

91-DAY VOYAGE
THE JUNK IS ROUGH

Bathing Water Lacking on Trip Across Pacific.

DETAILS ARE RELATED

Many Storms Met, but Calms Caused Most Trouble, Declares Captain Waard.

VICTORIA, B. C., Sept. 30.—Details of the 91-day voyage of the Amoy, the 23-ton Chinese fishing junk that brought Captain Waard, his Chinese wife, and their 3-year-old son safely across the Pacific, the longest voyage of the Pacific, were told by the old sailor today as he helped his wife wash on the yard arm.

"I decided I wanted to come back to Canada," he began. "Steamships, Lord, how I hate 'em, the fire and the smell and everything. A fellow needs sailors only on a sailing ship. So I went down to Amoy and built this junk that brought us along. There were some folks in Shanghai that wanted to come but I told 'em no—we were coming without a doctor, no no chest and no fresh provisions."

Bathing Water Lacking.
"We had plenty of water for drinking, but not a drop for bathing or the washing of clothes. We had a crew of three Chinese and they didn't worry about that."

The Amoy ran into many storms, Captain Waard continued, but the calm caused most trouble. The Amoy floundered about helplessly in them, lost time and went off her course. Twice the junk was carried away and he had to rig a jury rudder which cut down the junk's headway.

The course mapped out was northward to Hakodate, Japan, and thence to cross the Pacific on the 42d and 43d parallel of latitude. Because weather was not on the two weeks between Shanghai and Hakodate, and typhoons several times forced the vessel to shelter.

Two New Anchors Bought.
The port anchor broke at the risk and the captain had to buy two new anchors at the Japanese port, reached on July 15. Hakodate was left behind on July 15 when the weather moderated, but the full port was to be only temporary. The Amoy encountered a succession of easterly winds and gales from the south which drove the vessel up into 44 to the Aleutian Islands and thence back to the coast of Japan.

The Amoy was making eight and nine miles an hour. In one day she did, with a beam wind, 160 miles. But the next day she had a fair day's wind. Often she would make 25 miles with a good breeze and drift back 50 at night, he complained.

"The Amoy did anything," Captain Waard said, "but she brought me on the roughest voyage I ever made."

DUCKS ARE PLENTIFUL

LAKES OF EASTERN OREGON ABOUND IN WILD FOWL.

Beet in Southern Part of State Numerous, but Hunters Are Handicapped by Drouth.

There are large numbers of ducks in the lake region of eastern Oregon, south of Bend, says F. M. Brown, county deputy game warden, who returned yesterday from a trip through that section. Mr. Brown, who was accompanied by A. F. McDaniel, deputy game warden, said that they visited the majority of the lakes in that section and that there were indications that the hunters would have fine sport in that section this winter.

The return was made to Portland via Roseburg and Medford. Mr. Brown said that there were lots of deer in southern Oregon but that the hunters had been handicapped by the dry weather. He predicted that they would have better luck in getting deer as a result of the recent rains.

The duck season for western Oregon opens today, a half-hour before sunrise. Shooting closes at sunset and begins a half-hour before sunrise each day. The season for this section of the state lasts until January 15.

TROOPS IN MEXICAN GARRISON REVOLT

Juarez, Border Town, Scene of Insurgency.

REBELS FINALLY ROUTED

Loyal Forces Victorious After Two Hours' Fight and Enemy Flees Toward Hills.

EL PASO, Tex., Sept. 30.—Loyal federal troops searched the hills around Juarez, Mexico, tonight for 50 rebels still unaccounted for the sudden revolt of the garrison this morning. The general continued south were hourly expected. American and Mexican patrols on both sides of the line were watching for attempts by revolutionists to cross the border. It was reported that groups of revolutionists in El Paso were preparing to cross.

The town of Juarez was quiet. Small groups of Americans visited the city. American customs officials announced the bridges would remain open until midnight, as usual.

"Murguia is responsible for this affair," General J. J. Mendez, commander of the Juarez garrison, declared. "I have reports from Manuel Gutierrez was at the bottom of this, although Captain Feliciano Val Verde appears on the surface to be the leader."

Murguia, a General Francisco Murguia, revolutionary leader. He informed that the 43d regiment had revolted the general hurried to Juarez. He had 15 men of his 43d on guard duty.

10 Men Remain Loyal.
"General, we are loyal," the captain said. "We remained true to their word throughout the events that followed."

