JUDGE COKE NOMINATED

MARSHFIELD MAN IS NAMED FOR DISTRICT ATTORNEY.

Qualification for Circuit Judge Must Be Passed Up in Order to Take Other Job.

THE OREGONIAN NEWS BUREAU, Washington, D. C., Dec. 30.—Judge John S. Coke of Marshfield was nominated by the president today for United States attorney, district of Oregon.

SALEM, Or., Dec. 29.—(Special.)—Unless John S. Coke of Marshfield refuses to qualify for circuit judge to which office he was re-elected for a four-year term at the pre-making general election, he will not be eligible for appointment as United States district attorney to succeed Lester Humphreys of Portland, who has resigned.

These attorneys said the constitution of the state provides specifically that when a circuit judge qualifies he takes oath that he will not accept any political office during his term except that of a judicial nature. This provision in the constitution, attorneys said, would prevent Judge Coke's appointment should he qualify for a place on the circuit bench.

Although press dispatches carried the information that Judge Coke has been nominated by the president as United States attorney for Oregon, Lester W. Humphreys, present incumbent of the office, has no official information regarding the probable time of Judge Coke's appointment in the office.

Mr. Humphreys, who has held the position for three years, attempted to resign last April, but the inability of Oregon's senators to agree on a successor caused the attorney-general to refuse to accept the resignation. Mr. Humphreys will return to private practice in the city.

SEATTLE CLERGY ROUSED

MINISTERS DECLARED READY TO CLEAN UP TOWN.

If Mayor Cannot Enforce Law, Church Can and Will, Says Rev. Mr. Hawkins.

PUGET SOUND BUREAU, Seattle, Wash., Dec. 28.—If the police department of Seattle cannot obtain law enforcement, the ministers of the city and will, Rev. Charles Hawkins, pastor of Plymouth Congregational church, declared at a meeting of the Young Men's Religious club today that their evidence of lack of law enforcement is not hearsay evidence, as charged by the mayor.

"He loves his city best who fights to make it a clean city," said Dr. Hawkins. "The ministers of Seattle intend to continue the best traditions of the Pacific coast and to fight, not by words, but by the sword of righteousness, that Seattle may be in reality what we would like to have it."

"We have asked the mayor to see that the laws are enforced. That is all we want. He has never faced this issue."

"We spread before the city the story of the prevalence of law violation. He comes here charging us with being bribed, with seeking notoriety, with running a publicity campaign."

"VANCOUVER, Wash., Dec. 29.—(Special.)—The Clarke county commissioners today decided to build the Battle Ground highway bridge over Salmon creek, when it was completed the bridge would be built for $600,000 and the contractor would be paid for the bridge."

The bid of the Union Bridge company was $828,000. This commission-er thought the bridge could be built for $600,000 and the contractor would be paid for the bridge."

"I want to affirm in your presence that this thought has never been a part of our program. I have publicly affirmed that this would be difficult if not impossible. I have the firm belief that it is undesirable to have it."

"If the mayor and the police force will not clean up this city, then there are other ways of cleaning it up, and it is going to be cleaned. It is possible to make a city where gambling and bootlegging will not be carried on so flagrantly as at present, and if the mayor will not give his order to the police to clean up the city, then the preachers are going to do it."

DRINKING WOOD ALCOHOL FATAL.

Wood alcohol took another life last night in the person of John Karpf, 40, a logger living at 138 Fourteenth street. He fell from a bench in the Evermyr's club, Second and Couch streets, in a drunken stupor and died on the way to the police station in a motorcycle sidecar piloted by Patrolman Finn.

His name had appeared on the police blotter many times for over-indulgence in the scorching stuff which finally killed him.

NEW BANK CODE URGED

DEPARTMENT REMOVAL TO PORTLAND FAVORED.

Important Changes in Law Are Contemplated by Bankers' Legislative Committee.

