RECIPE FOR SCARLET FEVER.—Methodist preachers, who keep their eyes open as they travel through the world, have very fine opportunities to become acquainted with the nature and the treatment of human diseases in its various forms. They are much sick rooms and the society of physicians, they are good observers. And not unfrequently do their opportunities furnish them with information of great importance to mankind. These reflections are suggested by a note from Rev. W. F. Wilson, of Painesville, Ohio, containing a receipt for cure of scarlet fever. Take our example, one year with another, no disease is so fatal among children. Sometimes it allies the skill of the most eminent physicians, and bids defiance to the most potent medicines. Last year it appeared in Painesville. Its victims were numerous, and many bewithstones were shadowed and made desolate. After some time the recipe given below was highly recommended by one who had seen its virtues tested. It was tried and proved a great success. This was the case in many families. The malady at length appeared in the family of Rev. Wilson, and his observation confirms our above testimony to the efficacy of the remedy. He sends us the recipe for insertion. It runs as follows: "Take one tablespoonful of spirits turpentine, half a spoonful of oil of juniper, and one teaspoonful of oil of cloves; mix half a pint of West India molasses with one pint of best quality of West India rum; simmer it together until all is mixed, in a new or bright pewter basin, covered over with a tin or pewter plate, so as to keep the steam from catching fire. Give to an adult half a tablespoonful once an hour (children in proportion), until the canker comes off the throat, and that will not be long. Then dilute it with tea made of saffron and catnip, equal quantities, with half the amount of snake-root added. This tea should be taken freely by the patient from the first. The above recipe is from Elder Rider.

A NEW MATERIAL IN WARFARE.—Chloride of nitrogen will, it is said, be utilized as an implement of war. Its employment would seem likely to put an end to all war. Mr. Isham Baggs, an English chemist, in announcing his discovery, proposes to carry up his composition in balloons, and drop it from the air in the midst of armies and fortresses. "The very mention of this compound," he goes on to say, "as a proposed agent in modern warfare, may possibly provoke a smile among chemists who know that the most accomplished of their number would scarcely dare to experiment with it in quantities larger than a grain of mustard seed, even when only at a respectable distance and under guard at the moment of its detonation."

And yet not one of those chemists would be bold enough to deny that, with two or three chemically clean carboys of this terrible compound present in a city or fortress, however strong, the slightest cuttings of phosphorus, or a single drop of olive oil, coming in contact with it, would in one instant decide the fate of the place and the inhabitants. Mr. Baggs then proceeds to affirm that he has discovered a method of overcoming the contingent difficulties, and that he is able to manufacture this deadly material with perfect safety, and in any required quantity, and that it can be safely conveyed to its destination.—Summary of Medical Science.

GOOD ADVICE.—A few years since a young man continually importuned Secretary Corwin for a clerkship. At last he advised him to "go out West, squat, build a cabin, and live like a freeman." The politician continued, "Accept a clerkship here, and you sink at once all independence; your energy becomes relaxed, and you are admitted to a few years for any other and more independent position. I may give you a place to-day, I can kick you out again to-morrow, and there's another man over at the White House who can kick me out. And the people by and by can kick him out. But if you own an acre of land it is your castle, you are a sovereign, and you will feel it in the very throbbing of your pulse, and every day of your life will assure me of your thanks for having thus advised you."