"I had received a tip in the meantime that a party of revolutionists would attempt to rush across the international bridge in automobiles from El Paso to Juarez. I ordered to guard the bridgeheads, while five more men on guard duty at my home were consolidated with the rest of the garrison."

Then the garrison commander got in touch with Captain Valverde by telephone.

"I'm not going on up there," he demanded.

"Well, general, we have decided to revolt," the captain replied.

"I don't give a d— what happens. I have declared a revolution," Captain Valverde asserted. The general said:

He ended the conversation. Cut off from telegraph communication with Chihuahua City, General Mendez, who was in El Paso, sent telegrams to Mexico City authorities and General Eugenio Martinez, commander of the northern military district.

"You will find me in Juarez when you arrive. I will remain until death, if necessary," the general's message to the district commander read.

As the rebels moved toward the customs house, machine gunfire was fired at the line of forces commanded by General Mendez. The battle, however, soon was over, with the rebels in flight and many captured.

Fighting lasted for two hours. Despite the advantage they had in possession of the machine guns, the rebels could not dislodge the loyal army.

During the fighting Colonel Manuel Espinosa, commander of the 43d regiment, was killed. Other officers who had been made prisoners by the rebels at the barracks, escaped and reported to General Mendez.

Rebels Routed by Fire.
Roughly the heavy fire of the rebels split into small groups as they fled southeast from the city toward the mountains.

They were pursued by fiscal guards commanded by Jesus Anaya Teran, Juarez chief of the guards, and cavalrymen led by Captain Jacinto Mengaray and Captain Alberto Godines.

Mendez was voiced by General Mendez that many of the rebel forces, including prisoners released from the jail, took refuge within the city. He estimated this number at 30.

Two machine guns, 100 rifles and several mules loaded with ammunition were captured from the rebels. "Sixty prisoners were taken, while we estimate the number of dead and wounded rebels at between 15 and 20," General Mendez announced this afternoon. "Reports are being assembled and it will not be until tomorrow that we will have the exact figures."

"Twelve of the federal forces were wounded, while eight have been reported killed. This includes civilians, soldiers and fiscal guards," the general said. "The rebels were released from jail, were found with rifles and ammunition in their possession. They were identified as members of the attacking party and were executed by orders of General Mendez."

As soon as the votes had been counted in the $50,000 bond issue to supply the city with water, the voters last night, showing the measure passed, 247 votes in favor of it and 137 against it, was learned that the opposition to the measure would challenge a certain portion of the votes.

The opposition is being headed by the Parkrose Commercial club, according to C. L. Eaton. Eligibility to vote requires 90 days' residence in the community and American citizenship, and it was declared that from 35 to 40 voters are ineligible.

LIGHTNER MAY BE FIRED

DEPORTATION OF NARCOTICS SMUGGLER IN PROSPECT.

Federal Prisoner Rated as Stowaway and Subject to Being Classed as Undesirable.

Prospects that Dave Lightner will be deported, either to Canada or to Romania, following his trial or imprisonment if he is sentenced, loomed yesterday after R. P. Bonham, immigration inspector, had held a long hearing with the accused peddler and smuggler of narcotics.

Inspector Bonham said that since Lightner had returned to the United States as a stowaway, a technical order of rejection had been issued against him at San Pedro, where he came into the country and was arrested. Lightner is therefore not desirably in the United States and is subject to deportation.

The local immigration office is making an investigation as to Lightner's birthplace and his rights. Lightner was born either in Winnipeg, Canada, or in Roumania. Inspector Bonham said, and comes from a good family, and is favorably considered because, he says, it will give him a chance to start over again in a new field and build a better working life for himself. His local career has been too spectacular to afford him a substantial footing in any line of endeavor.

Lightner is held on federal charges for smuggling and selling drugs. He jumped his bonds yesterday in Wallingford, where he was arrested, returning to this country as a stowaway.

Lightner, who was wanted at Vancouver, B. C., on a charge of stealing $140 from a Chinese tailor in that city, was escorted across the Canadian line yesterday. He had been arrested in Portland, Wallace is but 15 years old.

George Stening, alias George Shriver, bootlegger who has been in the hands of the police several times recently, was given a hearing by immigration officials at the county jail who are considering deporting him to Canada, where he is wanted by the authorities for concealment of 2000 bonds and other bonds. Extradition proceedings have been instituted against him by Canadian and British authorities.
