

AMERICAN COLONY STIRRED TO ANGER

Residents of London Would Call on Country to Protect Its Own Citizens.

"STRICT ACCOUNT" URGED

Drowning of Large Number of People Declared Not to Stand Alone.
Situation of Utmost Gravity Is Predicted.

LONDON, May 8.—(Special.)—Dismay and anger almost baffling speech prevail throughout the American colony in London because of the sinking of the Lusitania by a German submarine. Leading Americans here favor holding a great mass meeting and passing resolutions calling on the Government of the United States to protect its citizens traveling by sea.

"We cannot see any escape from the duty of holding Germany to strict accountability," said Harry G. Selfridge, formerly of Chicago, but now a leading merchant in London. "In common, I think, with most Americans, I have always approved President Wilson's policy of neutrality, though I had no doubt that 98 per cent of our people regarded Germany as guilty of precipitating a peculiarly wicked war of conquest."

Allies Prefer Neutral America.
"Many letters reaching me from America show that the writers imagine that the allies are depressed, hysterical and anxious for the United States to come to their aid. Those who have any understanding know that there are many substantial reasons why the allies would wish America to persist in her neutrality."

"Even now I wish it were possible to think that we could get over the Lusitania horror without war but how can we? The sinking of this ship, resulting in the drowning of a large number of our people—perfectly innocent neutrals—does not stand alone. Germany not only abuses us in its newspapers, but flouts the formal and friendly representations of our President, and it has attacked our ships whenever it was possible."

Grave Situation Depleted.
"What we confront is a crescendo of indignities and injuries, culminating in the sinking and cold-blooded crime ever committed by a civilized nation. American opinion, in my judgment, will force President Wilson to address Germany in severe terms. Germany, if I am not mistaken, far from asking forgiveness or displaying much humility or concern over what it has done, will contend she acted within her rights and will leave Mr. Wilson to do what he pleases. This undoubtedly a situation of the utmost gravity will be created."

How responsible British public men feel about the destruction of the Lusitania and the suffering and loss of life involved may be judged from these remarks made today by one of them: "We deeply deplore the fact that Americans were maimed and drowned because of an attack on a British ship and our heartfelt sympathy goes out to all homes shadowed by this calamity."

Sacrifice Perhaps Not Vain.
"It seems to us that the world will learn much from what has happened. The Germans could deny that they committed atrocities in Louvain, Dinant, Termonde and other places they could deny that their armies systematically attacked women and girls in Belgium and France and they cannot deny that they sank the Lusitania."

"Men guilty of such an act presumably would be guilty of the worst conceivable cruelties and abominations. Speaking for myself, I have the impression that the persons who perished with the Lusitania have not died in vain, but have been sacrificed that the world might know the true nature of the militarist caste attempting to crush democracy."

EMBASSY NEWS OFFICIAL

Sir Edward Grey Says Two Torpedoes May Have Done Damage.

WASHINGTON, May 8.—First official information of the sinking of the Lusitania reached the British Embassy from London today in a cablegram from Sir Edward Grey, timed 11:30 A. M. today. The cablegram says:

"Following is the latest official information with regard to the loss of the Lusitania, torpedoed by German submarines, off the Head of Kinsale, May 7. Torpedo-boats, steamers and armed trawlers have landed 658 survivors and 45 dead. It is possible that Kinsale fishing boats may have a few more. An armed trawler and fishing trawlers are bringing in 100 other bodies. Only a few first-class passengers were saved. Ship sank in from 15 to 25 minutes, and it was reported she was struck by two torpedoes."

TUMULTY RAPS GARDNER

Office Resents Being Used as "Annex to Press Bureau."

WASHINGTON, May 8.—Representative Gardner, while at the White House today getting permission for some constituents to visit the parlors of the mansion, issued a statement on the Lusitania disaster urging that President Wilson deal firmly with Germany, and giving his ideas of what Colonel Roosevelt would do.

When Secretary Tumulty heard of it he issued a statement saying the White House resented Mr. Gardner's "using the executive office as an annex to his press bureau."

Kendall Interests Incorporated.

ROSEBURG, Or., May 8.—(Special.)—Articles of incorporation have been filed by the Kendall Lumber Corporation, with capital stock of $1,000,000. As soon as Mr. Kendall arrives from the East the organization will be perfected. The new corporation was organized for the purpose of merging Kendall Bros.' holdings in this state into one corporation.

Suitcase Act Violators Jailed.

ROSEBURG, Or., May 8.—(Special.)—Royce Jones and Freeman Baldwin, of Roseburg, were today sentenced to a term of 12 days in the County Jail after they had pleaded guilty of violating the so-called suitcase liquor ordinance. At the time the young men were arrested the officers confiscated 25 bottles of beer. In a subsequent search of Jones'

AMERICA LINER SAILS

The Philadelphia Has 940 Passengers Off for Liverpool.

NEW YORK, May 8.—The American liner Philadelphia, sailing for Liverpool today over the route traveled by the Lusitania, steamed away with full cabins and with berths in the stowage at a premium. The usual scenes of animation at the pier were replaced, however, by an atmosphere more subdued and sober.

