

I'll be a farmer. I am the lad that follows the plow...

Out in the Meadows and woods and lanes Robin and thrush just whistle for me...

I go with father to shear the sheep—Robin and thrush just whistle for me...

I help the peaches and plums to swell—Robin and thrush just whistle for me...

When I am a man I'll own a farm—Robin and thrush just whistle for me...

'Tis better to stand in the green corn—Robin and thrush just whistle for me...

'Tis better to hear the wild birds sing—Robin and thrush just whistle for me...

FROM THE CAPITAL.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Feb. 19, 1881.

Senator Bayard is an astonished man. As Chairman of the Finance Committee he had abundant means of finding how senators stood upon the Funding Bill...

The Senate, too, in most other matters, is making less than the usual number of amendments to House bills. One exception will be the legislative, executive and judicial bill...

The apportionment bill, though its defeat at this session would cost the States millions of dollars for extra sessions of legislatures, seems doomed to defeat.

No other political journey, of late years, has caused so much sensation among Congressmen as that of Senator Conkling to Mentor.

A Roaring Camp.

The Homer Index man writes to a friend in Virginia City in the following strain regarding that roaring camp: "This will be the best camp in the Spring."

Fernando Wood's funeral to-day at his late residence in this city, will be more largely attended by Members of Congress than any previous one for many years.

Mark Twain's Advice to Scribblers.

Here are some words of sarcastic advice from Mark Twain which are often put into an editor's head by matters not wholly connected with the contents of his letter-box.

Killing His Wife by Mistake.

Charlotte, C. H., Va., Feb. 5th—On Wednesday evening a white woman went into John Dempt's house, in Checkertown, Charlotte county, and asked to stay a day or two.

Utmost Contempt.

A sailor was tried last week for theft at Brest. The evidence was strong against him. The judges asked him if he had anything to say.

SIMON SHORT'S SORROWS.

The following very amusing and ingenious composition has been sent to us for publication. It may serve as a very good exercise for rhetorical reading.

Simon Short sewed shoes. Seventeen summers' speeding storms spreading sunshine saw Simon's small shabby shop still standing staunch.

"Simon Short, Smithfield's sole surviving shoemaker. Shoes soled, sewed superbly." Simon's sedulous spouse, Sally Short, sewed shirts; stitched stuffed sofas.

Simon's six stout, sturdy sons, Samuel, Seth, Stephen, Saul, Silas, Shadrach, sold sundries. Sober Seth sold saddles, stirrups, sagacious Stephen sold, silks, satins, shawls; skeptical Saul sold silver salvers; seth Shadrach sold salvers, shoestrings, soap, snuff akates; slack Silas sold Sally Short's stuffed sofas.

Some seven summers since Simon's second son Samuel saw Sophonia Spriggs somewhere—sweet, sensible, smart Sophonia Spriggs. Sam soon showed symptoms. Sam seldom stood selling saddles. Sam sighed sorrowfully, sought Sophonia Spriggs' society, sung several serenades.

Simon stormed, scolded severely, said Sam seemed so silly singing such senseless songs, strutting, spendthrift scater-brained simpleton—"Softly, sire," said sweet Sally, "Sam's smitten—Sam's spoiled some sweet-heart."

"Sentimental! silly school-boy," snarled Simon. "Smitten! Stop such stuff!" Simon sent Sally's snuff-box spinning, seized Sally's scissors, smashed Sally's spectacles, scattered several spoons.
