

All Oregon

Will be at the Coos and Curry District Fair

August 26 to 29 Inclusive
MARSHFIELD, ORE.

They will find the grounds in better condition and more attractive than ever before. They will find many new buildings. All in all, they will see that Coos Bay has the best facilities of any section of the Southwest Oregon for holding a big fair. The increased cash premiums and specials will bring the greatest live stock show ever seen on the coast, and it will compare favorably with the best fairs of any section of the west. Some of the best horses on the coast will be here to participate in the speed program. Some of the most attractive purses ever hung up for a fair race meet will make each individual event worth coming a long distance to see. The counties will put up their best in trying to secure the prizes for the exhibits of their products. There will be special rates on all lines of transportation for passengers and special freight inducements for all exhibits. If you wish any particular information it will be cheerfully given by

STRENGTH

In a bank lies, first, in the ability and experience of its officers, "The men behind the gun;" second, its board of directors who advise with and direct the officers; and third, the Capital.

LIBERALITY—In a bank is its willingness to furnish funds to depositors to assist them in carrying on their legitimate business. Our motto is:

"STRONG AND LIBERAL"—Look us up and if you find us deserving, give us your business.

Oh, What Joy!

"Cured at last! Oh, what joy to think that I have at last been cured of that awful bowel trouble," are the words of A. C. Butler of Cold Springs, Texas, who suffered off and on for twelve months with a disorder of his bowels, and finally, after almost giving up in despair, was cured by Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. No one need suffer from colic or diarrhoea, for this remedy always gives prompt relief. For sale by JOHN PREUSS.

THE ENTHUSIAST.

Postpones Vacation After Working Day and Night For a Week.

I remember the morning when we first met and he told me about it.

His step was light and springy. His color was good. His eye was bright.

"Yes," he said in answer to my inquiry, "we are getting ready to go on our vacation."

"Have you arranged?"

"I'm just doing that now; have given up the day to it."

Later I met him again.

"Not off yet?" I asked.

"Not yet. It takes a little time to adjust things. There's quite a lot to do. But," he continued brightly, "if all goes well we shall be started by the first of the week, Tuesday at the very latest."

The next day I ran across him in the bank. He apologized for running into me.

"Somewhat of a rush," he said; "have had to fix up a lot of odds and ends—get my book balanced and lay out certain schedules."

"That's all right," I said sympathetically. "I understand. You are—"

"Getting along nicely," he muttered, with a slightly tired voice, as he rushed away.

Two days passed. Suddenly I ran across him in the postoffice. He carried a bundle of mail. He dragged one foot feebly after the other.

"Still at it?" I asked. "Still getting ready for that vacation?"

"Yes," he whispered. "Say, maybe I haven't been working like a slave!"

He glanced at his watch. "Must hurry to meet my wife. She wants me to help her pick out some clothes. And me up to my ears!"

"Haven't got things fixed yet?"

"No, no! But I hope to by Monday. Been working every night for a week. But maybe we won't have a good time when we get off! The thought of it is all that keeps me alive."

He shuffled away. Could this decrepit creature be the sprightly one of a week ago? Days passed. A week later I met him again. He looked better. He was walking slow.

"Hello!" I cried. "I thought you were going on that vacation."

"I was, but—"

"You don't mean to say that you gave it up?"

He nodded.

"I had to," he replied. "The doctor said that in my condition it wasn't safe to get far away from home."—Tom Masson in Puck.

Tourists Take Warning.

The summer residents of Weymouth, Mass., were greatly amused by the pranks of some young humorists who were in the habit of changing letters on signs so as to make them read in new and startling ways. The latest escapade had to do with the sign of an estimable old man who advertised on a big board that he would carry a trunk to any part of the town for 25 cents. Imagine the surprise of the incoming tourists as they saw for the first time the bold sign, "Drunks Carried to Any Part of Weymouth—25c."—Lippincott's Magazine.

A Somnambulist.

A man addicted to walking in his sleep went to bed all right one night, but when he awoke he found himself on the street in the grasp of a policeman. "Hold on!" he cried. "You must not arrest me. I'm a somnambulist." To which the policeman replied: "I don't care what your religion is. Yer can't walk the streets in yer nightshirt."

Making Enemies.

"In order to succeed in life," said the experienced person, "you must not be afraid to make enemies."

"Then," answered the tractable youth, "you would probably advise me to put in some time as a baseball umpire."—Washington Star.

The Limit.

"There's nothing that makes a would-be society woman madder than to find her name left out of the report of some swell function she attended."

"Unless it's to find besides that her rival's name is in."—Catholic Standard and Times.
