Notas to property owners building residences and stores.—We now carry a complete line of mantles, grates and tiles, electric, gas and combination chandeliers, and all supplies pertaining to electric and gas lighting. Photographs cheerfully sent on application. FRANK HOLCOMB & CO., 245 Washington St., Portland, Or.

The remains of Josiah Jopin, who died at Astoria, Wash., will arrive in Astoria today on the noon train and will be conveyed direct to Clatsop cemetery, where funeral services presided over by Rev. Mr. McCormac will be held. The deceased was a pioneer resident of this city, having been engaged in business here until a few years ago, when he went to reside with his daughter, Mrs. Duffy, at Astoria, Wash.

Lucius W. Beardale has been appointed commissary sergeant from battery M, and has been ordered to proceed at once for Fort McDowell, California, for duty. Mr. Beardale, while he dislikes to leave his old comrades at Fort Stevens, is much elated over his promotion and transfer, as he spent four years at the Presidio and looks upon the California posts as his native stamping grounds. He has made an excellent record while stationed at Fort Stevens and the fact that his promotion came only three weeks after his examination at Vancouver is evidence of the appreciation entertained for him and his abilities by the superior officers, both here and in Washington.

Silvie de Grasse reef, a ledge of rocks in the Columbia river near Astoria, will within a short time be a thing of the past. This is the opinion expressed by the Portland Telegram, which proceeds to say that contracts will be let next week for its removal, and that very soon thereafter work will be begun. This piece of news will prove a source of great gratification to Astoria people, as the reef has long been a thorn in the side of shipping men. Astoria has for a long time been working for the removal of the reef, and only now are its efforts crowned with success. Silvie de Grasse reef was named from the American ship of that name, which was wrecked there some 50 years ago. The wreck was a landmark for years. The Silvie de Grasse was a vessel with a history, having brought the first news of the French revolution to this country.

Miss Bennett and Miss Halsted spent a few days at Gearhart this last week.

Mrs. E. R. Hawes has returned from a few days' visit with Mrs. Alex. Campbell at Seaside.

Miss Olga Heilborn spent a few days in Portland this week, visiting her sister, Mrs. John Rogers.

Dr. and Mrs. A. A. Finch entertained a few young people after the theater on Tuesday evening.

Mrs. Summerville of Portland has been visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Tallant for the past week.

The Chasing Dish Club was entertained by the Misses Elmore at their home on Franklin avenue last Thursday evening.

A rumor is going the rounds of another of those delightful Assembly parties, which the men of Astoria know only too well how to give.

At the close of Prof. Dunn's lecture on Friday evening, the members of the Reading Club and a few invited guests were delightfully entertained at the home of Miss Amy Powell, who gave a reception in honor of Prof. Dunn.

The Tender Runs Into the Banks on Trial Island.

A special dispatch was received by the Astorian from Victoria, B. C., last evening, stating that the North Star, which recently left this city for Alaska to serve as a tender for the carriages of the Alaska Fishermen's Packing Company had gone aground on Trial Island, near Victoria. Later information received, both by wire and from the local representatives of the company, developed the information that while the North Star had gone aground on the island, she had not been damaged in the least, and would undoubtedly be pulled out into deep water on the next high tide.

The North Star left this city for the north without a cargo, carrying only a large supply of coal in her bunkers. She is a sturdy craft and the news that she has escaped injury is received here by her owners with much satisfaction.

"REMNANTS" NAME THEIR TICKET

Democrats, Pops and Disgruntled Republicans Hold Love Feast.

ROSE UNDER ANOTHER NAME

And It Smells of "Sweet Democracy"—How Matters Were Managed.

THE TICKET.

Legislative: B. F. ALLEN, democrat. JOHN HAHN, republican. Sheriff: JENS HANSEN, democrat. Clerk: H. J. WHERITY, republican. Treasurer: E. C. HUGHES, democrat. Assessor: J. N. HECKARD, democrat. School Superintendent: H. S. LYMAN, populist. Coroner: C. A. MATHENA, democrat. Surveyor: R. P. HABERSHAM, populist.

THE PLATFORM.

"We, the 'citizens' of Clatsop county, State of Oregon, in mass convention assembled, do publish and declare: 1.—The reckless extravagance of the county court, the wanton expenditure of the people's money and the constantly increasing indebtedness of the county, the employment of unnecessary deputies in the various county offices, demand a change in the administration of county affairs. The indebtedness of the county of over $100,000, necessitating the payment of a large interest account, and no effort has been used to decrease this indebtedness while the tax-payers are burdened with excessive taxation. 2.—We believe the salaries paid county officials to be more than they can earn elsewhere and more than is necessary to secure competent officials. We therefore favor a reduction of 20 per cent in all salaries and pledge our representatives to the legislature to secure such reduction, and we further pledge ourselves to secure a reduction in the expenses of county affairs and the reduction of the county indebtedness. 3.—The fishing industry of the state is of vital importance to Clatsop county and we believe laws should be enacted, not solely in the interest of the combine, but for the fishermen as well. We believe the 21 individual license on fishermen to be a tax on labor, and demand its repeal. We call attention to the fact that there is in the hatchery fund of the state $35,000, no part of which has been used for building new hatcheries, and as the fishermen have contributed largely to this amount in the payment of license, they should be entitled to the benefit of the same. 4.—The agricultural interests of the county are paramount and we favor the construction of adequate county roads, in order that the farmers can get their produce to market at the least possible trouble and expense."

ments to the original motion, subsidiary suggestions and substitutes for the whole. With the aid of the secretary and the four other delegates, Chairman Utzinger finally succeeded in reducing chaotic suggestion into a formal motion and the convention at once agreed to take a recess, the members attending the "citizens" convention in a body and reconvening after the adjournment of the latter organization. While the adjournment was undoubtedly made in all sincerity and in the fullness of good faith, the action was evidently taken while the spirit moved and while enthusiasm was hot, for, at the close of the "citizens" convention the democrats struggled toward so well satisfied with the ease and grace with which the thing had been accomplished that they forgot all about the motion to reconvene and everything else. Mayor Bergman and the secretary of the democratic convention held an informal caucus in front of the city hall and, "there being no objection," they proceeded to the hall. The secretary nominated Mr. Bergman temporary chairman, Mr. Bergman accepting, with his characteristic modesty. Then the secretary moved that the "citizens" ticket be ratified and, upon the chair putting the motion, the secretary agreed and the vote was declared unanimous. But to return to the main story of this remarkable convention:

THE "CITIZENS."

