AUSTRIA ELECTS TODAY

NATIONAL ASSEMBLY MEMBERS TO BE SELECTED.

Second Parliament of New Republic Comes Into Being; New Ballots for Women.

VIENNA, Oct. 16.—(Special.)—Austria will ballot tomorrow for members of the national assembly only. No other federal offices are involved. It will be the second parliament of the Austrian republic and will come into being in February, 1921.

The present assembly consists of 81 social democrats, 79 Christian socialists and 25 Grosse Deutsche deputies. Pre-election estimates of leaders do not indicate any radical change in the proportionate strength of the two dominant parties, but do predict a gain from both by the center or Grosse Deutsch party. The various little parties or groups of which there are some five or six without representation in the parliament seem to have thrown their fate with the center and probably will give it from 10 to 20 more seats.

This party is classed as bourgeois or conservative as opposed to the left or social democrats.

The communist party in Austria is almost negligible, according to best information. It is reported to number not more than 12,000 votes, has no representation in the present assembly and is not expected to muster sufficient strength to gain a seat in these elections.

Austria, like many of the new states of Europe, has provided in her election laws against the lost vote. A certain number of votes is required to give a "mandate," that is to elect a member. The surplus vote for a member, if any, is thrown into a general pool. The pool is divided proportionately to the parties and additional members of the assembly elected through it. It is estimated that the new assembly will thus be given 15 more members than the present body. It is provided that the women's votes shall be cast on ballots of a different character this year in order to determine party affiliation.

Preliminaries Bring Out Large Numbers of Aspirants—Several Have Had Some Experience.

OREGON AGRICULTURAL COLLEGE, Corvallis, Oct. 16.—(Special.)—Eight men have been picked to form the college debate squad for this year. Tryouts held this week brought out a large number of aspirants, most of whom have had previous high school or inter-class experience.

Those making the team are: J. R. Nichols, Palo Alto, Cal.; Chester Womer, Estacada; Lowell Stockman, Pendleton; R. E. Hathaway, Corvallis; John Gray, Santa Rosa, Cal.; Oliver Hazen, Snohomish, Wash., and Maurice Buxton, Corvallis.

Lowell Stockman was a member of the Kappa Sigma team which won the inter-fraternity championship last year. Hazen represented the freshmen in inter-class contests last year, besides being in the inter-fraternity contests. Womer is a former student of Willamette university, where he had debating experience. The other men have had considerable high school experience.

APPLE CROP IN DANGER

Half of Fruit Picked, 500 Pickers Needed and Frost Threatens.

HOOD RIVER, Or., Oct. 16.—(Special.)—With weather conditions growing worse by successive stages since the harvest began and now reaching the point where a snow or freeze is threatened, orchardists who have the larger portion of their apples still on trees are growing panicky.

A drop in the temperature accompanied by a cold rain over lower levels with a trace of snow on higher points of the upper valley fruit section has caused an exodus of pickers, and the third week of harvest will begin with a serious shortage of help. About 50 per cent of the fruit remains unpicked. The shortage of pickers is felt more acutely in the upper valley than in other districts, it is said.

Mrs. J. W. Ingalls, in charge of an employment bureau of the Apple Growers association reported tonight that she had just received urgent calls for more than 100 pickers and 30 packers. The total shortage over the valley, it is estimated, would be reached by multiplying her figures by five.
