

AS TO CLOTHING.

HERE is an epitaph in a Vermont churchyard: "Expected this but not so soon." Such is the epitaph on clothing worn out in the wash-tub. Underclothing may be fragile, yet it ought not to wear out in ten weeks. But this isn't soap; it is decay. You buy 5 cents worth of cheap soap and you lose the equivalent of 50 cents in the wash-tub. Ivory Soap will not harm the most delicate fabric. Is it wise not to use it? IVORY SOAP IS 99 PER CENT PURE.

All contracts for advertising in the Astorian are made on a guarantee of circulation four times larger than that of any paper published or circulated in Clatsop county.

The sale of property held for delinquent taxes has been again postponed and will take place Monday, October 7. The reason for the delay is the lack of time to prepare the rolls.

The run of sockeyes in British Columbia waters is over and it is estimated will not exceed 500,000 cases. No humpbacks will be canned this season, says the Victoria Colonist, because of the late sockeye run.

For once everyone was glad that the weather man guessed wrong. The forecast sent out for yesterday predicted showers along the Oregon coast, but Astoria was generously favored with ideal regatta weather.

There was a report current last night that a sailor aboard the British ship Potlatch had been drowned while attempting to swim from the vessel to shore. The name of the man could not be learned last night.

The results of the regatta grand stand yesterday were greater than ever before in the day. There is no doubt but that the present carnival will exceed any previously held, both as to numbers in attendance and splendid sport.

W. W. Whipple, proprietor of the Palace restaurant, has taken the initiative in a plan that could be followed to excellent advantage by other merchants and business men along the principal streets. Mr. Whipple has had constructed in front of his place a long bench where tired visitors can rest, and it was continually in use yesterday, mothers with children in arms finding it particularly convenient.

Evidently some members of the gang of pickpockets who have been frequenting the cities of the Northwest, during street fairs and carnivals are operating here. Two losses were reported to the police yesterday. Mrs. McMullen sustaining the loss of her purse containing $12, which she believes was taken from her pocket during the parade yesterday. Ed. The street fair did a good business yesterday and is proving an interesting attraction for the visitors to the city. The value of the show that is given is plainly shown by the fact that the management on each patron attending twice for the reason that he cannot see it all on one night. The performances are the same that expedition midway have received 25 cents each for admissions, and ten 50-cent shows are given here for 50 cents.

Will I Hale, who was injured early yesterday morning by the explosion of a carbide gas tank, is rapidly recovering and will soon be able to be about. Under his direction the debris and wreckage of the explosion was all removed before the regatta visitors began to be on the streets and there was no trace of the accident apparent yesterday. Hale has forsworn carbide illuminants from now on and will stick to electricity.

The Evening Telegram last night published several sketches from its cartoonist of prominent guests aboard the Harvest Queen during the trip down the river. Admiral Edwards is represented as surrounded by a bevy of beautiful maidens and if anyone could recognize in the picture labeled Prime Minister Fulton, the distinguished statesman, the fortunate guessey should be entitled to a gold-plated oil stove or a free trip to Rainier.

John McCue, secretary of the regatta committee, couldn't wear his white duck trousers and official uniform to the coronation ball last night because of an unfortunate accident early in the day. In company with Jack Mays, and other committeemen, McCue was on the tug Alter. In some way he lost his balance and went overboard. Mays displayed great presence of mind and proved himself a hero by throwing a rope to the floundering secretary, and he was hauled aboard none the worse except a wounding. McCue was congratulated on his narrow escape, and a wreath of laurel is being made for Mays. If he hadn't thrown the rope the incident would have been a tragedy.

The impression seems to have gained ground that the American Can Company wishes the city to give them as a free gift Water street to the west of their present building. As a matter of fact the company owns one-half of the street and is willing to pay for the other half. C. W. Fulton, who represents the company, will present a petition at the next meeting of the council, setting forth what is desired. Unless the street is vacated the plan will be removed to Portland. The proposed improvement will double the capacity of the factory and it will have an annual payroll of $500,000, making it, by far, the largest manufacturing concern in the city, and one of the largest wage-distributors of the Northwest.

With impressive ceremonies and regal magnificence Queen Ivy, Astoria's carnival sovereign, was crowned last night before an immense audience of her obedient and loyal subjects. The dancing ball was transformed for the time being into a royal audience chamber and was decorated with an artistic profusion of the regatta colors. Yards upon yards of blue and white were gracefully draped and festooned, and on the platform the raised dais for the throne was gorgeous in its trappings of royal splendor.

