Hibernia hall was the scene of a lively campaign rally last night, the piace being filled with the members of the Multnomah Democratic club. Many prominent men of the Democratic party of this city were present and participated in the meeting. The greatest cachusiasm was manifest.

Fred V. Holman, national committeerman from this state, recently returned from the national convention to Forting and attended the meeting last night. Fear Xeavy Taxes.

The constant clamor for more funds for the city aroused the fear that the city council, in fixing the rate of tax for city purposes, might refuse to make a reduction corresponding to the increase in valuations, and so might increase in valuations, and so might increase the burden imposed upon the tax-payers. In the last levy the council fixed the maximum rate allowed by the charter, 7 mills for general municipal expenses, with 2½ mills additional for interest upon the bended debt. If with $20,000,000 added to the assessed valuation the council should still insist upon a maximum rate of city tax, something like $140,000 would be added to the amount which the taxpayers of the city would be obliged to pay.

With the idea of preventing any such addition to their burden, Assessor McDonell decided to obtain, if possible, some assurance from the members of the city council that they would make no material increase in the amount to be raised for city purposes. A written statement was therefore prepared pledging the councilmen to a city-tax rate which should yield not to exceed $465,000 including provision for interest on the bonded debt. The total city tax this year was $437,803, so that the limit proposed allowed an increase of over $27,000, which it was thought should be enough to meet actual requirements.

If the city levy were restricted to $465,000, the slight increase over the last levy could probably be offset by a reduction in county expenditures, so that the total of city and county taxes would not exceed that of the previous justified in making so great a raise in valuations unless reasonably assured that it will not involve an increase in the burdens of the taxpayers.

Says Burdens Are Heavy.

"For one, I should be unwilling to give the council the opportunity to in-crease city taxes," said one property owner. "I believe that there is a great deal of waste in the present administra-tion of municipal affairs, and if the valuations are to be raised we ought to have some assurance that the tax rate will not go higher, too. Before giving the council the chance to spend more money than they do now, the tar payers should be thoroughly informe as to the manner in which the present revenue is expended." There are few, if any, large cities in

There are few, if any, large cities in the country where the assessed valuation of property is so small in comparison with the market value, as is Portland. The total of the city's assessment roll last year was $46,084,534, to which the remainder of the county added about five millions more. The city's bonded debt, exclusive of improvement bonds, is $5,726,500, or about 12 per cent of the assessed valuation. To eastern investors it appears that the city's debt is out of all proportion to its assets, and the natural result is the impairing of the city's credit. Portland pays a much higher rate of interest pays a much higher rate of interest than it should upon its bonds. Upon most of them the rate is 5 per cent. This is attributed, in large part at least, to the low valuation and the consequent high tax rate.

The proportion of state taxes which must be paid by Multnomah county is not affected by the valuation of taxable property, being established upon the basis of county expenditures.

AGAINST "PRIVILEGED" GAM-BLING BREAKS OUT AFRESH-SCORE OF WARRANTS ISSUED-MANY GAMESTERS LEAVE CITY.

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)
Seattle, Wash., Aug. 19.—The long promised war against "privileged" gambling in the city broke out afresh last night, and H. E. Stanley, manager of the Snohomish rooms, on First avenue, south, and Frank Stupnigi, manager for "Scotty" Ferguson, are under arrest on warrants charging them with felony. The civic union, which has falled in three attempts to catch the players at work, is back of the prosecution, and 25 warrants in all, it is said, have been issued. A greater number of these are for games being operated under alleged protection in Ballard.

will be something immense this season," said L. T. Anderson, of Ione, who is visiting in the city.

Mr. Anderson was formerly a well-known school teacher of Clackamas county, living on Beaver creek. A little over four years ago he went to Morrow county, and located on a homestead six miles from Ione, on the prairie upland. He has not been farming himself, but rents out his land to a widow, who has over a section of ground in wheat. This woman went there with her husband about five years ago and located a homestead. Soon afterward the husband died, leaving the widow with two small sons. She embarked in wheat raising, and leased other lands beside the 150 acres contained in the homestead, and has made money.

It coats but little to produce wheat in that country, as all the work is done by machinery. Bix or eight horses attached to gang plows break the ground, and the seed is covered with disc harrows on the same extensive plan. No one walks in doing farm work in that country, as the harvesting also is done by the latest improved machinery.

"Wheat can be raised cheaper in eastern Oregon than in any other part of the United States," said Mr. Anderson. "It is estimated that four busheis to the acre will pay for harvesting the crop, consequently the profits come easy. No irrigation is needed, but there is no convenient timber in that country, and the wood is shipped in by rail from the Columbia river to Ione, where slabwood sells for $2.75 per cord, and body fir, $4.75."
