Effect of Environment on a Watch. "It is curious to notice the effect of certain atmospheres upon timepieces of a certain kind," said A. G. Graham of Chicago. "I have a watch of the old fashioned type, which I always carry with me wherever I go, first, because it's a curiosity, and, secondly, because it is a gift from a much beloved friend. Well, this watch has a habit of running ahead of time. In my own city, or here in St. Louis, for example, it gains five minutes in every 24 hours. This is noticeable because it means nearly two hours a month. I have a way of letting it run for a length of time, say six months, so that it regulates itself practically in that time. It manages to make about 13 hours, and when a timepiec is that much ahead of or behind time it is just as good as if it were perfect. A short while ago I was compelled to visit Philadelphia, from which city I am just returning. During my stay there the watch lost five minutes a day, and the loss was as regular as the gain was in Chicago or in your city. I have a theory upon the subject.

"I believe that the movements of a man have more or less effect upon a watch. Now, almost every man readily falls into the ways and gait of his fellows. In Chicago or in St. Louis every man likes to be five minutes ahead of time. In Philadelphia every one says: 'Well, there's no hurry. Five minutes behind time will make no difference,' and from this follows that slow, easy gait which is the most striking characteristic of the Quaker City. It would seem the watches keep time in the same fashion, as if in sympathy with their owners. So you see there is pretty good reason for the allegation with regard to TRADE MARK 57 South Fifth Avenue, New York, N. Y. Philadelphia's proverbial slowness."-St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Magie In India.

Some recent travelers who have seen the magicians of India reported that the skill of these jugglers has been over-rated, and that their tricks are really less wonderful than they have been said to be. But Mr. Kellar, who is himself a slight of hand expert, thinks differently. He says that the Hindoo wizards perform tricks that he can neither duplicate nor understand, so marvelous are they. This is what he relates of one whom he saw at the Chuddermunzil elub at Lucknow:

"He took a board and placed it on four glass goblets, thus elevating it from the floor. A youngster sitting on the board was requested to place his hands together, palms up. Then the juggler took a glass of water and poured it into the meantime the boy had been mesmerized, and his attention was fixed on a point indicated by the magician. Gradually the water turned green in color and then developed into a jelly which increased in density until it became as solid as a stone. Out of the center of this appeared the head of a snake, which gradually developed until in the place of the water there appeared a hissing reptile. I was amazed, I can assure you, but the trick was not yet completed. to his lips and drank the entire contents. This was the most wonderful trick I ever

Mark Twain's Criticism.

There is only one expert who is qualified to examine the souls and the life of a people and make a valuable reportthe native novelist. This expert is so rare that the most populous country can never have 15 conspicuously and confessedly competent ones in stock at one time. This native specialist is not qualified to begin work until he has been absorbing during 25 years. How much of scious "observation?" The amount is so slight that it counts for next to nothing in the equipment. Almost the whole capital of the novelist is the slow accumulation of unconscious observation -absorption.

The native expert's intentional observation of manners, speech, character and ways of life can have value, for the native knows what they mean without having to cipher out the meaning. But I should be astonished to see a foreigner get at the right meanings, catch the elusive shades of these subtle things. Even the native novelist becomes a foreigner, with a foreigner's limitations, when he steps from the state whose life is familiar to him into a state whose life he has not lived. Bret Harte got his California and his Californinas by unconscious absorption and put both of them into his tales alive, but when he came back from the Pacific to the Atlantic and tried to do Newport life from study-conscious observation-his failure was absolutely monumental. —Mark Twain in North American Review.

"I say, Gaddersby," said Mr. Smith as he came into the fishmonger's with a lot of tackle in his hand. "I want you to give me some fish to take home with me. Put them up to look as if they've been caught today, will you?"

"Certainly, sir," said the fishmonger. "How many?" "Oh, you'd better give me three or four barbel. Make it look decent in quantity without appearing to exaggerate, you know."

"Yes, sir. But you'd better take salmon, hadn't you'?'

"Why, what makes you think so?" "Oh, nothing, except that your wife was down here early this afternoon and said if you dropped in with your fishing tackle and a generally weebegone look to have you take salmon if possible, as she liked that kind better than any oth-
