WORLD PULP AND NEW PAPER WATER

To insure a fully wood supply to meet adequately the future needs of the country seems one of the most important of the many forest problems of the United States.

It is estimated that there are 675 million cords of wood destroyed in waste burnings at the lumber mills of the country each year.

These figures make it look as if American foresters, who are performing wonderful feats in other fields, should get down to the consideration of methods to make these waste stumps available for the pulp markets.

It is true that some utilization is being made of mill waste at present but in most cases it is only the larger and more modern plants that are even making any attempt in this line.

The new furnace slag waste have been added upon by the brick maker, and the increasing demand of the coal mines has become a valuable source of raw material for the brick-making industry.

BUSINESS TEUTHS.

A soap millionaire and an actor-manager were talking business. "I," said the actor-manager, "have discontinued the use of posters. My arrangements appear in the newspapers exclusively. I have learned that those who don't read the papers don't go to the theater."

"You are wise," said the soap millionaire. "And I do like you. Long since I discarded every form of advertisement save that of the press, finding that they who didn't read a daily paper had no use for soap."—Pittsburg Chronicle-Telegraph.

With the Toast and Tea

GOLD EVENING.

Distraction the hand are silver and gold, but the heart gives that which neither silver nor gold can buy.

A Changeless Friend.

I am the friend through good report and ill; Through loss of fortune, wounds, grief and pain; Through days of sunshine and its sleep and rain.

With sadness for thy weal, my eyes shall fill.

With cheer to soothe thy grief, oh, I would fain.

Till the perplexing career is overed o'er.

Success or failure, I am thy friend still.

If you through human weakness err, it shame.

Be thy portion, doleful fortune's frown.

This world forsakes thee, be not thou cast down.

For, come what will, I still shall be the same.

As changeless as the sea unto the end.

Through all eternity I am thy friend!

BEAM FOR GOD JR.

The melancholy days have come. The sunset of the year.

When explanations for my self My loved ones whisper.

With tenders for they stand around and goodly come.

Who causes that surmised To bring me to this plight.

"You caught it going out at night Without an overcoat."

"You caught it by neglecting To protect your chest and throat."

"You caught it at the opera."

"Through how is not quite plain."

"You caught it by forgetting To wear rubbers in the rain."

"You caught it—!" But what looks it?

That they tell me when at how? The thing they seem to overlook Is that I have it now!

Why doesn't some newspaper manufacturer put a key in a machine that will make a four? It would come in handy for those who are bad spelled.

The True Philosopher.

Far out a-sightin' for trouble— "Nectar for pleasure good, Give us the work to do, Lord, But—don't give the trouble out!"

In the Good Old Time.

"What does this mean, father? There is money for all on the earth?" asked the young hopeful.

"Ah, that refers to the time before there were any motors," came the response from one who was a little worse for wear from auto motors on North Front street.

BOYCRAFT PHILOSOPHY.

The first thing in the common-sense creed is obedience. Do your work with a whole heart. Revolt is sometimes necessary, but the man who mixes revolt and obedience is doomed to disappoint himself and everybody with whom he has dealings. To favor work with protest is to fail absolutely. When you revolt, why revolt—climb, get out, hike, defy—tell everybody and everything to go to. That disposes of the case. You thus separate yourself entirely from those you have served—do one unambiguously—you have declared yourself. Do not pretend to obey, and get carry in your heart the spirit of revolt in to do half-hearted obedient work.

People are always asking you to follow their advice, but they are seldom willing to tell you which way it went.

Freedom and death are Russian wine.

It is that ministers to human happiness is divine.

A good man will ever respect you for an honest conviction, whether he agrees with it or not matters little.

Nature gives us facts, but it is for man to shall truths from facts.

Falling in love is a matter of permission prominently. The cure is—propensity.

Dear little and grandiose derive a person of the power to arrive at correct conclusions.

To possess a beautiful voice you must be genuine.

In things he has always been regarded as more important than that which you know.

The joy of reading consists in self-discovery.

Leaves of thinking your thoughts and feeling of your feelings.

Emotive equilibrium is made stable by progressive motion. The wine stands still is lost.

The strong man's coward lies in being strong. Is that not enough?"

Happy is the man who stress only in his sleep.

Reason is largely a matter of digestion.

Every trade and profession requires its own man.

The voice should be the something of the soul.

For some of health is worth a pound of silver.

Think less about your rights, more about your duties.

See high and consider yourself capable of great things.

