JOYANCE AND SPRING.

Dear, what hast thou to do With the cold moon,
Free to roam and to change
So far and soon?

HIS WAX FIGURE.

We had been discussing fame and its reward. We assumed that we, each and all of us, had attained eminence, and we speculated on the honor that we should expect to receive from a gracious sovereign and a grateful country. Some chose the Garter, others an earldom, others a pecuniary grant, but Colonel Holborow would have none of these.
He postponed them, and bringing his hat down on the table declared: "There is only one indispensible and supreme mark of greatness."
"And what is that?" asked one of us.
"Why, to be in the waxworks," said he.

JOYANCE AND SPRING.

"She pointed to the other end of the gallery."
"It's my husband's mother," she whispered. "She must have had a suspicion and followed us. What shall I do?"

WOLLENBERG & ABRAHAM

Roseburg, Or.

JOYANCE AND SPRING.

"Then I'll wait," said the man, and he sat down.
"As you may suppose, my brain was being driven these 15 minutes. If I could speak alone to Maribon for an instant, I saw my way. An idea struck me. Speaking as well as I could through the mouth hole, I suggested that we were probably all third, and I held out some rubles. The gentleman fetch some brandy? He wavered and fell. He was gone five minutes. When he returned, my face was uncovered and Maribon richer by some valuable instructions and a couple of thousand more rubles.

JOYANCE AND SPRING.

It is simply this—that in the morning of the day before yesterday, at the invitation of my good and distinguished friend, Mr. Dexter, whose merits the czar, no less than myself, is delighted to see recognized, I accompanied him to this gallery, incoffined, for the purpose of giving him my opinion on the experimental figure. The figure was then in its place, and I inspected it in company with Mr. Dexter himself. It will hardly be suggested that I saw double."
