control the liquor traffic within their limits is to annul all present restrictions upon said traffic now on the statute books of Oregon. We have a law against selling liquor to minors, against selling to inebriated while intoxicated, against having women in saloons, against selling liquor on election day, against selling on Sundays. All these would be annulled so far as cities and corporate towns are concerned, and we should be left in all towns of Oregon under the restrictions as we could get in the form of ordinances passed by the several City Councils. Second, We are claiming that this amendment is unjust from the dollar viewpoint, in that a corporate city takes all the license money for its city treasury, but leaves the county with the expense of maintaining the Circuit Courts, the jails, almshouses, etc., to be supported by rural taxpayers; and

PROPERTY OWNERS OF NORTH ALBINA HAVE BEEN SAVED $27,000 BECAUSE GLAZED CEMENT SEWER PIPE HAS MADE REAL COMPETITION.

The City of Portland yesterday morning signed the first contract for the construction of a district sewer with cement pipe (power-tamping process). March 17 bids were advertised for the Riverside district sewer. Terra cotta pipe was specified. The City Engineer's estimate was announced as $159,847.01. And with no competition in material, contractors' bids at that time were almost invariably equal to or above the estimate; for instance, the bid on the Brooklyn sewer was $83,000 above the estimate, while the lowest bid on the Holgate extension was $15,896.74 over the City Engineer's estimate. Property owners, tired of paying tribute to the Pipe Trust, demanded competition. A six months' fight against the threatening competitor, Glazed Cement Pipe, was the result. Last week Glazed Cement Pipe won on its merits. Note This—The successful bid for the Riverside district was $132,000—a difference of $27,000 under the original estimated cost. That sum has been saved the property owners.