Action will remove the doubt which theory cannot solve.

The sweetest thing on earth is the pleasure of pleasing.

Those who do the most in the world are those who free most.

Any man who plots another's undoing is undoing his own.

The man who pursues pleasure will never catch up with her.

Take off your hat to the man who minds his own business.

It is what we think and what we do that makes us what we are.

Character is the result of two things, mental attitude and the way we spend our time.

Do not fear being misunderstood and never waste a moment thinking about your enemies.

Never do anything disagreeable, but look even in your anger to please it whenever you do or say.

A genuine memory may be a good thing, but to the able to forget is a true token of greatness.

Don't tell about what you would do if you were some one else—just show what you can do for yourself.

BUMBLE STARTS OF BOG

RAILROAD MEN

James F. Hill started his career as a stewardess in the docks at St. Paul, while Harlan was the son of a poor country clergyman. Jan. Nelson, president of the Pennsylvania, began working upon railroads as a roofer. Oscar O. Murray, president of Baltimore & Ohio, was originally a street agent. Charles E. Nelson, president of the New York, New Haven & Hartford, began as a clerk in the cashier's office. Geo. F. Swer, of the Reading, was originally a printer. Mr. William C. Van Horn—An American by birth—was one of the creators of the Canadian Pacific, and Marvin Hughes, president of the Northwestern, both entered the railroad business as telegraph operators. George E. Harris, of the Burlington, was an office boy, Frederick D. Underwood, of the Erie, was a brakeman, and William H. Newman, president of the New York Central and all the Vanderbilt lines, was originally a station agent.

ROBS STORE IN COQUILLE

THEIR BREAKS INTO KEPT. BUTLER'S PLACE AND GETS AWAY WITH ABOUT $40 WORTH OF GOODS.

COQUILLE, Ore., Dec. 4.—Captain Butler's store, in the North end of town, was broken into and goods and money to the value of forty dollars were taken. There is no trace of the thief or thieves except one foot mark in the back of the store. The back door of the store was split off by the use of a crowbar. The burglar did his work very neatly and quietly there being no noise heard in the neighborhood of the store at all during the night. Captain Butler sleeps directly across the street from the store and is heard nothing suspicious at all.

Wednesday evening when he closed the store Captain Butler left small change to the extent of four or five dollars in the register. The thief took this together with about $15 worth of merchandise. The amount and the very material have both been notified but have not been able to report any progress on the case. It is thought that possibly the robbery may be in some way connected with the pilfering that has been in progress in Marshfield for the last few weeks.

CLEVELAND'S GOLDEN RULE.

In Cleveland, O., a man is treated as if he were a human being even though he gets drunk.

Everywhere the man who lapses into liquor is treated as if he were a brute.

In Cleveland the procedure of the law has been changed. Men may get drunk and even disturb the peace and still be treated as men.

They are seldom arrested. And if arrested they are treated as citizens.

In Cleveland honest men are not in any danger. As they were in the latter case a matter of trial may be signed without appearance in court.

Figure the saving to the city alone—time of the court and its branches, witness fees, wear and tear of court machinery and dollars paid to attorney lawyers for "defenses."

In other cities men who get drunk are not encouraged to reform. They are discouraged, intimidated—a worse of treatment than makes BAPTIST CRIMINALS.

What is the result of the Cleveland system?

Statistics show that there is less crime in the population than in any other city of the world and especially in this city.

This is true. The criminal system of this country is more than a hundred years behind the times, and the thousands who witness of the first part of the twentieth century will witness the part that tells of our present inhumanity.

What right has society to abuse and increase the unfortunate victim of drink?

We license the saloon keeper to make him drunk. He is weak. He is morally and physically diseased. In such instances HE CANNOT HELP GETTING DRUNK. Then we, in the person of a policeman, hit him over the head with a club and drag him to a vile jail. Could more inhuman treatment be invented?

We have made practically no attempt in the PREVENTION of crime in so far as our criminal procedure is concerned, in a hundred years. We know nothing but PUNISHMENT.

The city of Cleveland has quit the methods of the Old Testament—the old, old system that came in with the beginning of civilization—and has adopted the methods and spirit of the New Testament.

It is practicing the Golden Rule.

Uruguay is taking a national census. From 40,000 to 45,000 persons are engaged in the task, which works out at about one person in every twenty-five of the population of the republic. This large proportion is found necessary owing to the very scattered character of the population in certain parts of the interior, where there are only two or three inhabitants to the square mile.
