THE PORTLAND POLICY.

From the signs most conspicuous in the press of Portland, and out of it there would seem to be a conspiracy afoot to center the political interests of Oregon at the metropolis along with other state-wide concerns. This may be all right, and it may not; and the people are beginning to weary of the one-town domination that leaves no choice to the outsider in the commercial and industrial affairs; and now to have the political dictum taken over there, may prove too much for the patience that has been stretched to breaking.

The Portland sentiment seems to be verging on the Wilcoxian doctrine of "Portland against the state," a slogan that makes the metropolis hateful abroad in Oregon; but, since she has practically half the population of the state, it is pertinent and logical. Just how the absorption is going to be taken in the outlying districts remains to be seen; and there is a chance for some pretty hot contests at the polls and in the legislature, and in which the Multnomahans may find barriers worth their notice.

What does Portland want, anyway?

Must the balance of this state renounce its claims to choice and free expression in all things political, simply to satisfy the lust for control and prestige that is warping the common sense and decent judgment of the metropolis? sagely remarks the Astorian. We had best come to an understanding at once on this score and determine just how much of Oregon lies beyond the doors of Multnomah, so far as constitutional liberty and action are concerned. It is time the people were awakening to the ambition of our one great city and curbing its insensate craving for all power in the commonwealth commercial, political and industrial. This, or sanction, by legislative enactment, the obliteration of her municipal status, and make her dominion statewide, with a franchise that shall count us all citizens of Portland unaccountable to other authority of any kind.

The Drain and Coos Bay stage line has transferred its Marshfield agency from Norton & Hansen store to H. C. Breckenridge, agent, at the office of the Coos Bay Transportation Co., A Street Dock. For information phone 1631 or inquire of Capt. Holden, of the launch Gasco.

TREES.

"Woodmen, spare that tree!"
We sang it long ago;
But just the same the woodman came
And laid the giants low.
We turned them into tables,
We chopped them into pegs
And things unique in styles antique,
With queer, unsteady legs.
We swept them from the hillside
And from the mountain stream.
And lest the ax our arms might tax,
We sawed them up by steam;
And even art got busy
With geometric marks;
To ease the nerves that shrank from curves,
They cleared them from the parks.
Across the sterile plaza
The winter winds blow free;
On summer days the sun's hot rays
Beat fierce as fierce can be;
"Ah, spare that tree"—the echo
Falls on the desert air,
But such is fate; 'tis all too late,
There are no trees to spare.
—Washington Evening Star.

The following "want ad." was handed in by Attorney Goss, and as he desired it to appear following and surrounded with "pure" reading matter it is given a place in this column.

LOST.—A facial expression. Anyone seeing a strenuous look coming up the street without an owner are requested to return it to J. H. U., city recorder's office, and receive suitable reward.

One of those automatic jokes—an automatic joke is one that just works itself—happened in Marshfield recently. Attorney Tom Hall is having a new launch built, which will be christened "Maud." He employed an artist to draw a couple of cards to be fastened to the launch bearing the legend:

Her Name is :
MAUD."

These cards were set up in his office to dry when F. S. Dow in his busy rounds dropped in. Now F. S. never overlooks an opportunity to make a business deal or a joke. Shortly after his departure Attorney Hall noticed that one of his new and nicely painted cards was missing. He remembered Dow's visit and also his predilection for jokes. Going out into the hallway on his way to Dow's office he was surprised to notice the card hanging from Dr. Toye's doorway. Laughingly Hall called Dr. Toye's attention to the card and then it developed that a little leap year girl had arrived only that very morning at the doctor's household, a fact which Dow did not know when he sprung his joke which he did not know was loaded. The doctor says, however, he will be ducked in the bay if he is going to let either F. S. Dow or Attorney Hall select a name for the little queen of the Toye home.
