line to connect up the peninsula of Coos Bay $6,000 was subscribed by prominent citizens of Marshfield and North Bend Wednesday. The com-$100,000 is in sight. There seems every assurance that Marshfield and North Bend will be connected by an electric line.

The men who worked to secure the subscriptions were C. S. Winsor, H. Sengstacken, W. R. Rust, F. S. Dow and F. B. Waite. Mr. Waite, who has been one of the prime movers in the proposition, as well as the rest Important Improvement Will Be contest for a gold medal. The Myrtle to be piled up in the streets on Friof the committee, were greatly pleased with the results of Wednesday's work.

There was not a single instance of any one refusing to contribute. On the other hand the committee say they were accorded the most hearty receptions.

Another opportunity today will be with the proposed Coos Bay electric line. W. U. Douglas has been engaged as attorney and will get out incorporation papers and file them at once with the secretary of state and the county clerk. Immediately on the approval of them franchises will be drawn up and presented to the city councils of Marshfield and North Bend.

That everybody seems to think the time is here for a road was manifested by the large number of small subscriptions which were secured. With but $40,000 more to raise, and that practically certain, there seems to be no question regarding the ultimate success of the Coos Bay electric

The right of way as planned will extend from the railroad passenger station in Marshfield down Broadway and Cedar to the intersection of Front street, when it will parallel the water front to the Dimmick property, thence on Tremont street to Porter addition, where it will run back of the Porter mill and sash and door factory and down to old North Bend.

The road will be a common user and will carry both freight and passengers. The plans are to leave the granting of terminal rights to the discretion of the city councils. Thus any road that desired could, at a nominal cost, if the council saw fit, handle cars on the electric line. The passenger rate between Marshfield and North Bend will be ten cents.

It is estimated that between 300 and 400 people travel each day on the boats between Marshfield and North Bend.
