VOTE FOR

G. A. MORSE

TALENT, OREGON.

For Representative to the Legislature from Jackson County.

I believe strictly in the principles of the progressive party and also the prohibition party, which I think goes just one step farther.

In the absolute protection of labor without impairment of the rights of capital.

The strict regulation of all trusts. In the suffrage for women on the same terms as men.

In the strict prohibition of the manufacture of liquor in any form.

I believe in liberal appropriations for Oregon enterprises where they will be of state-wide benefit.

Good roads legislation must be enacted whereby counties or communities can have as good roads as desired, and in a way that they can get the most for their money.

I believe the people are supreme and their wish should control.

Statement No. 1 should be carried out.

Thoughts from the Editorial Pen

The Old Home.

Well worth the recollection of an occasional hour.

Boys, do you ever sit down and talk for an hour over the scenes and adversities and the successes of childhood? Do you ever take time to look back over the hill of life and call up the days of ye olden times when you were at home under the protecting care of a fond father and a devoted mother? Do the early days spent possibly in a pioneer home ever occur to you as the happiest home of your eventful life?

These questions are for the "old boys," those who have passed the meridian of life and now are on the down slope, and who from natural causes will soon pass into the unknown beyond, where they are to enjoy the rewards that come of a well-directed life.

Boys, think of the old home where were father, mother, and the charming brothers and sisters whose whole aim was to keep home happy and make life a pleasure rather than a burden. You remember father's corner behind the big fireplace, do you not? See him as he sits and nods in the twilight of the dim fire and dreams of the day when his boys will be senators and will not have to stand the bitter trials of the dark forests or the treeless prairies.

Perchance he has tolled all day in the clearing, vigorously battling with nature for the ascendancy of the arts of man. He did these things you know and all for you too. His trials were bitter. His aims were noble. His object was happiness prompted by a motive of love. The home was crude, compared with the gorgeous palaces of these days. But the joy was there because father was and love because mother was. Yes, see her as she sits at her work over in the corner. She is the perfect embodiment of happiness. Her boys and girls are all at home. They are yet in their innocence and she knows their every thought and observes with pride their every act.

Father and mother, brothers and sisters. The old home! What depths of meaning lie in those words! There is comfort in them. They recall the innocent prattle of younger brothers and sisters. They recall the kindly directed efforts of the seniors to secure the joy and peace that comes from the fraternity of home with its bonds of affection.

The dim old forest and the wide, expanding prairie are there too. The low murmuring rill with its beautiful song is there. We were all there when we were young, but now we are old and all that we can do is recall, recall, recall.

Do this, boys, and see if you do not appreciate more fully all that you are and have. It is but just that you should affectionately look upon the past.

Mourning for the Dead.

There are few things in which men and women show themselves so irrational as in prolonged and consummate grief for the dead. It is not in human nature to be philosophic when the earth has closed over one we love, but to nourish agony and sorrow is nearly an abdication of reason itself. The God who orders our births, orders likewise our deaths. All must die. To die is as common and as natural as to live. Being common, universal, certain, it cannot be an evil. Those who have gone before, no matter how long their days, seem to have lived and vanished as creatures of the hour, so that even over the death of the young we should not lament at the seeming untimeliness of their taking off. It is indiscreet to assume that the death of the young is a peculiar calamity and hardship. How can we tell what they have escaped, or decide that they are not singularly fortunate? Who finds life such an un-mixed blessing as to grieve long over the translation of those who are yet innocent and happy to serene spheres. It is vain and unavailing to grieve over what has happened and cannot be altered. It does no good to the dead and it injures the living. It is also mutiny against the Presiding Judge of all. To honor the dead aright is to cherish fondly the memory of good dispositions and deeds, and make that memory a guide for our own spiritual attainments. This is better than marble slabs, glowing memorials or devouring pang of fruitless woe. The ancient world never clothed death with the terrors which came in with the church and the middle ages. Who grieves forever has no faith in a reunion. Such tears silently proclaim the fear of annihilation, the despair that forgets God.