As soon as the democrats, who had adjourned and changed into non-partisans in their walk from the city hall to the court house, arrived at the latter place of meeting the "citizens" convention was called to order. Owing to the fact that anybody and everybody was a delegate, the convention expanded and contracted in its vote for the various nominees according to the number of friends each candidate for nomination had in the court-room. Some nominations were made by a majority of fifty-eight votes and some by a majority of seventy-four votes, but about sixty-five delegates voted regularly or, nearly all the propositions brought before the convention, and it is therefore fair to assume that that number of delegates composed the body. Only one reference was made to the expansion of the convention and the speaker in this instance was easily quieted, as his candidate was hopelessly defeated, even had the contracted vote been counted in the contest for his nomination. While it is asserted that there was no state in the convention, there certainly was a most thoroughly understanding among the "citizens," for outside of the contest for the nomination of representatives, the men freely named for the offices before the convention was called to order, were in every case selected as being "acceptable to the democrats."

C. S. Dow called the convention to order and J. M. Heckard was elected permanent chairman and Percy B. Sovey permanent secretary.

The first work of the convention was the appointing by the chair of a committee on order of business, consisting of C. C. Utzinger, A. M. Smith and R. N. Cole.

While this committee was out at work it was announced that two representatives of the woman's suffrage movement were in waiting and wanted to address the convention. At first the delegates were inclined to demur. "They'll talk a week," said one; "We can't do their cause any good, but they can block our business," said another, and for a time it looked as if the ladies were going to be asked to "call again." But George Noland came to their rescue and made a plea that they be heard and he and William Kelly were appointed a committee to escort the ladies to the convention hall. The suffragist delegates proved to be Mrs. Abigail Scott Dunaway, of Portland, and Miss McGraw, of Chicago, who represented the national league.

Mrs. Dunaway, who is a sister of Harvey Scott of the Oregonian and a noted worker in the cause of woman's rights, was the first speaker. She, in a very brief and witty speech, urged the convention to instruct their nominees for representatives to vote for the amendment of the Oregon constitution providing for universal suffrage and urged it as a business measure, saying that the adoption of the amendment would advertise the state far and wide.

Miss Morrow's speech was also brief and somewhat labored, falling evidently to appeal to the delegates, who preferred Mrs. Dunaway's common sense talk to Miss Morrow's elocutionary effects.

The ladies disposed of, the committee on order of business presented the following report which was adopted: Nominations in the order named: County clerk, sheriff, county treasurer, assessor, county commissioner, county school superintendent, coroner, surveyor, two representatives, justices of the peace, constables, road supervisors. Adoption of platform and appointment of an executive committee.

As soon as the chairman called for nominations under the order of business as above, A. M. Smith took the floor. He said he felt that this being a "citizens" movement, politics should not go on the ticket. In nomination H. J. Wherity for county clerk, the republicans had nominated the right man for the place. His conduct of the clerk's office during his incumbency had been all the people could ask. C. C. Utzinger seconded the nomination, speaking in the same strain and praising Mr. Wherity for economy in running his office.

To this latter statement, Thomas Dealey took exceptions. He was will-

North Pacific Brewery. ALI FERROUH BEY. Will Certainly Be Given His Passports if His Master Don't Pay Our Claim. NEW YORK, April 21.—A special to the World from Washington says: Unless the Sultan of Turkey acts very promptly Ali Ferrouh Bey, the Turkish minister will be given his passports and diplomatic relations between the United States and Turkey will be suspended until the sultan pays the $100,000 due citizens of the United States.

It is understood that an ultimatum, stating the diplomatic relations will be severed unless the claims are paid, is ready for presentation to the Turkish government. It is known at the department that the Turkish minister advised his government yesterday relative to the situation and time will be given for the sultan to act before the ultimatum will be issued.

There has been some discussion of the plan, in the event that the sultan still continues obstinate, to seize a port of Turkey and collect customs to an amount equal to the claim. It is believed that international complications could be averted by notifying the continental powers that it was the intention of the United States to remain in possession of the port only long enough to collect the money. The administration is now averse, however, to going beyond a severance of diplomatic relations.

No serious thought has been given to a military or naval demonstration, as the administration has all the war on hand it cares to deal with for the present.

Should Ali Ferrouh Bey be given his passport, it would amount to saying that Turkey is a dishonest government. State department officials believe that the sultan will not be willing to have his country thus advertised to the world.

The delegate who wanted delay expected that Fred Wickman would be placed in nomination, but that gentleman, having evidently become convinced that he stood no show before the convention, was almost at that very moment filing his papers in the county clerk's office as an independent candidate for sheriff.

After waiting a minute or two, and there being no further nominations, the motion to have the secretary cast the vote for Hansen was carried, and the second name was added to the ticket. It may be said here that Hansen's friends are much chagrined at Wickman's action, as it was understood that in case he could not get the citizens nomination he would not be a candidate. All sorts of rumors were flying around after the convention adjourned as to why Wickman had decided to run, some of them being none too complimentary in their nature.
