

TELEPHONE PAPERS TAKEN INTO COURT

Federal Tribunal Gets Evidence of Hearing.

QUANTITY IS IMMENSE

U. S. Attorneys Take Charge of Huge Collection of Documents in Case.

The case charging excessive rates against the Pacific Telephone & Telegraph company, heard by Judge Stapleton in the state circuit court in August, was formally transferred to the United States district court yesterday morning, and the huge collection of documentary evidence was placed in the hands of the federal attorneys.

The case, which was heard in circuit court, was brought by John F. Bailey, Dora E. Sinev and Robert G. Duncan, who represent the public in seeking relief from alleged excessive rates. It was brought into the circuit court after more than a year of dispute following the recall in June of members of the public service commission.

When the case was heard in circuit court, Judge Stapleton was asked to have the case transferred to the United States district court because the telephone company is a California corporation.

Hearings on the case has not been set. The telephone company was allowed 10 days to file an answer to the charges.

MUSTAPHA KEMAL PASHA DECLARED REAL PATRIOT

Faith in God and Willingness to Defend Islam Said to Be Principal Characteristics of Turk Leader.

BY AHMED ABDULLAH AND LEO ANAVI.

Editor's note—Captain Ahmed Abdullah is the well-known novelist and playwright, known far eastern affairs from long service with the British Indian army and later with the Turkish army in the first Balkan war, where he attained the rank of pasha. He is an Afghan of mixed Arab and Persian blood, formerly a British subject, but now in process of becoming an American citizen.

An Oxford graduate, the author of several well-known books and a contributor to the Century, Harper's, Cosmopolitan, Saturday Evening Post, Colliers and others, he is well equipped to put Kemal's striking personality before the American people.

Leo Anavi, native of Beirut, in Syria, is the son of Leon Anavi, who started the silk industry in Syria, and the grandson of a high official in the Turkish army. He saw service in Roumania in the Balkan war, and later on in the Turkish army.

For things were not going well with Turkey, it had fought and lost a great war. It lay mutilated and bleeding. The world at large was beginning to forgive and forget Germany's and Austria's sins, but there was no forgiving nor forgetting for Turkey.

When the world at large had ceased to talk about Belgian atrocities, but was still talking about Armenia, the world at large, fact, seemed against the Moslem. Wherever you looked, from western China to the hills of Morocco, the Moslem was in the wrong.

And now the hereditary foe, the Greek, with a pro-German king had for some mysterious reason of European diplomacy been appointed the Greek delegate in Asia Minor.

There was a Greek in the front of the Greek, who was advancing into the interior of Asia Minor and marching his troops to conquer the interior of the Constantinople.

There was the Pasha himself, tall, still young, good-looking, narrow-hipped, wide-eyed, with gray hair, and eyes that spoke eloquently of his Spanish-Jewish ancestry. For Kemal, like Enver Pasha, though an orthodox Moslem, is descended from those noble Spanish-Jewish families that, given by Christianity the tolerance and the freedom of conversion and exile, found asylum and happiness in the sultan's domains—and with strong, high-veined hands, broad and flat, and a dreamer, yet, too, those of a doer, a man who knows how to convert his dreams into facts, clearly, calmly, and at times ruthlessly.

dox Moslem, who, in obedience to the Koran, does not touch fermented spirits. But the music was excellent. It was classic European music, played by a rather nostalgic Viennese orchestra. Living reminders of the world's stupendous Odyssey, since Mustapha Kemal Pasha brought back from his years in Berlin, where the student at the imperial German war school, after his graduation from the Turkish war college, the Lycee Imperial Ottoman, a thorough admiration and appreciation of European music it is perhaps significant that Wagner is his favorite composer, and after Wagner, Debussy.

The conversation amongst that cosmopolitan crowd was mostly of war, past, future and present, and of the collings and recollings of international politics. It was good-humored, even humorous, except for an occasional remark sardoniously pointed, gall-blitter, that dropped from the Indian Moslem's thin, ascetic lips.

Retort is Bitter. "Gidar rakhe mans ke thati—would you keep meat on trust with a jackal?" Silence followed the remark; embarrasment, an epidemic of uncomfortable coughing, a shuffling of uneasy feet.

Then Mustapha Kemal Pasha rose and said: "What is the matter, Syed?" He demanded: "What has happened which cannot be remedied—with patience?"

Laughter breaks strain. Came loud laughter, the Europeans vying with the Turks, while the waiters cleared away the salad plates, and while General Townsend, who was in the secret, rose and said to his host that he adored the Turkish cuisine—"all except the desserts."

Pasha is Described. There was the Pasha himself, tall, still young, good-looking, narrow-hipped, wide-eyed, with gray hair, and eyes that spoke eloquently of his Spanish-Jewish ancestry.

Equality is Dogma. "Absolute equality within the faith" is the dogma of Islam, and as such that of Turkey. In a manner it also is the dogma of America and of England. But in Turkey the reality of it is more salient and being a wonderful attraction to the picked men of inferior races who in

PROJECTED LINES OF NEWLY INCORPORATED YAKIMA SOUTHERN RAILWAY, PLANNED BY E. E. LYTLE AND ASSOCIATES TO ENTER YAKIMA VALLEY.

Traffic of the rich Yakima region is proposed to be brought to Portland over the new line planned from Underwood to Yakima. A connection with the main line of the Milwaukee is expected to be realized by the extension to Wenatchee. Southern, projected from Beverly to that point, or by a tentative new route from Ellensburg to Wenatchee, by use of existing Northern Pacific tracks.

Organization meetings of the new Yakima Southern Railway company will be held next Thursday at Vancouver, Wash. The office. It is expected officers will be elected as follows: President, E. E. Lytle; vice-president and treasurer, Henry E. Reed, both of Portland; secretary, J. R. Atkinson, Vancouver, Wash.

The project which involves the expenditure of $7,500,000, the object being to give Portland direct access to the rich Yakima section of the Washington and bring fruit and other crops of that region to port, will, no doubt, come to the official notice of the Chamber of Commerce special committee appointed by General Manager W. D. Dodson at the request of the Portland Traffic & Transportation association recently to investigate ways and means of obtaining a railway to Yakima.

British Troops Beaten. At the outbreak of the world war he was seeking profitably. But Turkey declared for Germany and, like any other soldier, he obeys orders. He is in command at Gallipoli and victoriously repels the British troops there.

Effort is Success. He did it. He succeeded. And in his very success is the story, historic and psychological, less of himself than of all Turkey, of all Islam, of the Moslem's extraordinary resiliency and power of recuperation. It explains why Turkey, the Sick Man of Europe, has weathered the storms of the past, as he will those of the future.
