

PEOPLE FOR FAIR, SAYS MR. BAKER

Third Boosters' Caravan Is Back in City.

TRAVELERS SEE RODEO

Hillsboro Entertains Visitors With Wild West Show Dur- ing Stay in City.

Mayor Baker, hoarse as a bull-frog after an all-night open-air concert in the markets, told a crowd gathered at Sixth and Morrison streets last night to welcome home the members of the third world's fair caravan, back after a trip through the state on behalf of the 1927 exposition, that sentiment in the 13 Oregon towns visited on the trip, like that everywhere else, is overwhelmingly for the big project.

"Everywhere we went on this trip we were met with a hearty welcome," declared the mayor. "Crowds attended every one of the street meetings we held, and on all sides we heard expressions of good will for Portland and the fair."

Favorable Vote Expected.

"From my observations on this tour and the two preceding ones, I am firmly convinced that the people of the state outside of Multnomah county will vote us constitutional authority to hold an exposition in 1927 by a decisive majority."

"The caravan left Hillsboro, Oct. 13th, and we made every stop on schedule time in spite of the 'flax' popularity supposed to attend that date. Nowing was the first place visited and from there we traveled in succession to Dayton, Sheridan, Dallas, Independence, McMinnville, Carlton, Yamhill, Gaston, Forest Grove, Cornelius, Hillsboro and Beaverton.

22 Autos in Caravan.

Twenty-two automobiles made up the caravan, which numbered in its personnel leading business men of Portland and representatives of progressive civic societies and other organizations that have lined up solidly behind the exposition project.

At Hillsboro yesterday afternoon the caravaners were given unexpected entertainment in the form of a rodeo. One of the largest crowds that greeted the fair boosters met the procession and escorted it to the enclosure, where the wild west stunts were performed.

Forest Grove, Home of Pacific University and "The City of Homes," as banners at its entrance proclaim it, gave the caravan a royal reception yesterday. President Weir of the university, provided a fine meeting place for the caravan's excellent Mayor Schultz and other citizens extended the freedom of the city and women served a fine home-cooked luncheon to all caravaners and local citizens at a price about half of what the visitors had been paying for inferior restaurant meals along the route. Washington county grapes were distributed without cost among the visitors.

Carlton First Stop.

The day's doing began at Carlton, where Harry Deuce, publisher of the Sentinel made one of the most cordial and witty welcoming addresses heard anywhere on the trip. At Yamhill there was another meeting and one at Gaston prior to arrival at Forest Grove, where the caravan was due for another stop. From Yamhill it journeyed all the way to McMinnville Friday night to meet the caravan and he welcomed them cordially today.

At Hillsboro in the afternoon the caravan got its message over to two big audiences, due to the fact that it was fair week there. A street meeting was held downtown and then the caravaners were taken to the fair grounds, where a round-up was in progress. The show was stopped for half an hour, through the good offices of Mayor Schultz, and Mayor Baker and other speakers gave the exposition message to the crowd. Cornelius and Beaverton were the other stops of the afternoon.

Tommy Luke was chairman of the day from McMinnville to Forest Grove, and A. R. Ritter presided at meetings from here on. Speakers who made addresses at various places besides Mayor Baker were Rev. C. W. McCaughey, George L. Rauch, Otto R. Hartwig and W. M. Roush.

Director of Caravans Merz announced that he is already lining things up for a caravan trip through Columbia and Clatsop counties to Astoria and Seaside for the next week-end.

DONATIONS ARE MADE

Ten Oregon Alumni Get Together and Make $1000 Gift.

UNIVERSITY OF OREGON, Eugene, Oct. 14.—(Special.)—With the lapse of three weeks since the launching of the university $10,000,000 endowment campaign, scattered donations are already beginning to be received. At a gathering of nine Oregon alumni in company with one graduate of the University of Washington an agreement was reached Thursday whereby in ten years there should be contributed a total of $1,000,000 from the ten men, the interest which will have accrued. This is the largest single gift to date brought forward by alumni. Since the start of the campaign 11 gifts have been made to the university.

