WAR INCENTIVE BRINGS MEN OF NATION TO ATTENTION OF NEWSPAPER PHOTOGRAPHERS

J. Ogden Armour Volunteers to Assist in Food Conservation—Newcomb Carlton Heads Great Telegraph System Which May Be Taken Over by Government as War Measure.

W. Barclay Parsons, Herman Lagercrantz, Gen. Sir Douglas Haig

Col. Tarnowski, J. Ogden Armour, Newcomb Carlton

J. OGDEN ARMOUR, head of the great house of Armour, of Chicago, has offered his services to the Government in the matter of conserving the food supply of the country, not only for our own use but for the rescue of the allied countries from the possibility of starvation.
Newcomb Carlton is the president of the Western Union Telegraph Company, whose lines may be taken over by the Government in case of war necessity. Mr. Carlton graduated at the Stevens Tech. and practiced as a mechanical engineer in Buffalo for a number of years. He was later with the Bell Telephone Company and the Westinghouse Company and managed the London branch of the latter company before coming with the Western Union.
General Sir Douglas Haig commands the British forces in France which have met with such success lately.
Herman Lagercrantz, formerly Minister to the United States, is coming here as a special envoy from Sweden to see about the proposed cutting off of food supplies from his country. It is claimed by the allies that food sent to Sweden replaces home products, which are then sent to Germany.
W. Barclay Parsons, the distinguished engineer, is to go to France as an officer of the corps of engineers which will rebuild the railroads of France.

NEW YORK EXTENDS EFFORTS IN PROVIDING ENTERTAINMENT FOR FOREIGN COMMISSIONS

Marshal Joffre, Hero of Marne, Motif of Interesting Performance at Metropolitan Opera-House—Young Scions of Gotham Families Enlist in Different Branches of Government Service.

BY GETTA R. WASSERMAN.
NEW YORK, May 19.—(Special.)—For these last weeks of almost constant excitement, during the visits of the different foreign commissions to the city, and the ensuing aftermath of additional war-time activities, which the enthusiasm of those visits evoked, it has been difficult to individualize, as everything has been en masse; people, flowers, colors, entertainments, particularly the latter—so much so that it would be necessary to have wings to follow the different members of the various commissions in their flights about the city. The most interesting of all of these affairs though, was the conferring of the degree of doctor of laws on four of the members of the French and British delegations by Columbia University, through its president, Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, who on that occasion, wore the scarlet gown of Cambridge University, out of deference to the English visitors, and the ribbon of the Legion of Honor, with which the French government had previously decorated him. Tens of thousands of people swarmed the campus of the university, in an endeavor to see and hear the speeches in which attempts of many of them failed, as the crowd was too great for the standing capacity of the square, in front of the library, where the service was held.
Another marvellously interesting entertainment was the grand gala performance at the Metropolitan Opera House, in honor of the most loved of any of the visitors, Marshal Joffre. He did not want to attend an affair for which admittance had been charged, and it was only after the most earnest entreaties of Governor Whitman, under whose auspices the entertainment had been arranged, that he finally consented to appear. After arriving there, though, the great general seemed more profoundly touched than at any other function he had graced with his presence, and rightly so, for no greeting could possibly have been more spontaneous and affecting than that which the huge audience bestowed on him. Boxes for this performance, which was for the benefit of the Marshal's two favorite war relief charities, sold at $1000 apiece; and seats in the orchestra at $25, and the cheapest seat in the house, at the top gallery, for $2. Programmes were $1 each, so small wonder that the receipts were nearly $100,000.

Miss Anna Case, who this year has come into her own, as far as artistic recognition is concerned, was the fortunate one chosen from among all the great singers vying for the honor of singing "The Star-Spangled Banner" at the dinner given by Henry C. Frick to the members of the French Commission on the evening of their arrival in this city.
The best answer to the accusation that this would be a poor man's war is found in the list of names of men of tremendous wealth and influence who are enlisting in the different branches of the Government service. Two of these, Marshall Field and U. S. Grant IV., have joined as privates. Vincent Astor was one of the first to join the Naval Militia and will probably serve in a minor capacity, on his own yacht, which he has turned over to the authorities. E. Roland Harrison, son of the late E. H. Harriman, is aide the chief inspector of explosives in the Ordnance Department. Elliott Root, Jr., is at the Plattsburg training camp, as is also Joseph R. Choate. Harold Vanderbilt is attached to the Scout Patrol service, and so are C. Oliver Iselin and Griswold Lorillard. Julius Spencer Morgan, Jr., with the Naval Coast Defense Reserve; so is Junior Goldman, son of Henry Goldman, the well-known banker and art collector, and Ashley C. Hewitt, the great grandson of Peter Cooper, the philanthropist. Theodore Roosevelt, Jr., is a Major at the Plattsburg training camp, and thus it goes on through a long list of well-known families, the scions of which are surely proving that they are actuated by motives of patriotism and not of personal ambition. The First Presbyterian Church of the City of New York is to have an outdoor pulpit, the first in this part of the country. It is to be located on the west side of Fifth Avenue, between Eleventh and Twelfth streets.

