SOX ARE STRONG AT BAT

EIGHT MEN MAKE HIGHER AVERAGES THAN HORNSBY.

Cincinnati Moundsmen Show Superiority Over Opponents, but Batting Is Different Story.

Although the National league established its supremacy over the American league in the great classic of the diamond this fall in the victory of the Cincinnati Reds over the Chicago White Sox, the younger organization nevertheless has a considerable argument at its disposal when it comes to a discussion of the relative batting strength of the two leagues.

There were eight swiftness in the San Johnson circuit last season who had averages higher than Roger Hornsby, who topped the list of the National league sluggers.

Of course, to this argument there is always the obvious comeback—the batters in the two leagues did not hit against the same pitchers. If there were no pitcher in the National league, it is unfair to compare the batting records of members of that organization with those of a field team in which the pitching was easier to connect with.

In the only meeting of the season upon which a direct comparison of pitching efforts was possible the National league had the call. The Cincinnati moundsmen had the better of their argument with the writers of the White Sox. Nevertheless, Jackson, of Chicago, led the world's series batsmen, and, with Neal of the Reds in second place, two of Jackson's teammates, Weaver and Schalk, occupied third and fourth positions in the hitting records of the league.

In the American league, during the regular season, Cobb, Veach, Jackson, Sieler, Tobin, Jacobson, Rice and Ruth, all of whom participated in more than 100 games, batted in excess of .322, which was the average of the league.

In addition, Flagstad, though he played in only 96 games, had a record of .336. There were seven men in the National league who batted more than .300 in over 100 games, and 16 in the American.

In the matter of individual batting figures, before the season just closed the champion batsmen of the National league had only twice bettered the mark attained by the American league champions in the same year.

In 1905 Cy Seymour of Cincinnati led the National league with .377, while Nap Lajoie of the American league, leading .325. In 1908 Hans Agnew had a comfortable margin over Cy Cobb, the figures being .354 and .324. There were two years in which the scores of the leading hitters of the two leagues were tied.

Wagner and Lajoie made the same mark of .355 in 1903, and in 1907 Wagner and Cobb were tied at .350. Cobb's high figures of .430 and .410, made in 1911 and 1912, respectively, have never been equaled by

K. OF C. ATHLETIC MAN BACK

Owen Merrick Returns After Work With Overseas Men.

Owen Merrick of the Knights of Columbus overseas athletic department, returned to Portland yesterday. Merrick has been identified with all of the Casey sport programmes in France, signing the Rhine relay in Germany and the Chateau-Thierry to Paris relay.

Merrick brings word that the Belgians are taking a great interest in athletics and promise to have ideal arrangements for the next Olympic games. In the east the athletic enthusiasts are looking for a strong contingent of track athletes from the northwest. Only one of the American athletes remained abroad, Jim Duncan, world's champion discus hurler, having taken charge of a big athletic programme for the French youngsters.

FRESHMAN GIRL WINS MEET

Sophomores Finish Second in O. A. C. Contests.

OREGON AGRICULTURAL COLLEGE, Corvallis, Nov. 1.—(Special.)—The freshman girls won the inter-collegiate track meet in the army. The "rookies" won 66 points, the sophomores 62, the seniors 59, and the juniors 52 points. The sophomores took first place in the yelling. Zetta Bush, Corvallis, was senior yell leader; Isabella Stenick, Portland, junior yell leader; Ina Proctor, Salem, freshman yell leader.

Mass competition rather than individual was the aim of those in charge of the event. The women's athletic association expects to have other meets in the near future.

Baseball News and Notes.

KID GLEASON already is working on the pitching staff which drew so much attention during the big series. The boss of the White Sox announces that he has the assurance of Bob Falk, star pitcher of the University of Texas team for the past two years, that he will be ready to play with the Sox when he finishes his college course next June.

The name of Polly McLarry, one of the heavy hitters of the Birmingham outfielders with the Yankees, is found on the reserve list of the St. Louis Cardinals. McLarry at one time played with the Chicago Cubs.

The Cubs will train at Pasadena, Cal., again next season but will not return to Chicago over the route which was followed last spring. The railroad jumps and poor hotel accommodations were not relished by the players and a change is to be made.

Tim Hendryx and Elmer Miller, former outfielders with the Yankees, are said to be in demand again next season. Hendryx, with the Louisville club, led the American Association in hitting during the past season, and Miller played a sensational game with the St. Paul Senators winners.

Some St. Louis fans have figured it out that if the games won by Carl Mays are thrown out of the Yankees' column the Browns would lead the Yankees by several percentage points and thereby get a first division berth. As some of the fans had beta bets on the Browns to finish in the first set this adds some interest to the Mays race that had hitherto been overlooked.

Rumors of trades in baseball are already going the rounds. One scout has Everett Scott going from the Red Sox to the Tigers for Doolie Bush, while another has Bush going to the White Sox for Ribicoff.

On the Alleys.

Two teams, the Imperial hotel and Speedwell Tilt, are the favorites in the Rose City league. The Victoria Shox company took a slump after holding the lead for several weeks.

The Bankers' league did not expect any changes on the Oregon alleys last week. The United States National, Led & Tilton and North Star National banks all won three games.

Rainier 6, Ridgefield 6. RAINIER, Or., Nov. 1.—(Special.)—In a hotly-contested football game here today between Rainier and Ridgefield, the score stood 6 to 6. Each side made one touchdown.

MAN, 67, PLAYS TWO ROUNDS

DEL MONTE, Cal., Nov. 1.—(Special.)—James K. O'Neil, a prominent golfer of the Claremont club, who is at present playing over the two courses here at Del Monte, celebrated the 67th anniversary of his birthday by going around the No. 1 course for two rounds. The stunt of playing 36 holes is rather strenuous. O'Neil said that it is not an unusual performance for him and he wanted to get in the full day of golf as a sort of celebration of his birthday.

The Claremont golfer says that he expects to be playing two rounds of golf for another 16 or 20 years. "It is just a case of a man getting out into the great out-of-doors," he says. "I have always been a great believer in getting out-of-doors and golf has been one of those great means."

NORMAN ROSS AFTER RECORDS.

HONOLULU, T. H., Nov. 1.—Norman Ross, champion swimmer, will make an attempt here to break the American records for 500 and 1000 yards. Harold Kruger, a Pacific coast title-holder, will contest in the 100-yard back stroke.
