

OPEN PUBLIC LANDS SOON

Settlers Can Take Up 91,840 Acres In Lane, Douglas and Benton Counties.

ROSEBURG, Ore., Oct. 12.—Upon order of the Secretary of the Interior, another public land opening will take place at the United States land office in Roseburg on December 21, 1908. The area embraced in the order is approximately 91,840 acres, but it is estimated that not more than one-fourth of the land will actually be available for entry. The larger part of the land was covered either by homestead or timber entries and railroad scrip prior to its inclusion in the Umpqua National Forest by order of President Roosevelt on March 2, 1907. Most of the land lies in Lane county. The remainder lies in Northern Douglas county and southern Benton county.

President Roosevelt's order was made at the time congress was about to pass a law taking the power of creating forest reserves out of his hands. Regardless of what had been filed on or selected under the new land law, the President's order swept almost every bit of unpatented land into reserves. There it remained until the government could select the best timbered tracts that had not been appropriated. This was followed by throwing the remainder open to entry, and the order for the opening next December is one of several that have been issued from the Interior department since that time. Among other things the order says that while the land will become subject to settlement (squatting) on and after Dec. 21, they will not be available to entry, filing or selection until on and after January 20, 1909. Warning is given that no person will be permitted to gain or exercise any right whatever under any settlement or occupation begun prior to December 21, 1908, and "that all such settlement or occupation is hereby forbidden."

All of the land lies south and west of the Willamette Meridian, and is particularly described as follows:

MEDICAL MAXIMS.

It is an ill wind that blows the doctor good.

To err is normal; to cure divine. A patient in the office is worth two in the grave.

Never operate during periods of depression, particularly financial.

It is better to have operated and lost, than to never have operated at all.

A stitch in time saves embarrassment.

An ounce of pretension is worth a pound of cure.

When patients relapse, it's nature's fault; when they die, it's their own.
