Cruikshank, Myers and Bennett Keep Up Batting Average and Several Pitchers Are Hanging Near to Top of Column.

The last few weeks of Northwestern League baseball have reduced the squad of .200 regular swatters to four, which Meek, the roly-poly Victoria backstop, still leads by a good margin. Following Meek's 367 figure comes that of Norman Cruiksbank, of Portland, 336, with "Hap" Myers, of Spokane, 318, and "Pug" Bennett, of Vancouver, 313, the other members of the envied division. Jackson, of Seattle; Powell, of Spo-kane, and Mahoney, of the Portland Colts, have started off with a spurt which may keep them in the 300 rank, while several pitchers have been whansing away at a clip that keeps
