NEWS OF NORTH BEND

Doings as Recorded by Times' Regular Correspondent

While launching the E. P. Ripley, a tow boat Saturday afternoon at 4:30 o'clock at the Kruse and Banks ship yard one of the large timbers broke which caused the boat to get stuck after sliding about one hundred feet. She will have to be towed out of the mud which will be a very inconvenient thing to do as the water is low at that point even at high tide. The Ripley is the last boat to be built at the stove mill ship yards and hereafter Kruse & Banks will operate their plant at Porter. About one hundred people from this city attended the launching and all were disappointed in seeing her get stuck as she was gliding into the water.

YESTERDAY'S FOOTBALL

Portland, Oct. 26.—Idaho went down to defeat today before the Oregon University eleven, but it was a splendid defeat. The Idaho men fought every inch of the losing game, which ended 21 to 5 against them, and their team work, especially in making the forward pass, was unexcelled. Oregon relied for victory upon her runners and upon kicking. The notable players in this respect being quarterback Kuykendall and halfback Taylor, whose long end runs were instrumental in swelling Oregon's score, and fullback Clark whose punting resulted in frequent and substantial gains.

COLORS WILL AID IN CURES

Memorial Hospital in Chicago Has New Scheme of Color Management.

SPECIAL KINDS OF FOOD

Phone to Be At Every Bedside—Not A Corner in Any of the 60 Rooms.

Chicago, Oct. 26.—The practical value of the curative powers of soft colors and scientifically prepared foods will be demonstrated for the first time in Chicago with the opening of the Henrotin Memorial hospital Nov. 1.

The hospital building, at La Salle avenue and Oak street, has been designed by the Polyclinic Hospital association with this object constantly in view. While the hospital's staff of physicians is working directly on the physical ailments of the patients the delicate tints with which the walls of the various rooms have been decorated—nearly every room a different shade—are expected to work a soothing charm on the mental and the scientifically prepared foods on the physical self of the patient.

These are not the only novel features of the new hospital. It is a six story structure of reinforced concrete with sixty rooms for patients. There is not a ward in it. The nearest approach to the hospital ward will be where two patients are placed in one room, and this will not be done except where it is considered necessary for the patients so placed to have company.

Planned by Dr. Henrotin.

The new hospital is the result of long planning on the part of the late Dr. Fernand Henrotin, who, until his death last December, was president of the Polyclinic Hospital association. After his death the members of the association agreed that his work should be completed in such a manner as to be a fitting memorial to the physician.

The decorative work on the interior is about completed. With the exception of the top floor, which will be used exclusively for surgical operations and surgical patients, the soft will prevail. The theory is that many patients suffer as much from uncongenial surroundings as from the ailment which takes them to the hospital. An artistically decorated room, the physicians believe, may work as much harm on a sensitive patient as lack of nourishment. For this reason the patient will be permitted, if he wishes, to select the room in which he is to remain while at the hospital.

The preparation of the food for the patients has been placed in the charge of a chef educated along such lines as would fit him for his peculiar task. It is planned that every article of food that enters into the daily diet of the patients shall be examined thoroughly.

The entire basement has been given over to kitchens and rooms where the food will be prepared. The first floor will be devoted to offices. The next four floors have been divided into the rooms to be occupied by patients. There are sixty of them.

One of the peculiar features of these rooms is that there is not a corner in any of them. Every approach to a corner has been rounded off in such a manner as to preclude the possibility of a stray bit of dust or lost germ finding lodgment there. Even the hardwood floors are curved up to the walls.

Every article of furniture on the sixth floor, where the surgical operations are to be performed, is of white enamel. The walls and ceilings also are pure white.

The entire structure is fireproof. The only wood that enters into the construction is used in the doors.

Phone For Every Patient.

In each room and at the bedside of each patient will be found a telephone with outside connections—another innovation in a hospital.

"Every detail has been worked out with a view to having a hospital that would be a fitting memorial to Dr. Henrotin and of the greatest possible value to the city," said Dr. John H. Chew, president of the association. "I am doing my best to correct the generally accepted idea that exorbitant prices are to be charged. They will be no higher than those of other hospitals of all reputable physicians.

SHE HAD THEM ALL

Most Remarkable Case in All Medical History.

What physicians look upon as the most remarkable case in medical history was revealed this week by the autopsy following the death of Mrs. Stevens, who has lived for months with a hole in her heart, through which the blood leaked out. According to all the laws of science this trouble, the first of its kind to be recorded, ought to have caused death as soon as it begun. Mrs. Stevens was literally the sickest person on record, suffering in addition to the heart trouble, which carried her off, for which a name has not yet been chosen, from at least six other deadly diseases, to say nothing of minor ones.
