Law of Newspapers.

Authors who do not give express the contrary are considered as authorizing the subscription.

Advertisers under papers disowning the right to do so, are requested to send to the office or place to which they are paid.

They are held responsible to their agents for the publication of their bill and give notice to them.

Advertisers move to other places, retaining the publisher, and the publisher to the former direction, they are responsible.

Advertisers have decided that refusing paper or periodical from the office, and leaving it unclaimed for, is a species of intentional fraud.

Volume III.

This number we again make due acknowledgment of the many favors received at the hands of the public, notwithstanding so many errors and omissions, so common to the publishers of a public journal—the responsibility devolving upon those who are engaged in furnishing material for the reading community a great and difficult task.

He who succeeds even to a trifling extent, may afford himself that he has done well. The publishing of a newspaper this plan has been attended with many embarrassing circumstances.

The Indian war that commenced at the time of our starting the "Sentinel" was one great cause of expense necessary to the obtaining of material. In fact, in some cases, our up above cost us at least twenty dollars a room, and the irruption of Indians still made it an expense of a sum to the amount of news; and, in fact, at the time we obtain the latest news of Indians, but there is a prospect of improving, as the present probability of paying the mail increases to about forty-four miles per day, and we expect once a week instead of twice in two weeks.

We acknowledge the kindness of our relatives appearing to complain, and hope in the future to be able to afford them an interesting reading matter.

We shall continue to publish the "SENTINEL" as a standard newspaper.

At all times advocating freedom and principles in proportion to us; and at no time will we quit the columns of the "SENTINEL" to accommodate with personal abuse.

We will advocate, on the organization of the State Government, the selection of men for office as will carry the best measures for Oregon. We are still to receive, as heretofore, a few lines of public paragraph.

PROTESTANT MESSAGE.—We publish Protestant message this week, because the reading public would be more interested in that than any other paper could be published. The protestant comes to the point in relation to the railroad, better than any other paper.

The construction of the railroad is of more national importance to the citizens of the United States, and particularly those located on the coast, than has heretofore been imagined, and we are much gratified to learn that Congress will act in the present session.

CONSTITUTION.—GOLDEN.—My arrival too late for appear next.

In relation to titles to lots in the city, and we will take it.

COLUMBIA MAGAZINE.—Received by last mail. This issue is rapidly obtaining circulation, for it is only geographic.—We had quite a reader within the last month of the time clear and

and clear, and easily

read, and