We want girls with hearts; girls with tenderness and sympathy, with "tears that flow for others' ills," and smiles that light outward their sunny thoughts. We have clever girls and witty girls and brilliant girls. Give us a consignment of jolly, unaffected, natural girls, warm-hearted girls, with lots of fun and no coarseness; girls who can go out and romp in the snow and wash the snow in each others' faces, tug at a handkerchief, roll a snow ball and think it no forfeiture to their dignity to frolic with their ten-year-old brothers. With a few more such girls the world would brighten up as June does under showery weather. Speed the day when the world is full of them, to the extinction of the airy, affected, brainless mixers who think of nothing but of self and face powder.

Dead and cheese and kisses are better than sumptuously laden tables with no expression of love.

Journalist Jonah Defends the Faith.

A new champion of the direct primary has risen—the Portland Oregonian.

After ten years of strenuously battling against popular government, the Oregonian is now posing as its staunchest defender.

In the independent nomination of Jonathan Bourne, the Oregonian pretends to fear the annihilation of the Oregon system.

The shameful violation of the corrupt practices act to defeat Bourne arouses not a word of protest from the Oregonian. It is openly commended. But the idea that an appeal from the party faction to the people of the state should be made by the victim, is revolutionary, in the eyes of the reactionary journal.

The sole object of the direct primary is to let the people rule.

When the political party became the creature of the bosses, who controlled it for selfish ends, the direct primary was devised, to smash the bosses and give control to the rank and file.

When by means of law violation, misrepresentation and corruption, the control of the party is seized by faction, the remedy also lies in an appeal direct to the people.

There is no reason why the republican party in Oregon, which is progressive, should be bound to support a reactionary—and Selling is a Taft standpatter—because reactionary.

State party nominations mean less than ever this year. It is the personality of the man, his record, his beliefs, his ability that count—not the label that he wears.

Jonathan Bourne has made good as a progressive as well as senator. La Follette gives Bourne highest praise as a true progressive. He ought to receive the support of all La Follette progressives.

Roosevelt strongly commended Bourne's course as a progressive. He ought to receive the Bull Moose vote.

Bourne voted with the senate democrats on tariff revision and other progressive measures. Bourne and Chamberlain voted alike. Bourne's course ought to please democrats.

Because of Bourne's progressiveness, Taft withheld all federal patronage for Oregon from him. But his record of accomplishment ought to appeal to the standpatters to such an extent that their regard for the state's welfare would outweigh factional prejudice.

If the direct primary is to be prostituted by corruption, it will go the way of the convention and some other means be devised to let the people rule.

The way to preserve the direct primary is to rebuke corruption by defeat at the hands of the people at election—as the manipulation of the primary through the assembly was rebuked.

Put politics aside—it would take six years for any of the candidates, even if their ability was as great, to reach the strategic position now occupied by Bourne in the senate—and Oregon cannot afford to lose six years.

Bourne is fortunate in his enemies. The Oregonian has been so openly unfair, unjust and false to the Oregon system that its support will of itself damn any candidate with the people. It is the Jonah of Oregon politics and its opposition almost equivalent to an election.—Medford Mail-Tribune.

Seattle Registration Breaks Records. Seattle, Oct. 16.—The books in the registration office closed last night at midnight with a total of 85,426 listed, the greatest number ever registered in Seattle, and 10,791 more than voted at the general election last March. A majority of those registered as women, and among the number are several young ladies who will cast their first vote November 5.

Inn On Mountain Summit.

Best and most elegantly furnished rooms in Portland at Hotel Clark, Tenth and Stark streets, $1.00 to $1.50 per day. Ninety rooms—25 with private bath, $1.50 to $2.50 per day.

Governor Marion E. Hay of Washington suggests the building of a beautiful inn on the summit of Mt. Spokane, the loftiest peak in the entire Spokane country. This was the mountain in the recent christening of which the governor played an important part. From its top a view can be had in all directions as far as the eye can penetrate, and Governor Hay believes thousands of visitors to the west would be impressed greatly by a few days' stay on the summit. An automobile road already has been constructed part way up the mountain's slope, and hundreds of people have gained the eminence this summer. This winter "open house" will be maintained on the mountain by Francis H. Cook. There he will entertain such hardy folks as are able to enjoy the cold months at such an altitude. For the present, his guests are expected to be none but those of the pioneer type, for the "open house" will be in a primitive but durable log cabin.