A big "Sacrifice Sale" is to be held at 15 and 17 East Fifty-ninth street by a group of women interested in the war service work of the New York State Suffrage Party. Clothes and jewelry have been contributed by different members, including those on the committee having the sale in charge. They are Mrs. Philip Lydig, Mrs. Ogden Mills Reid, Mrs. Victor Morawetz, Mrs. E. R. Straight, Mrs. John Blair and Mrs. F. Louis Slade. Among the articles contributed are a gold mesh bag, by Mrs. Norman de R. Whitehouse; a Callot gown that has never been worn, by Mrs. Philip Lydig; a diamond and ruby pin, which Mrs. John Blair sacrificed for the cause, and a number of very beautiful negligees, which Miss Charlotte DeLafield will do without for the benefit of the fund.
A campaign against extreme and immodest dressing has been started, in New Jersey, by the Federation of Women's Clubs of that state. Twenty thousand women belonging to the organization have pledged their support to the movement.
The last bill of the present season at the Neighborhood Playhouse consists of a group of short plays: "The People" by Susan Glaspell; "A Night at an Inn" by Lord Dunsany; and "A Sunny Morning" translated from the Spanish play, by S. and J. Alvarez-Quintero.
Greenwich Village is to have its own "Little Theater" this coming dramatic season, and the theater-going public of the metropolis is awaiting the opening of it with pleasurable anticipation, because there is always an element of originality in whatever the real inhabitants of New York's Latin quarter attempt.
John McCormack's new patriotic song, "The Trumpet Call," is destined

If the popular tenor is a prophet, to be the marching tenor of the imperial United States, just as "Tipperary" is for those of the British forces.
Miss Mary Anita (Mrs. Grabau) was one of the speakers at the resumption of a series of mass meetings given the past week by the Women's Organizations in a campaign for increased membership to cooperate with the American Jewish Congress, to be held in Washington, D. C. More than 250,000 Jewish women already are enrolled, with Mrs. Joseph S. Pels as president. Others actively interested are Mrs. Stephen S. Wise, Mrs. Nathan Straus, Mrs. Julius Rosenwald and Mrs. Richard Gottlieb.
Henry Hadley, who is well known on the Pacific Coast, through his connection with the San Francisco Symphony Orchestra, and a like organization in Seattle, has written an opera, "Aora," which will be produced by the Chicago Opera Company next season. Another opera of Mr. Hadley's, based upon Hohen's "Garden of Allah," has been accepted by Campanini, manager of the Chicago company, but will not be produced until the year following.
Mrs. Donald Clark (Mrs. Reed) has at last been persuaded to resume her dramatic work and will be seen next season, under the A. L. Woods management, in a dramatization of Arthur Somers Roche's "Scrap of Paper," which appeared in the Saturday Evening Post. The title of the play has not as yet been fully decided on, but it may be produced under the name of "Thunder." It is a melodrama, in which Robert Hilliard is to be featured.
Mrs. Roche, the author, is an intimate friend of the Clarkes and it was largely through his personal persuasion that Mrs. Clark consented to return to the stage. Mr. Clark, after a number of years with the World in this city, has severed his connection with that paper and is now on the staff of the New York American. Mrs. Clark expects to visit her here this summer and great plans are being made for her entertainment.
Dr. Louis Kaufman Anspacher recently occupied the Free Synagogue pulpit for a most masterly address on "Russian Literature," with particular reference to the revolution.
Nikola Zan, as our own "Nick" Zan is now known, is rapidly attaining recognition in a comparatively new field for him, that of concert singer. For some time past Mr. Zan has been singing, with marked success, in the operettas of Franz, but since his return to this country he has decided in favor of concert work, and in that capacity has been heard in a number of recitals, prominent among them one given by Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Duveen at the Hotel Plaza, on Tuesday night, where Mr. Zan gave a very interesting programme in conjunction with Madame Gabrielle Gills, the noted French soprano. Mr. Zan's voice has been likened by musical connoisseurs to that of the famous song, "The Trumpet Call," is destined
