

ON THE ROCKY ROAD TO MT. HOOD BETWEEN TOLL GATE AND GOV-ERNMENT CAMP.

What proved to be one of the most severe tests an automobile can be subjected to is one recently performed by J. B. Kelly and Dr. C. B. Brown, both of Portland, with their White automobile Mr. Kelly having in addition to his family touring cars.

The party was composed of J. B. Kelly, wife, two daughters and son, C. B. Brown, Hoyt Brown, John Brown, Dr. Jack Yates and William J. Hofmann. They left Portland Wednesday morning and made the 50 miles in about seven hours. The trip to the Toligate was covered rapidly and proved very interesting. Several miles from the gate a forest fire was encountered burning on either side of the road and throwing out an intense heat. Full speed was put on and with sheltered faces the party passed safely through.

From the tollgate to Government camp the ride proved one of endurance. The distance between the two points is nine miles. Is a steady state. miles, is a steady grade and at its highest point is 3,580 feet. This distance highest point is 3,580 feet. This distance was through as rough country as man or beast ever traveled, the trip being nearly a day's work for a two-horse team. The road—if it may be called that—bends and twists around rocks and trees and at times presents an almost impassable barrier. Huge rocks, some of which weigh from pounds to a ton, litter the roadway. Any attempt to bridge the large rocks meant battered and damaged propelling machinery. In many cases rocks were encountered which were too massive to move, and were only surrounted by building up to the tops with smaller rocks and chunks of wood, and this by a gradual incline making it possible for the wheels of the autos to summount the obstruction.

Would only cover tumber expenses. The hauling would entail a great additional expense.

Primarily Mr. Kelly made the trip lest week to determine whether the plan was feasible or not.

"If," said Mr. Kelly, "the Mount Hood & Barlow Wagonroad company will spend about $200 on the nine miles, between the Toligate and Government camp an automobile line can be established by June next."

Mr. Kelly is considering running an auto line to Mount Hood during the fair. This would evidently be a great attraction.

Mr. Yocum, the guide, who has followed divil engineering for many years, said all that is necessary is to blow up with dynamite the rocks in the road and which weigh from pounds to a ton, itter the roadway. Any attempt to bridge

Another great anticulty which troubled the travelers was the narrow roadway through and over the hills. In most places the road was too narrow to permit the passage of a team coming in the opposite direction.

WATSON'S SPEECH

AT THE THEATRES

On Thursday evening there will be a change of bill at Cordray's theatre, Mr. Keane and his company appearing that night and for the remainder of the week, with Saturday matinee, in a splendid production of "A Mexican Romance." This play deals with the period of the war between Mexico and the United States and follows the fortunes of Captain Wilding, a young American army officer, who is under sentence of death for having allowed a prisoner to escape. While in this predicament the Mexicans storm the American camp and he has an opportunity to escape, but he refuses and finally is pardoned for his defense of the American camp against the treacherous Mexicans. There is a beautiful love story running through the play which is also lightened up by much genuine and original comedy.

Manager Weidemann, who has installed his stock company in the homelike Empire theatre, is determined to make the house "the theatre of the people." When it opened last Sunday, the most particular of Portland's theatregoers were in extendance and they were pleased with the performance of the "Inside Track." The children of the Boys' and Girls' Ald society will be the guests of Manager Weidemann at the Wednesday matinee.

Next Sunday afternoon the fall season of the handsome playhouse, the new Columbia theatre, at Washington and Fourteenth streets, will open. The initial week will be devoted to the presentation of "Captain Lettarbiair." a comedy dealing with the smart military set in England. Daily rehearsals are now in progress. The sale of seats is very active. NEW COLUMBIA'S OPENING.

CLEOPATRA DRAWING WELL. "Cleopatra" at the Baker theatre, is proving one of the surprises of the theatrical season. The production is far superior to what the public was led to expect. Melbourne MacDowell, who has appeared here before, never played the role of Marc Antony better than he is doing at present. The capacity audiences which are witnessing the great Sardou drama attest the strength of the attraction.

OPERETTA AT THE BIJOU.

Mr. Kelly having in addition to his family a complete camping outfit and provisions for a week's stay. Dr. Brown's car was loaded equally as heavily.

Recently there has been talk of establishing an automobile line to Government camp, and the project is favorably looked upon. The Mazamas have taken up the matter and devised several plans and routes. One of these was to run an auto line from Boring, on the Oregon Water The Bijou has a sure enough novelty this week. For the first time in its history, the little house has deserted vaudeville for opera; that is to say, operetta. Prof. Zinn's clever musical creation, "A Night in Turkey," is the card. With handsome mountings in scenery and costumes, and ten clever people in the cast, the operetta was very well received. Among the principals are Frances Gray, song and dance comedienne; the weil-known team of Mann and Franks, Leon and Harry De-Lane. This galaxy furnishes a high-class entertainment, musically and otherwise. Prof. Zinn has outdone himself in its preparation. It is worth anybody's time and dime to visit the Bijou during "A Night in Turkey." land.

A request for $500 has been made to the Lewis and Clark fair commissioners with which to build a lodge at the timber line. Mr. Yocum expressed a fear that the sum was inadequate, as that amount would only cover lumber expenses. The hauling would entail a great additional Bijou during "A Night in Turkey."

A CLEVER MAGICIAN.

A troining W. W. Cotton has expressed a willingness to contribute to a fund to establish such an auto line. It is likely that the matter will be taken up at once and as the land on eitner side belongs to the government, it being in the forest reserve, steps will be taken to secure the right of way for a new road, if the owners of the Mount Hood & Barlow road will not sell or improve the one now used.

The two Benns unroll a comnious gathering notwithstanding the predictions from some quarters that there would be a clash between the element that supported Hearst at the Duluth convention and the conservative faction. For the first time in 10 years ex-Governor Lind is taking no part in the state convention and his withdrawal from the scene of action has served in a measure to narrow the breach between the opposing factions.

It appears most probable that the gubernatorial nomination will go to John A. Johnson of St. Peter, though several others are mentioned more or less prominently in connection with the head of the ticket. The convention will pass resolutions indorning the ticket and platform of the St. Louis national convention.

"PARIO ROMANI." The universal opinion is that "Fabio Romani," as presented by James Keane and company at Cordray's, is the best attraction that has appeared at the house for some time. Not only is the play itself of surpassing strength and power, but the company in all respects is most excellent. "Fabio Romani" will be repeated tonight and Wadness
