The Military Road.

EDITOR GUARD :- Now that we have a board of trade organized in Eugene, I desire to call the special attention of said board of trade to an important matter for the interest of the town and county. The people in Crook, Lake and Klamath counties would come to Eugene to buy a great quantity of their supplies if the roads were put in a con-dition so they could haul a good load over them during the summer season. This can be done without the expenditure of any large amount of money. The military road over the Cascade mountains, is an excellent mountain road if it was repaired some each year. The road has been made new some twenty years or more, and has never been repaired, but little, and yet, with exceptions of a few places, a good two horse team can haul two thousand pounds over said road with case. If this city would raise and ex-pend in repairing the road up the Middle Fork, and over the mountains, the sum of $500 or $600 each year, it would bring a trade into this place of from $5000 to $25000 cash each year. The people of the counties above named want to trade here for it is the nearest point to the railroad to buy their yearly supplies, but they cannot do so unless lisr's. Price them; buy them. the road is repaired so they can haul over them. The counties above named are especially adapted to raising stock, sheep, cattle and horses, and the military road over the mountains would be their great thoroughfare if that road was kept in decent re-pair. The sheep men would drive their herds of sheep to the Deschuttes at shearing time, ship it over the mountains in wagons to Eugene and then into the valley, if the road was made as it eight to be made. This would create a trade of many thousands of deliars annually, and Eugene would get the benefit of the trade. People of Engene it is worth an exertion, and a hard one, too. & Son's. Many of the bridges across small streams have rotted out and fell down. Some of the grades have been washed out and mud holes made impassabable for the want of a little track work. In the Latin sentence "Apes sine rege essen non possunt," bees are unable to be without a king, the professor asked why the Romans COTTAGE GROVE, March 14, 1888. Thure are several cases of measles in our A city student unacquainted with the habits of this industrious insect accounts for it in Mr. Wm. Gilfry, of Cloverdale, was here this way: In ancient times bees had both kings and queens but the gentler sex were regarded as so insignificant that the Romans only mentioned the king of the been taking no notice of the queen. But at the present time things have become so changed, people are much more enlightened. The gentler sex rule the world so completely in every respect that to-day people only men-tion the queen of the bees paying no atten-tion whatever to the dethroned king, until we are almost in doubt whether or not bees have a king. From this theory this student proceeded to state that the position of wo-man has greatly improved since the time of the ancient Romans. This is a new and original argument to prove that among men and women as among the bees women will come ahead.

The public rhetoricals last Friday quite exceeded the expectations of those who were assembled in the hall. The following stuassembled in the hall.