ITALY, TOO, IS INDIGNANT

Sinking of Lusitania Causes High
Feeling in Rome Today.

ROME, via London, May 8.—The sinking of the Lusitania has caused a profound impression in Italy. The feeling in Rome is one of indignation at the killing of neutrals. Measures to end such proceedings are being urged on all sides.

Stars and Stripes Relied On.

The American liner Philadelphia steamed today with cabins full. Persons pointed to the Stars and Stripes floating at the liner's stern when the possibility of danger was suggested to them.

What was taken in shipping as an indication that the German Government had no intention of abating its programme of torpedoing British ships from American ports was the reappearance in the newspapers today of the advertisement of the German Embassy, warning travelers that they took passage on British ships at their own risk. It was reported that the advertisement would appear regularly every Saturday in the future.

Count von Bernstorff, the German Ambassador, was at his hotel in New York today, but remained in seclusion. A guard stood at the entrance to his suite and all messages of inquiry were refused. It was given out by the hotel management that he had left for Washington.

streak in the water and shouted: "There's a torpedo, coming straight at us." We watched it until it struck us, with an awful explosion. Then we rushed to the boat deck. Just as we got there a huge quantity of wood splinters and great masses of water flew all around us.

Woman Frenzied With Fear.
"A second torpedo struck us about four minutes after the first. I went below to get a life belt and met a woman who was frenzied with fear. I tried to calm her and helped her into a boat. Then I saw a boat which was nearly swamped. I got into it, and with other men bailed it out. Then a crowd of men clambered into it and nearly swamped it."

DUNSMUIR SOUGHT SERVICE

Son of Former British Columbia Official Anxious to Go to War.

VANCOUVER, B. C., May 8.—James Dunsmuir, Jr., of Victoria, lost on the Lusitania, was a son of James Dunsmuir, Lieutenant-Governor of British Columbia from 1904 to 1910. Enlisting for service overseas with a Western cavalry regiment, he became tired of delay in being sent forward and decided to go to England in the hope of being attached to one of the regiments likely to be dispatched to France almost immediately.

the government. Indeed, it is said that at the time she was carrying military reservists to England for service in the British army. True, there were American citizens aboard, but it must not be forgotten that they went aboard a beligerent ship with full knowledge of the risk and after official warning by the German government. When on board a British vessel they were on British soil. Was not their position substantially equivalent to being within the walls of a fortified city?

Gulf Light Case More Serious.
"I express no opinion at this time. I am merely suggesting reasons why we should maintain our equilibrium and not 'rock the boat' until we know what we are about."

"Aside from the possible loss of American lives, let us ask ourselves just where we come in. At the present moment, and with the light now before me, I confess that it appears to me that from our standpoint as a neutral Nation the Gulf Light case presents a more delicate and serious complication than the case of the Lusitania."

"We are informing ourselves as rapidly as possible regarding the Lusitania matter," said Secretary Bryan today, "and we are doing what we can for those injured. We will get all information we can."

SOME MAIL MISSES BOAT

Actual Loss to Banks by Lusitania's
Sinking Will Not Be Great, Say Officers—Parcel Post and Expressage Is Light.

CHICAGO, May 8.—(Special.)—In the strong box of the Lusitania at the bottom of the sea off the Irish coast is approximately $5,000,000 of money, foreign exchange and other valuables belonging to Chicagoans. Of this, $3,500,000 consists of foreign exchange belonging to the First National Bank. This paper, however, was largely duplicated before it left the bank and it is not expected that the actual loss will be great.

Had the postoffice department not prescribed shortly before the Lusitania's departure that all mails intended for her be especially directed to the ship, the amount of Chicago treasure aboard her would have been much greater. In addition to this fact two large Chicago banks—the Illinois Trust & Savings and the Continental & Commercial National Bank—are compensating themselves for the bulk of their mails missed the boat.

Postmaster Campbell said today that it was impossible to tell how much in the way of money-orders issued by the Chicago postoffice was on board. He said it was impossible to determine this because many persons purchasing foreign orders do not dispatch them immediately. He believes that little parcel post mail was on board.

Chicago officials of the foreign departments of the Adams and American Express Companies expressed the be-

A Simple Way to Remove Dandruff

There is one sure way that has never failed to remove dandruff at once, and that is to dissolve it; then you destroy it entirely. To do this, just get about four ounces of plain, common liquid arvon from any drug store (this is all you will need), apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

By morning most, if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and three or four more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it, no matter how much dandruff you may have. You will find all itching and digging of the scalp will stop instantly and your hair will be fluffy, lustrous, glossy, silky and soft and look and feel a hundred times better.—Adv.

British Admiralty Says Submarine Reported Sunk Is Safe.

LONDON, May 8.—The British Admiralty tonight issued the following official statement: "The statement published recently by the German authorities that a British submarine had been sunk in an encounter with a German airship is false. 'On the contrary, the submarine has now returned uninjured and reports that she damaged the airship by gunfire and drove her off.'"
