

DR. SEELY DAY'S SPEAKER SOUGHT FOR TENTH

Wider Thoroughfare Between Stark and Hoyt to North Bank Depot Is Plan.

CAR SERVICE ALSO TALKED

Passenger Traffic to Hill Line Depot Compelled Now to Go by Way of Third Street—More Lights on Street Are Wanted.

At a meeting at the Commercial Club last week Tenth-street property owners discussed the widening of that street, now 60 feet, from Stark to Hoyt streets, to make it conform to greater Tenth street, now 80 feet in width from Stark street south across the city, and to complete the whole street as a thoroughfare to the North Bank station.

It was argued that present congestion of the Hill lines with their Eastern, Puget Sound and Astoria passenger trains in addition to their Oregon Electric lines, and their heavy freight traffic, would soon compel the construction of a large modern station, and that it would likely be built between Tenth and Twelfth streets, in its present location, because the Hill lines own there such a large amount of property.

It was also contended that the size of such an improvement would demand wider streets and a real thoroughfare, as well as a local car service to enable people to go quickly and comfortably to and from the center of the city, the only cars now reaching the North Bank station being routed via Third and Fifth streets, thus compelling the large downtown population to go away around the city to get to its destination at serious inconvenience and loss of time.

Early Concession Feared. It was shown that many people, rather than go the roundabout way, were walking up Tenth, Eleventh or Twelfth streets, carrying their valises and bundles, and that a local car service was almost a positive necessity. It was also pointed out that the broad gauge tracks now used by the Oregon Electric line, and to be used later by the Heuser Interurban lines, and very probably by the United Railways from Twelfth street through Flanders and Tenth streets and back through the city via Salmon, Fourth and Flanders streets, would be so congested with service of large cars that the present narrow street would not carry them without serious detriment to the abutting property.

It was argued that both the Heuser Interurban and United Railway cars would need more space to make a satisfactory turn from Flanders into Tenth street and that widening Tenth street at Burnside street would greatly facilitate the turning there of local cars, which it was agreed must in the very near future bring East Side passengers up Burnside street and through Tenth street direct to Washington street and the upper part of the city.

More Street Lights Needed. The darkness of the street all the way to the station and of other streets in the vicinity was generally complained of, and it was the sense of the meeting that something should be done at once to make the street not only safe for travel at night, but bright and attractive with cluster lights as any other street in the city. This lighting, it was argued, would not only attract travel to the station, but would make local car service necessary to take care of increased business, which must soon follow. The central Tenth street is now one of the main streets of the city. Broadway and its widening and lighting were also discussed as an object lesson, and it was argued that widening and lighting Tenth street and making it a real thoroughfare might even induce the railroad company to hurry the construction of its station.

The extension of Tenth street through to the river was also considered, there being no North and South street through to the river for many blocks on either side. The general discussion brought to the attention of widening of this street, but E. C. Goddard, Isaac Sweet and W. P. Sinclair were appointed a committee to ascertain the cost of thoroughly lighting the street, and E. J. Ferguson, C. H. Labbe and Adolph Colson, a committee to look up the feasibility of extending the street to the river.

DR. SEELY DAY'S SPEAKER Referred Measures Also Will Be Discussed at Y. M. O. A. Today.

Arguments in favor of sustaining the University of Oregon appropriations will be advanced at the regular men's meeting in the auditorium of the Young Men's Christian Association today at 3:15 P. M. The speaker will be Eugene Brooks, who has been taking an active part in the fight in favor of the university. It will be the second legislative matter to be taken up at the Y. M. O. A., Frank B. Riley having spoken yesterday in favor of the Columbia River bridge.

The main address of the day will be delivered by Rev. Boudnot Seelye, of Rice City Park Presbyterian Church. His subject will be "What the Doctor Said." There will be special music, including selections by the University of Oregon quartet.

Before the meeting there will be an informal social from 2:30 to 3:15. This is a new feature at the association and has been popular in the past two weeks. Another successful innovation is the night song service from 9:30 to 10:15. This is intended particularly for young men who are making their homes in hotels and rooming-houses and strangers in the city. Other features of today's program will be the discussion classes, immediately after the afternoon programme, and the fellowship supper following these classes.

Lents May Be in Darkness. Unless the city takes action soon, Lents may be left in darkness. The 30 arc lights that citizens there contracted for may be turned off at any time by the Portland Light & Power Company. The lights were secured through the work of Mrs. Thekla Bright, with the understanding that the responsibility of the people would cease when the place was annexed to Portland. Since June 1 the Lents people have paid no bills for the light and assert that the responsibility rests with the city, but nothing has been done. The company has threatened to turn off the lights unless something is done at once.

PARENT-TEACHER CLUBS WILL EDUCATE BY MAIL

Programmes of Organization Include Lecture Courses on Child Welfare, Hygiene, Practical Biology, Civics and Kindred Subjects.

