Were you to buckle about your body a belt heavy with gold coins, go roving upon the river, be overtaken by a squall and your boat capsized, plunging you into the current, the heavy belt dragging you down—What would you do? Cry for help first, then try and rid yourself of the belt—money and all—wouldn't you? Exactly your position in the great apparel stores. We started out with heavy stocks upon a fair season—then came the "squall" in the shape of contractors who, nearly a season behind, jump in on us in the midst of busiest selling and upset our plans, turn our fixtures topsy turvy, scatter the garments all over the great second floor, move 'em here, there, everywhere, and keep us all working overtime to keep them out of harm's way—from carpenters who are tearing down here and building up there, leaving a trail of painters in their wake. We're in it for fair. Now to get out. Help! We've unbuckled the money-belt—stocks—and throw the gold to you—profits and part of costs, for your help in rescuing us from the dilemma. It's one of two things, pack up, and shut up the suit and wrap shop for two or three weeks or turn the goods over to wearers at a mere fraction of their way. We've adopted the latter course and start today upon A DESPERATE SLAUGHTER SALE OF WOMEN'S HIGH-GRADE GARMENTS! HELP yourselves at these absurdly low prices from the splendid stock. Keep your eye on these announcements for this week; 'twill pay you generously for your watchfulness.
