PAVING STREETS.

Marshfield needs streets. The city is rapidly attaining size and is becoming the mecca for many people in search of a suitable place to settle down in. One of the most important features of a city professing the advantages which we have here is good streets, and newcomers are apt to receive unfavorable impressions when they find the city has made no progress in this most important of municipal improvements. With the heavy amount of improvements which will be well under way this summer in the shape of residences and brick business blocks it becomes all the more imperative that the city formulate a definite policy regarding the kind and extent of paving to be done.

The city council is handicapped to a certain extent because of the fact that Marshfield has never had practical experience with brick or crushed stone pavements, and consequently is not acquainted with the paving qualities of the different compositions around the Coos Bay country. The initial steps in the paving question are difficult ones. The men entrusted with the responsibility of determining the kind of paving probably realize this more than any one else. In public questions such as this the thought is always present that the people will find grounds for censure. There should be no fault finding with any paving the city council may select.

The Times believes the people of Marshfield are anxious for paved streets. They have demonstrated it and their wishes should be followed. What kind of paving is to be utilized is to be decided by the council. If there is any stone around Coos Bay which might be used in paving it would not be amiss to give it a trial on a short street. By that method it can be demonstrated to the satisfaction of all whether it will be a paying investment to lay the paving on Marshfield's streets. It is generally conceded that this place will increase rapidly in population in the next five years. If it does then any paving laid will no doubt be superseded by brick, asphalt or bituminous pavements. The city council should bear this in mind at this time, and not incur too heavy an expense on what will no doubt be a temporary pavement. One advantage of a crushed rock pavement is that it can be utilized as a bed for any of the pavements mentioned above. Once the people of Marshfield see the advantage of a good pavement they will renounce forever mud and plank streets. The plank street is not only expensive, but a serious menace to public safety.

June 27th, 1907.

To the Hon. Mayor and Councilmen of North Bend, a Municipal Corporation of Coos County, Oregon.

Gentlemen.—You are hereby notified that I demand, and if not paid will bring suit to collect the same, the sum of Twenty-five Dollars ($25.00) for each and every day my Mill on Pony Slough in Coos County, Oregon, is detained from running, owing to your town Marshal, on the 25th day of June, 1907, taking from my possession one Donkey Engine and Equipments used by me in connection with my said Mill for logging and other purposes; said bill of $25.00 per day will be demanded and collected until said Donkey is returned to my possession or a new one is obtained, as my Mill is ready for use and only not running for the reason that the same is suspended for the want of said Donkey Engine.
