Is this not proof enough for the people of the United States that it is wisest to let the Southern States attend to their own affairs? And it they think so, is it not wise to vote for Tilden and Hendricks?

The matter of our four millions of negroes living with eight millions of white people is a knotty question, for the reason that the former are comparatively without property. They have no forty acres of land, no mule, no nothing but their labor, and are dependent on the whites for employment; and those States that are on the road to success have given them labor. Now the plain conclusion is, that if the Radical party will keep away from South Carolina, and stop have to go to work and South Carolina will be free. #### Lane and Williams in Salem.

From the Mercury. On Saturday evening last the Hon. L. F. Lane and Hon. Richard Williams met in joint discussion at the Opera House in this city. The audience which greeted them was very large, the hall being well filled. Mr. Lane led off in the discussion. His speech of an hour's duration was masterly and argumentative. It was one of those political speeches that would do to print. There was not a flaw in nt anywhere, and every point was well made and all his arguments clothed in fine and appropriate language. His speech on this occasion, if printed, would make a splendid campaign dooument. It was forcible, logical and convincing, and was well received by the large audience present, as was it was the best we ever heard him deliver. But his cause being a conviction with them, although they were well delivered. He asserted that the standard of official integrity was of a higher grade and nearer unimpeachable under Grant's administration than ever before in the history of our government, which assertion sounded very queerly in the light of the many revelations of fraud and corruption existing among Republican officials during the past four years. He denounced the investigations of a Demogratic Congress as a secret inquisition upon the characters of some of the most respectable citizens in America. We presume he meant, as a mat-Hampton if he thought he would be dorsement of Grant's administration lected.

One More Unfortunate. Almost every day the papers chronicles South must now be always ready to act. The Southern press is filled with the shocking details of these crimes, and it may be truthfully said that no planter in South Carolina or Louisiana knows from day to day when the night comes on that before the dawning of the day his gins, his mills and perhaps his dwelling will not be a mass of smouldering ruins.