The 12th gift was received Friday by President Campbell from the Southern Pacific company. William Spruille, president of the company, was in Portland last week and heard of the endowment campaign and made the donation on behalf of the company. The gift was $500, which will go toward defraying the expense of the campaign. The donation brings the campaign fund beyond the $3,000 mark, which was the amount originally set to defray the expenses of the effort to obtain $10,000,000 in ten years.

FIRE PREVENTION THEME

FLOATS DESIGNED TO SHOW PERIL OF CARELESSNESS.

Schools Make Exhibits and Children Prominent in Line; 600 Boy Scouts Carry Banners.

Fire prevention, the arch enemy of confagration, was the theme of a parade viewed by hundreds of persons yesterday afternoon. Floats depicting the peril of carelessness with fire, banners and posters imparting advice concerning fire prevention, and fire apparatus, both ancient and modern, were in the long line.

A hand-drawn pumper of 1885 vintage, with Portland fire ladders in old-time helmets and fiery red shirts attracted no end of attention. Following this came a horse-drawn pump of 1879, then a metropolitan engine with three white horses that was par excellence in 1900, and following these exhibits came the latest LaFrance pumper, hose wagon and truck, combination affairs that are the latest word in fire-fighting equipment.

A dozen or more floats were entered by the various fire companies, each showing fire hazards as well as effective ways in which to prevent fire.

Fishing Case is Appealed.

ASTORIA, Or., Oct. 14.—(Special.)—An appeal from the judgment of the justice court has been filed in the circuit court by the defendant in the case of the state of Oregon against T. A. Falanaga. Falanaga was found guilty in justice court on a charge of illegal fishing in operating a fishtrap on the morning of September 19 last a few hours before the opening of the fall fishing season and was fined $300.

Advanced Study in Trapping Moonshiners Undertaken.

Advanced classes in the proper manner of trapping the wily bootlegger and moonshiner have been conducted for the last two days at the customs house by Federal Prohibition Director Linville. Government prohibition agents were the pupils and a number of civil officials, including Acting Police Chief Moore, District Attorney Leavens of Baker county, Sheriff Hurlbert and United States Attorney Humphreys were the instructors.

F. A. Hazeltine, provisional chief of prohibition agents of the seventh district, came the first day and organized the work, and it has been done in a most efficient manner. The workers formed in lines from the woodpile to the basement window, and on the inside to the furnace room, the last boy rickling it up onto the pile.

Bluebirds Hatch on Train Going 50 Miles Hour.

Mother Often Flies After Engine to Sit on Eggs.

SPOKANE, Wash., Oct. 14.—While traveling at the rate of 50 miles an hour a fond bluebird mother recently hatched two birds in a nest built in a broken classification light on the tank of a railroad engine running between here and Coeur d'Alene, Idaho.

The parents of the two young birds started home-building operations about a month before the youngsters were hatched. Their nest was discovered by railroad men shortly afterwards. At the time of the discovery, the nest contained four eggs. Thinking that the eggs would not hatch, one of the engineers took two of them home to be placed under a canary bird.

Mrs. Bluebird, apparently undaunted by the theft of two of her eggs, went ahead at the task at hand. About a month later the two young birds were discovered. The mother made all the trips regularly with the engine, before the birds were hatched.

"The train makes a hundred-mile round trip every other day," said Engineer J. E. Robinson. "Quite often the mother is delayed or something and we pull out without her, only to have her overtake the train and fly into her nest while we are going from 30 to 35 miles an hour. The light in which the birds made the nest is not in use."

STUDENTS PUT IN WOOD

Gaston Boys Earn $60 for Athletic Supplies.

GASTON, Or., Oct. 14.—(Special.)—To raise money for their student-body fund and athletic supplies, the high school and eighth grade boys of the Gaston High school got the job of putting in the winter supply of wood, 60 cords at $1 a cord. Working to get it in before the rains set in, they arranged with Miss Black, the principal, to take the physical exercise period for the work. Oka Beeler, one of the members of the school board, came the first day and organized the work, and it has been done in a most efficient manner. The workers formed in lines from the woodpile to the basement window, and on the inside to the furnace room, the last boy rickling it up onto the pile.
