FULTON LAUDS PRESIDENT

In Address at Medford ex-Senator Opposes Bourne's Re-election.

MEDFORD, Or., Oct. 26.—(Special.)— Charles W. Fulton, ex-United States Senator from Oregon, delivered a strong address this afternoon in Haymarket Square in favor of the election of President Taft and opposing the return of Jonathan Bourne to the United States Senate. In spite of the Inciement weather a good crowd listened to the speaker's remarks and he was often interrupted by applause.

Mr. Fulton declared President Taft, because he did not make the noise that the American people have become ac-customed to associating with the Presi-dential office, was unjustly regarded as an executive who had not accomplished much in the way of progressive reform. As a matter of fact, said the speaker, President Taft has a record of constructive and progressive statesmanship which not only entitles him to the supwhich not only entitles him to the support of the Republican party, but entitles him to a place among our greatest American Presidents. In confirmation of this ex-Senator Fulton reviewed the achievements of the past four years, touching upon the arbitration treaties, the reduction in the tariff, the taking of the tariff from politics, free tolls for American ships through the taking of the tariff from politics, free tolls for American ships through the Pansma canal, free competition be-tween raliroads and water routes, and his calm deliberation and skillful diplomacy in both domestic and foreign

Senator Bourne, declared the speaker, had not only violated the spirit and let-ter of the direct primary law, which he professed to champion, but was by character and political record unfitted to represent this stare at Washington. He declared the present Republican Senator a corruptionist and a traitor to the Republican party and the people of the state.

The crowd seemed to be about equally the state.

PEASE ADVANCES PLANS

Candidate for County Commissioner Replies to Rivals.

Too much politics in county affairs at the expense of the people was a point discussed by Lute Pease, candidate for County Commissioner, in a talk at Seventh and Washington streets last night. Mr. Pease urged the necessity of more progressive and upto-date county business methods, referring to such examples as the purchase of county supplies at retail prices, arbitrary letting of contracts, the unexplained and covert sale of county property at far less than its value and the employment and discharge of men for political reasons without regard to competence. He said that county records should be experted once a year, the expert to be a man qualified to act as an "efficiency" Little Melvin Strong Mourned.

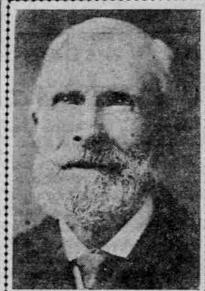

The crowd seemed to be about equally wilded between the speakers applanted when he sanounced that Mr. U'Ren, after several adays of urging, had finally complete statement of the money received a domitor that was about $17,000 and admitted that the Ladds and Corbetts and other rich men had contributed to the fund. spoke of the County Commissioners' relation to problems dealing directly with humanity and urged that a systematic plan be advised for meeting the annual Winter question of what to do with the army of jobless men. The problem of the "chronic drunks." he thought, can best be met by providing a Keely cure department, at slight expense. In connection with the county hospital and its medical staff. In conclusion the speaker said that he had been a taxpayer in Multnomah County for years, notwithstanding statements to the contrary, said to be made by his opponent. W. L. Lightner, and denounced as a cheap campaign falsehood the latter's charge that Mr. Pease didn't "pay his bills," challenging anyone to produce an unpaid bill of his.