Long before the hour fixed for the ceremonies to begin the throngs began to gather. Seats had been arranged on the available floor space and on the sides tiers of benches were constructed. The United Regatta band was stationed on the platform and shortly before 9:30 started up a lively quick-step. A moment later the admiral's staff appeared in the hall, led by Flag Lieutenant Carroll. The members of the staff marched down the aisle two by two and about twenty feet to the rear was Admiral Edwards. A round of applause greeted the admiral and his officers as they commingled and returned to the ante-room.

The royal procession followed, Miss Owen, of Portland, escorted by Captain Gregory and Richardson, bearing the crown. Miss Barker, in her magnificent royal robes, followed. She was attended by her prime minister, C. W. Fulton. Two pages in powdered wigs and white satin liveries bore the train of the royal mantle. They came the maids of honor two by two and the escort composed of Admiral Edwards and his staff.

The royal party stood grouped around the throne and Admiral Edwards, placed the crown on the brow of the queen, saying: "Your royal highness, in obedience to the requests of your loyal subjects, I declare you Queen of the Astoria Regatta, and each and all of us, your subjects, will render loyal obedience."

To the right of the queen was her prime minister, C. W. Fulton, and to the left was Admiral Edwards. Master Tommy Dobson, the phenomenal boy soprano, sang "God Save the Queen," and the demonstrative and appreciative audience refused to permit his retirement without an encore. The response was hoped for but the selection was unexpected and when the first notes of "The Star Spangled Banner" were heard the vast audience arose and listened in reverent silence until its conclusion when the youthful singer was applauded with a sincere earnestness that was a tribute to both the singer and the song.

Two little dancing maids, the Misses Pillsworth and Inez Stockton, appeared before the queen and her court and executed pretty little dances for the royal pleasure. The maids of honor were formally presented to Queen Ivy by the members of the admiral's staff, and the officials later made obsequious bows to the throne. Following came members of the audience who paid their respects and pledged their allegiance to the queen. A pretty incident was when Mrs. W. T. Chulter, who has been foremost in the arrangements for the coronation and the entertainment of the queen, and Mrs. Barker, mother of Her Majesty, courtesied before the throne.

The mothers-love and the pride in her beautiful daughter's triumph was greater than the reverence of the subject and Mrs. Barker imparted a loving maternal kiss on her queen-daughter's cheek.

The ball which followed the coronation ceremonies lasted until a late hour and was in every way successful. For the benefit of those who were not present last night a public coronation ceremony will be held on the grand stand throne this morning at 9:30. An especially interesting entertainment has been arranged for tonight at Board & Stokes hall, when a Ladies' Night exhibition of athletic specialties, rounded off the famous entertainments of the Olympic Club in San Francisco, will be given. The feature of the evening will be the wrestling match which will decide the coast championship. The contestants will be Kahn, of the M. A. A. C., and McKensie, of the Olympic Club, of San Francisco.

The formal opening of the regatta yesterday and the program of water sports that followed were successful in every way. The city was astir early and before the hour announced for the parade the streets were crowded with visitors.

Up to the present time there are no indications of the Columbia River canneries starting up on fall fish. The price which has been offered fishermen is one cent a pound, and this is only contingent upon the maintenance of the present market conditions. There seems to be no demand whatever for this class of fish. Late advices from New York indicate that Puget sound salmon is still selling at $1 per doz., and on account of many weak holders in the market, buyers are expecting still lower figures. On the coast rivers and bays but one cannery is in operation—that at Siletz. John Kierman was in town yesterday and reports that he will operate only in an indifferent way, packing just enough fish to utilize the supplies now at his cannery. Mr. Timmins is on the Comille offering ten cents for silverfish and twenty-five cents for chibooks. Unless the fishermen accede to these prices, he will run hand seines and pack their catch only. The Sengstacken, of the Coast Bay Packing Company has fifteen Chinamen engaged and will pack at Coos Bay, paying ten cents and twenty-five cents for his fish. The prospect of these canneries, however, being very small even under the best of conditions, the market will not be affected at all. Nothing has as yet been done on the Siuslaw, and that is also the situation at Umpqua, Alsea, Tillamook and Nehalem. F. C. Barnes, at Shoalwater Bay, is taking fish and shipping in cold storage for the fresh fish market. The same can be said of Aberdeen and Gray's harbor.

REDUCED RATES FOR REGATTA. For Astoria Regatta and Street Carnival the A. & C. R. R. have announced the following round-trip excursion rates: From Portland, Deer Island and intermediate points to Astoria and return, $2.00; from Goble, Knappa and intermediate points and return, one fare; from Seaside to Astoria and return, 50c; no reduction from points west of Seaside.
