AGED INDIANS FOUND DEAD

Age Exposure and Grief Causes
Death of Two About 100
Years Old.

Word was received by Dr. Mings last night that two old Indians had been found dead in their cabin at the mouth of Larsen's Inlet, and he visited the scene this morning to ascertain what was the matter. The Indians proved to be "Old Lyman," and his wife "Euse Ann," names given to them by white people years ago because their own names were hard to pronounce. The scene at the cabin was pitiable in the extreme, as both the old people were nearly 100 years old and had nobody to attend to them.

A rancher passing the place a week ago today saw signs of life about the place, but since that time there had been no sign of movement. Dr. Mings is of the opinion that the old couple died last Monday, the wife because of exposure and the old Indian because of grief over the passing of his long life partner.

The body of the woman was found half way between the cabin and the water in a nude condition, and it was evident that she had been bathing, as was her habit, in the waters of the Inlet. The exposure was evidently too great for her and she dropped dead on her way back to the cabin. The old husband, although crippled with paralysis, finding that his partner, who was quite blind, did not return, must have made his way to the remains after much effort.

He covered her body with his coat and a sheet, and then crawled back to his cabin and dropped dead, grief evidently affecting his numerous years and a weak constitution too greatly for him to stand the blow. This was what had happened judging from the finding of the bodies and their relative positions. The Indian's pipe was found beside the remains of his wife, and there was no sign of violence in either case.

That they had not starved was easily evident from the fact that there was plenty of food on the premises, also considerable clothing, most of which had been furnished by the county. Up to a short time ago the condition of the Indians was pitiable, because they were without food and were unable to help themselves. Mrs. Henry Sengstacken interested herself on behalf of the Indians by asking the county to look after them. She had made them up a bundle of clothing and food and was to have taken the articles to the Indians in a few days, as she had become interested in their welfare. From the condition of the cabin, however, it has developed that they were not in need of anything except daily attention.

Very little is known of the old couple as they have kept to themselves for many years. It is claimed, however, that they were the oldest Indians of the Kusan tribe in Coos County, and that they were full grown before this section had ever been visited by whitemen. It was possibly because of this fact that they found it hard to become associated in any way with a race which has deprived them of their country.

The Indians do not keep track of their age, and while the deceased Indians may have been much more than a hundred years old, judging from their appearance, little is known about them, their age is placed close to the century mark. The remains will be laid to rest by the county authorities, and Dr. Mings does not think it necessary to hold an inquest over the remains.

BANQUET FOR HUGH BAILEY

Popular Bookkeeper Given
Ovation by Friends Here—
Leaves on Plant for East.

A banquet was tendered to Hugh Bailey, bookkeeper at the C. A. Smith Lumber company's mill on Saturday night by his office associates and friends in Marshfield. Mr. Bailey will leave on the next trip of the Plant for Minneapolis by way of San Francisco. He will join the ranks of the benedicts by marrying Miss Laura Bisanger, of his home city, and will engage in business for himself at that point.

Mr. Bailey has been bookkeeper at the mill for nearly a year and during his stay here has made numerous friends both among the other employees of the mill and among the young men of the city. Consequently when he sent in his resignation and prepared to depart, these same friends desired to show their appreciation of him and an excellent banquet at the Melrose grill was held for this purpose last Saturday evening, when the following sat down to a seven course dinner:

Bert Dimmick, Harry Butler, L. Liljeqvist, H. McLain, Alvin Loughlin, J. E. Oren, Hugh Bailey, C. H. Jenkins, Will Ekblad, W. J. Conrad, B. B. Asplund, G. A. Brown, D. A.

Allison, G. F. Mitchell, George Goodrum, Claude Nasburg, Laurence Holmberg, A. E. Fiske, John Dahlquist, Warren and Fred Painter.

Mr. Oren was toastmaster on this occasion and numerous responses mostly of humorous character were made. Mr. Bailey and his prospective bride were the subject of much congratulation and hearty good wishes, to which he responded in the manner in which they were extended. Mr. Allison, who recently arrived to take Mr. Bailey's place, was also toasted and responded to his "Impression of Coos Bay" in a way which showed he was greatly taken with his new quarters.

"Gents Furnishings and Poetry," was the toast George Goodrum was asked to respond to, which he did in a neat and humorous speech. Harry Butler talked on "Teddy Bears" and Claude Nasburg talked of Coos Bay. "Any old Thing," was the subject selected for Mr. Liljeqvist, who proved conclusively that he could make a neat oration on any subject. Mr. Fiske made a funny little speech on "Vicissitudes of a Purchasing Agent's Life," while Bert Dimmick made a touchdown on "Training for Football."

The banquet was what might be termed a "howling" success and the guests were at their best in the flow of language turned loose after the main part of the dinner had been disposed of, and when the cigars were reached everybody present was happy and anxious to toast Mr. Bailey for the last time as a bachelor, and to wish him "bon voyage" and a happy and prosperous future.