Important modifications in the present banking code of the state; indeed the adoption of an entirely new banking act, are contemplated by the legislative committee of the Oregon Bankers' association, which has held three meetings already in planning needed changes. The fourth meeting will be held Monday in the Old Colony clubrooms at the Portland hotel. It is hoped that after this session definite recommendations will be made to the legislature for the enactment of a new law.

Changes under consideration are of an important nature, but the exact recommendations of the bankers will not be known until after the meeting on Monday. One change under consideration is the removal of the state banking department from Salem to Portland.

It is said the revisions in present laws as regard finances have been suggested by a committee of those engaged in the business since 1915, when the present banking code was adopted. There has been a serious war period with rampant inflation, and numerous bank failures have indicated that additional safeguards should be thrown about the banks to make people's money more secure.

Sam L. Eddy, vice-president of the Ladd & Tilton bank, is chairman of the city and will, Rev. Charles Hawkins, pastor of Plymouth Congregational church, declared at a meeting of the Young Men's Religious club today that their evidence of lack of law enforcement is not hearsay evidence, as charged by the mayor.

COUPLE WED 60 YEARS

ANNIVERSARY OBSERVED BY ASHLAND PAIR.

Albert O. Johnson, Though 78, Is Active in Orchard Trade and Does Own Work.

ASHLAND, Or., Dec. 30.—(Special.)—Sixty years of wedded life were celebrated here on Christmas day by Mr. and Mrs. Albert O. Johnson. Though a great portion of their lives were spent in Kansas, they moved to this city 18 years ago. Upon coming here, in spite of his 60 years at that time, Mr. Johnson proceeded to invest in a small orchard tract, which he developed and sold. Since that time he has been actively engaged in fruit growing.

Among the expositions where he has exhibited are the Lewis & Clarke, where he received a gold medal for peaches; a New Orleans fair and the exposition at San Diego. In addition to these he has been awarded sweepstakes at local fairs and has a large collection of medals and various colored premium ribbons.

Mr. Johnson was born September 27, 1841, and in spite of his advanced age, still is as spry as many a man years his junior. Both he and his wife attend to taking care of the orchard and the housework. He is a descendant from pioneer American families, among whom are Captain Edward Johnson, who came from England in the fleet with Governor Winthrop in 1630; Franklin Pierce and Frederick Law Olmstead, noted landscape architect who planned the construction of Central park, New York city, the capital grounds at Washington, D. C.; and many other famous names.

Construction work on the Tongue Point submarine base at the mouth of the Columbia river is expected to begin about February 1, according to advices received yesterday by the Chamber of Commerce. It is the intention to open bids the middle of January and very soon thereafter it is hoped to begin actual operations.

Congress has already appropriated $250,000 for the first work on the base, which will include the building of piers, bulkheads and a breakwater and dredging. Dredging operations call for the removal of 600,000 cubic yards of material, of which 400,000 yards will be used for fill work.

Broadcasting from KGW

THE violin recital which will be broadcast by Maurice Lepiat from the Oregonian tower tonight will be a musical treat of rare beauty for all radio listeners who hear it. The celebrated violinist, already known by a large portion of the radio audience to whom he has endeared himself through previous concerts when The Oregonian was using the smaller station, has been literally flooded with requests for repetitions of favorite numbers, and as a result Mr. Lepiat no longer makes his headquarters in Portland. Last summer he became head of the violin department of the Cornish school of music in Seattle and removed from Portland to that city. He now comes here once a week to take care of his classes, and tonight's recital is the only opportunity radio listeners will have to hear him play for some time. Consequently the programme consists entirely of violin solos by him.

Mr. Lepiat will be assisted at the piano by May Van Dyck Hardwick, his regular accompanist when he was in Portland. He especially requested that Mrs. Hardwick be secured for his concert and this combination makes the programme as nearly perfect as it could possibly be. The broadcasting will begin at 8 o'clock and will last approximately one hour. It will be on 40
