of his name to appear in the prize ring woords of late years Tommy hoots at the likes that he is a "has been" and de. clares that he is still in the game, As a clincher of this argument Tommy will appear before Portland fans this week as the mentor of Multhomah Amateur Athletic Club youths aspiring to amateur title honors. Taking the old say ing "By a man's works shall he be known," Tommy expects to disprove the "has been" theory by turning loose a few Northwest champions in the Pa-rific Northwest Association's boxing tilts of Wednesday and Thursday

While it has been eight years since he retired from the ring, laying aside the lightweight mitts after his defeat at the hands of Joe Gans in Portland, Temmy did not sever his connection with the sport, but donned the heavier gloves of the training camp and turned als attention to developing ring mix-ologists. He is the best-known boxing instructor on the Pacific Coast today, and has a reputation for ring wisdom that has caused his services to be sought by champions as well as embryonic stars, and now, at the age of 10 years, is imparting a little of the tore accumulated in many rings to members of Multhomah Club.

But he was far from a tender youth physically, his debut going the mar-athon route of 46 rounds. He was to get $25 for winning, but as the affair was a draw the promoters refused to give the youngsters a "bob" for court electron

But the lad was not to be turned mile by financial arguments and he missile by financial arguments and he missile by financial arguments and he missile front, first winning 126-pound tourneys, and then jumping into the 145-pound class, until, at the age of Ii years, seven years after his bare-pound intintion he was the undisknuckle initiation, he was the undis-puted weiterweight champion of Aus-traila.
