ALL FOR LOVE
Love laid down his bow and quiver,
Thinking he would rest a while;
All the world began to shiver,
All the world forgot to smile:

All the roses quickly faded,
All the music died away;
All the world at once grew fated,
Hope surrendered to Dismay.

Every soldier, doubting, halted,
War was glorious no more;
Hearts who had been exalted
Scorned the medals which they wore.

Men no longer sighed for riches,
Fame lost all the charms it had;
Stupid tollers in the ditches
Dropped their shovels and were sad.

Love took up his bow and quiver;
Blossoms bloomed upon the plain;
Proud swans floated on the river,
War was glorious again.

THE CHRISTMAS season belongs indisputably to the little ones. It is the one time in the year when they should be given first consideration, and so the wise mother will see, before she selects the intricate and elaborate articles her skilled fingers so easily fashion, that her small daughter has work which her baby hands may satisfactorily accomplish.

A set of sachets is a gift any girlie may make. It is one any grown-up will be delighted to receive. Six white or pale tinted envelopes are padded with cotton batting, thickly sprinkled with sachet. Around each is tied a different colored ribbon, held in place with a Santa Claus seal. Three sachets recently made are most effective. One has pale green baby ribbon laced in lattice fashion and held with two seals. One is tied with a red and green Dresden rosette formed of ends, fastened with a seal, and one has a bow of holly ribbon and a seal with a silver fringe, that gives a very Christmasy touch.

Simple Gifts.
There are any number of gifts that require no sewing—only careful pasting. A cornucopia is made simply by twisting a double sheet of heavy note paper and holding it in shape with holly seals. A fringe of cotton batting is pasted around the top, both inside and out. It is ornamented with a knot of tinsel, and a Santa Claus seal, set in a medalion of silver and white.

These medalions are excellent for ornamenting a Christmas tree, or the tops of boxes to be used as favors at a Christmas dinner. They are made on a circular or diamond-shaped foundation of white paper, covered with batting.

The "Snow Fringe."
To make the "snow fringe," cut a sheet of batting into strips two or three times wide, clip half way up, and then pull carefully apart, using the inside for the outside. The tinsel fringe is made by unraveling silver cord. These homemade ornaments will be found most satisfactory, and far less expensive than those shown in the stores.

A Present For Baby
A darling rattle for a baby is made by covering the pasteboard foundation of a bolt of baby ribbon with two thicknesses of batting sprinkled with sachet. One I saw recently had a Santa Claus seal on one side and a stork on the other. A strip of batting was put around it, and glued securely to this was a loop of ribbon. Then a band of ribbon, to which were tacked three silver bells, was put on. The stork "dew" from a scrap of kimono cloth, and was pasted to a stiff white paper, before the figure was cut out.

A Magazine Case.
A magazine case is easily made, requiring only careful cutting and pasting. It is a gift that will find a welcome in any well-kept library. If you have a small boy in the family, delight his heart by allowing him to make one or more for some grown-up friend. One I have in mind is made of two sheets of gray cardboard. It is held together with three bows of red satin ribbon, and ornamented with an artistic head cut from the cover page of a magazine. In making these cases, have the cardboard an inch longer and broader than the magazine for which it is intended.

The match scratcher is another gift a boy will take pleasure in making. Farmer John was out from a familiar advertisement. He hat was cut carefully from his head, and pasted on the wrong side of a sheet of black sandpaper. It was then cut out and pasted, rough side up, in its proper place. In one corner of the red cardboard mount, which is 10 1/2 x 8 1/2 inches, is fastened a pasteboard box, ornamented with a bunch of dried grass. The match is caught with a witch of red thread. The lettering—"This is where you strike your — Farmer John!"—is done in water-color.

The Portland Oregonian says: "An engagement which will prove most interesting is that of Miss Mary Montgomery, the eldest daughter of Mrs. J. B. Montgomery, to the Rev. Henry Russell Talbot, rector of St. David's Church. Miss Montgomery has always been prominently identified with society, and has gone in extensively for charity work. The Rev. Mr. Talbot arrived from Boston last February, and has made many
