CHANGE TO STUDY GIVEN. PLAN OF VOCATIONAL BOARD WOULD AID LUMBERJACK. State Proposes to Pay Half Cost if Workers Go Half Way in Meeting Expense.

OREGON AGRICULTURAL COLLEGE, Corvallis, Sept. 17.—(Special.)—Giving men in the lumber camps of Oregon a chance to study vocational and other subjects is a plan of the state board for vocational education, thought by A. R. Nichols, state supervisor of trades and industries and instructor in vocational education at the college, to be the first movement of the kind in the country. Much has been done in the way of furnishing sports and other entertainments for the men, it is pointed out, but giving them a chance to study subjects of their own choice is something new. Mr. Nichols has just returned from Mill City, where in talking with the employees of the Hammond Lumber company he found much enthusiasm over the proposed arrangement where, by the state board for vocational education is willing to pay half the cost of instruction, provided the men meet the board half way. Between 10 and 15 of the men wanted instruction in steam engineering. Another group was interested in acetylene welding, and still another in lumber scaling and mechanical drawing. Many of the men expressed a desire to study arithmetic, civil government, history and English, and it is thought possible that arrangements will be made for four classes.

90-YEAR-OLD HERMIT OF EAST SIDE RECALLS SHOOTING BEARS AND WOLVES IN PORTLAND

Vigorous Old Man Sleeps in Hut and Makes Living Trading Wood for Food Over Period of Forty-three Years—Recluse Hasn't Seen Center of City for Twenty Years and Has Never Ridden on Street Car.

FOR 43 YEARS, possibly half of his life, for so he estimates his age, Joseph Albert O'Donoghue has lived in a hovel the size of a chicken coop in the woods between the Alameda and Alberta. It has been a peaceful existence for the old man, but he did not reckon on the growth of the city and last spring his hut was destroyed by a gale clearing land and he now has been ordered by the health and fire departments to vacate an old barn he occupies near Bryce avenue. So, in the winter of his life, he faces an eviction order and the necessity of getting a new home. Few even of the residents of the immediate vicinity know of the existence of this old character, and it is likely that many a childlike tale of "the hermit" was skeptically received. But O'Donoghue has lived there in peace, slept on the bare ground, wrapped in castoff garments, and amassed a "library" that consists mainly of copies of The Oregonian. He has not been in the center of the city for over 20 years and it has been nine years since he visited East Portland. He does not know the great office buildings or stores, though he has been a resident of Portland for 43 years, and he has not ridden on a street car. His wants have been few and he has managed to exist by trading wood for food.

Full of Sebastian Recalled. "I must be near 90 years of age," he observed yesterday, as he paused for his woodcutting work, "for I can distinctly remember the fall of Sebastian in the Crimean war and I was a good rifle shot in 1850. I have lived on this place so long that I do not want to leave, but they have ordered me to go. I would like to stay here, have some kind of a little house about the size of a garage, or I might return to Canada, but I'd have to walk and I don't want to start out this winter." O'Donoghue claims that Bernard

The Iron Food for Vitality Brandenburg, former owner of the land he now occupies, allowed him to stay there and also that Brandenburg owes him three years' wages at clear Fremont street when he was a young man. He told of relatives in San Francisco who were wealthy, but asked that their names not be mentioned. "Put me on a feather bed or even on a straw mattress or felt and I could not sleep. I would get sick." was one of his complaints. "They say my place is not healthy, look at me! Must be near 90 and look like I am 40. Not many men as well, and I sleep right there on the ground and don't have many dreams. I helped clear Fremont street when I was just a forest and I have shot bear and wolves right here. Once worked four years for Ben Holladay in his sawmill, but this is my home and if I have to leave here, and they have notified me to move, I don't know where I shall go. I want to stay where I have lived for nearly 50 years."

The Bread of Iron —great food for all who work. Full of tender, luscious raisins, rich in iron and energy. A DELICIOUS bread is made with plump, tender, juicy raisins. It will be a pleasant change in your home from the regular plain bread. The attraction lies in more than merely flavor. For add raisins to your bread and "the staff of life" becomes a practically perfect food. Rich in the food-iron of the raisin, and increased in energizing nutrition. Food-iron fortifies the blood. True vitality depends on it. Men can't be efficient nor women nor children retain the natural bloom of youth without it. So delicious raisin bread, great food for workers, is called "The Bread of Iron." You need but a small bit of iron daily, yet that need is vital. Get it through raisins. Have them in every other loaf of bread you serve. Delicious raisin bread and raisin pie are sold by bake shops and grocers everywhere. Buy of them to save baking at home. Real raisin bread is made with lots of raisins. Insist on it. First-class bakers do not stint.

SUN-MAID RAISINS Use Sun-Maid Raisins, made from California's finest table grapes—American raisins, processed and packed immaculately in a great modern California plant. Seeded (seeds removed); Seedless (grown without seeds); Clusters (on the stem). Also a fine ever-ready dessert. Raisins are cheaper by 30 per cent than formerly—see that you get them in your foods.
