

UNITED STATES' PULP INDUSTRY

FIFTY-ONE MILLS USED 3,346,106 CORDS OF WOOD IN MANUFACTURING 2,118,947 TONS OF PULP LAST YEAR.

WASHINGTON, July 31. — Two hundred and fifty-one pulp mills in the United States used 3,346,106 cords of wood, and made 2,118,947 tons of pulp last year. Spruce has always been the leading pulp wood, and it furnished sixty-four per cent of the total quantity used. The rapid development of the wood-pulp industry in the last ten years has rendered the domestic supply of spruce insufficient to meet the demands upon it, and consequently importations from Canada have been heavy. In 1908 our pulp mills consumed nearly one and one-half million cords of domestic spruce, and over 870,000 cords of imported spruce, making the imports of spruce forty-five per cent of the domestic supply.

Next to spruce, the most important pulp wood is hemlock; 569,173 cords of it were converted into pulp last year. All the hemlock used was of domestic origin, and most of it was produced in the Lake States and Pennsylvania. Although now used in less quantity than spruce and hemlock, poplar has long been a standard pulp wood. A small quantity of poplar is imported, but by far the larger portion of the more than 300,000 cords used last year was cut from domestic timber. Spruce, hemlock, and poplar made up ninety per cent of the total quantity of pulp wood used. The remainder was supplied by many species, the most important of which were pine, cottonwood, and balsam.

The wood used by the pulp mills last year cost them a little more than $28,000,000, or an average of $8.38 per cord, against an average of $8.21 in 1907. The most costly wood used was imported spruce, with an average value of $10.60 per cord. The average for domestic spruce was $8.76 per cord and for poplar, $8.04 per cord. The cheapest wood which was used in large quantity was hemlock, the cost being $6.02 per cord. Owing to the uncertain business condition the total consumption of pulp wood in 1908 was nearly 16 per cent less than in 1907, but this did not prevent a considerable increase in the price of wood. The high price of wood is making the manufacturers be constantly on the lookout for cheaper raw material, and one of the most encouraging developments has been the increased use of slab wood and other sawmill waste. This drift in the industry is clearly indicated by the fact that 193,234 cords of mill waste were reported as consumed in pulp manufacture during 1907, while 252,896 cords, an increase of thirty per cent, were used in 1908.

These statements are based upon a preliminary report of the consumption of pulp wood in the United States in 1908 just issued by the Bureau of the Census. The Bureau of the Census and the Forest Service cooperate in the collection of annual statistics of forest products, and this preliminary report will soon be followed by a bulletin, which will give detailed information upon the use of pulp wood last year in the various states, the cost per cord, the amount reduced by the mechanical, sulphite, and soda processes, and other facts of interest to the industry.

GEORGIA ENTERS CLAIM FOR CHAMPION MEAN MAN

ATLANTA, Ga., July 31.—Misery that seems impossible is charged against E. Lee Douglass, an Atlanta business man worth $500,000, in a suit for divorce filed by his wife, Mrs. Emma Neal Douglass. Mrs. Douglass is a daughter of the late T. B. Neal, one of Atlanta's wealthiest men, and is worth $300,000 in her own right.

The couple were married in 1892 and Mrs. Douglas charges that her husband's saving began even in the honeymoon. He began at once charging her for every meal she ate and forced her to settle every month.

Mrs. Douglas says, for instance, that Douglass never tipped waiters or porters and that she had to do it out of her own means; that he required her to pay the extra expense of any guest she might have; that his written consent had to be obtained before such guests were invited; that he complained if the servants got anything to eat but bread; that he would have only one light in the house at night; that he got a profit of $5,000 a year from the management of her estate and wanted a salary besides, and so on.

Attached to the petition is a copy of a remarkable document which Douglass wanted his wife to sign, to regulate their lives.

One term of the agreement was that if they should quarrel the party who apologized should make a public or private apology and submit to being kissed 100 times. Mrs. Douglas says her husband actually enforced the penalty of 100 kisses against her once and made her sick.

Another clause of the agreement declares: "The enemies of the one shall be treated as the enemies of the other, and the friends likewise as friends of both."

She was never strong, she says, and her husband's conduct broke down her health until "he became a nightmare, a horrible spectre."

Preliminary work for the construction of India's large new steel plant, near Kallmat station, is making good headway. The plant on the Ramrana manganese property has proved to be of the highest value. A forty-five mile railway is already under construction.

Concrete itself is very old. The concrete stairs of Colchester and Rochester castles still show the marks of the incasing boards; the dome of Agrippa's Pantheon, which is 142 feet in diameter, is of concrete, and fragments of concrete buildings are found in Mexico and Peru.

Are You Well Armed?

In warfare, to meet a moderately-armed enemy, your own force equipped with obsolete weapons, would be worse than folly. Even the argument that you could not AFFORD modern arms or weapons would not excuse you. The enemy makes you pay for HIS. So it is in business. You must advertise in the most modern and aggressive ways or get out of the fight entirely.