BY EDITH KNIGHT HOLMES.
The wonderful growth of the Parent-Teacher Clubs in Oregon, and the statewide interest taken by the Oregon women in the work of the Congress of Mothers have created demands for programmes and lecture courses on subjects pertaining to child welfare, hygiene, practical biology, civics and kindred subjects. At the meeting of the Portland Parent-Teacher circles held in the library last week, Mrs. F. S. Myers, president, suggested that some plan be devised whereby suitable programmes could be furnished and that a bureau of programmes would be most helpful.

Mrs. Aristine Felts and her board have taken up the matter, and as a result of their interest and of that of other leaders in child-welfare work, courses in biology, hygiene and psychology are to be worked out by Dr. Clifton H. Hodge, Dr. Bertha Stewart and Dr. George Robert. These courses will be available to those who wish to take them by correspondence, to groups of students or clubs, and are especially planned for the benefit of the Congress of Mothers.

The courses are to be made the most practical and vital of anything of the line attempted in this state. They are not to be made merely reading courses, but will be laboratory courses, the materials to be used in and about the home for practical working out of everyday problems.

Suggestions Are Outlined. Among the suggestions for the outlining of the courses, the subject of "The Conservation of the Child," are: Eugenics, heredity, practical care of infants, sleep, feeding, growth, prevention of common infections, the physical and mental development. This course is intended for mothers.

Under "Biology and Home Sanitation," there will be ready grasp them subjects as "Essential factors of a healthful home, location, open-air-features, construction, control of flies, mosquitoes and other insects," and "Water supplies, social hygiene, civic control of contagious diseases and other subjects will be considered in making up the courses."

Subjects in Demand. Now that the leading women of the community are becoming identified with the clubs and parent-teacher organizations these subjects are in demand for discussion. They will be presented in such a practical and simple style that all will readily grasp them.

The child study courses will contain lectures and workable suggestions on special, industrial and vocational schools. They will treat of the exceptional child and of the standards of moral development.

More detailed announcement of subjects under series II will be made later. It is desired to make these courses permit and encourage widely varied specialization, and so cover the biological, physical and social sciences—forestry, ornithology, entomology, botany, ichthyology, bacteriology, and so on. At present it is especially desired that the course be of a practical, logical nature study and civic biology.

This week holds many interesting events for the women of the city. The Portland Shakespeare Study Club will be busy at work studying and analyzing "Othello." The Corvallis Club will meet Tuesday; Chapter E. P. E. O. sisterhood also will meet Tuesday; the Women's Political Science Club will meet at the library and the Tuesday Afternoon Club will be entertained at the home of Mrs. Robert Smith, 999 East Tenth street. The programme for this meeting will be given by Mrs. W. Laber, Mrs. G. A. Johnson and Mrs. W. L. Marshall. The Shakespeare department will meet at the home of Mrs. W. R. Glendening and Mrs. S. Hetzel were guests of the club.

UGLY MEN PREFERRED, SAYS PRETTY ACTRESS
Homely Members of Sterner Sex Represent Distinct Forces, Declares June Keith, Recognized Beauty Coming in "Stop, Thief."

JUNE KEITH, a well-known foot-light favorite and a member of the "Stop Thief" company, at the Helig Theater next week, pretty generally acknowledged to be one of the most beautiful women on the stage, claims that the only real happiness for a beautiful woman lies in decidedly plain-looking men.

"Attractiveness," she said recently, "with a whimsical little smile, 'is always what a woman seeks in a man, not beauty. I presume it is human nature to undervalue what we already possess. I have never known a beautiful woman who really cared much about her beauty; living with it as a daily companion, she comes to slight it and underestimate it. She knows that it is her friend. She knows that it will help her get on. But her usual thoughts about it are not flattering ones and when she observes it in a man she is not particularly interested. She merely demands that a man have distinct charm."

"Women admire ugly men because they represent distinct forces in the world. The men who have done the marvelous things are never 'pretty' men. Ugly men, or at least men who are not handsome, are most likely to get on in the world. The very intensity of their efforts sharpens their faces and causes them to be brusque."

Charles R. Davis Sues Pullman Company for Remarks to Him.
The price placed by Charles R. Davis, sales manager of the Davis-Scott Belt-ling Company, of Portland, on the damage done his feelings by an official of the Pullman Company at Seattle last July, is an even $5000. The damage was done by remarks addressed to Davis by the Pullman official, according to Davis' complaint, filed in United States District Court, and asking damages for a total of $5076.10.
Davis, the complaint alleges, was robbed of $50 when in a Pullman sleeping car between Portland and Seattle, and the remarks that wounded his sensibilities were addressed to him when he laid his case before the Pullman official on his arrival at Seattle. For expenses incurred in waiting in Seattle for funds, he asks $15, and $110 is for telegraph tolls in securing funds.
