

CZAR DEPENDS ON STOLYPIN

Spending Time Before Convocation of Duma in Framing Policy.

PREMIER VIRTUALLY EMPIRE'S CHANCELLOR

New Minister of Interior is Considered Thoroughly Reliable by Emperor—New Policy Will Be Conservative.

(United Press Leased Wire.) St. Petersburg, Sept. 12.—The interval between the signature of the Anglo-Russian convention and the convocation of the third duma is being occupied by Premier Stolypin in framing a policy. His personal position with the czar is stronger than ever and the choice of Alexander Krivoshein as acting minister of the interior, which leaves M. Stolypin as prime minister without departmental responsibilities, gives him the authority virtually of a chancellor of the empire. His friends claim for the new policy that it will be conservative without being reactionary.

The significance of Krivoshein's entry into the cabinet will be best understood from the memorandum opposite his name in the private notebook of the late General Trepoff, kept for the czar on the character and intentions of higher officials. There Krivoshein is marked "a thoroughly reliable man." This from Trepoff meant a man devoted wholeheartedly to orthodox and an energetic champion of government by administrative decree. His answer to a conflict between the ministry of the interior and any kind of a duma would be that the appointed minister does the governing and the duma may do the criticizing, but each keeps its own place.

Outlook Not Promising. The outlook is not promising for even the most moderate success of the constitutional party. Krivoshein's appointment illustrates the extreme difficulty which Premier Stolypin will have in attempting to introduce simultaneously a cautious transition toward constitutional government and at the same time a revolution by keeping the repressive machinery going at full strength.

Financial interests for two years have been seeking incessantly to start an industrial development of Russia, are using the Anglo-Russian agreement as the starting point for a grandiose scheme of railway development. They have persuaded the ministry of ways and communication to approve a scheme for the construction of new railway lines, the double tracking of several existing trunk roads and the re-equipment with rolling stock.

To carry through all these proposals would require $50,000,000, or $450,000,000, which is a hopeless figure in the present state of Russian finances. They have been able, however, to secure $60,000,000, which has been advanced by a French group headed by M. Rouvier, to the Russian International Commercial bank, which has official relations with the imperial bank. The guarantee to the lenders that the money will really be applied to railroad development is that their representatives are to supervise the work on the spot and retain possession of it until the money is repaid.

These surface appearances of a possible renaissance in Russia are swept out of mind by the appalling evidence of demoralization in the social life of the masses. The distracted peasants are breaking vengeance on the revolutionaries and the officials alike. In the lower Volga district of Makarieff, where grain stacks have been set on fire, the peasants got a firm idea, which the priests and police encouraged, that the incendiaries was the work of revolutionaries.

Politicians Are Burned. While one fire was raging they seized three young men who were suspected of being revolutionaries, bound them and threw them into the flames. One of the young men managed to extricate himself four times, but each time he was thrown back and was finally strangled and his body burned to ashes. A man who was named Lasoroff confessed that he was a revolutionist and the organization paid 25 rubles for every successful fire, the object being to lay waste the entire district. Many persons have been denounced as politicians out of personal spite and tortured. All this time the official class remains as hated as before. A supervisor of a district in Tobernigk province named Dublanski was attacked in his house the other night by armed peasants. Dublanski, who was a good shot, defended himself for two hours until his family got away to a neighboring estate. Then the besiegers succeeded in firing the house and Dublanski perished in the flames. A shocking illustration of the rural anarchy prevailing occurred in the large lands of Kieff province. A number of children employed by shepherds accused one of their own number, a boy of 19, of theft and tried him by court-martial. He was found guilty and sentenced to be hanged and the boys carried out the sentence. The oldest boy was only 12 years of age.

persons who would make undesirable citizens. One of the most pertinent questions asked each applicant is his attitude toward the government and whether he has any connection with societies or organizations that have for their object the revolution of the government. The law provides for a searching examination into the past lives of the men who desire to become subjects of Uncle Sam.

Leaves for Seattle Today. When asked the object of his visit to Portland, Mr. Cooley stated that he would stay in the Rose City only until 4 o'clock this afternoon when he would go on to Seattle.

"I wished to break the long journey from San Francisco and also wished to confer with Mr. Bristol," explained Mr. Cooley. Despite the bad news Mr. Cooley brought with him, he made a favorable impression with the Portlanders he met. He is a young man, very pleasant and engaging in conversation, and his close personal relations with President Roosevelt mark him for higher offices in his career.

DRAIN NORMAL WILL OPEN IMMEDIATELY

Money for Running Expenses Subscribed by Loyal Citizens.

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

Junction City, Or., Sept. 12.—The Drain normal school is to be operated this year. The citizens of that portion of the state have pledged the $4,000 which was recently put up to secure the running expenses of the institution. When the board asked for the keys, or the unconditional gift of the money subscribed, it nearly took away the breath of those who were planning to keep the doors open whether aid was obtained from the state or not. But after learning that should they deposit each quarter an expense list and the money to cover the same, the board would consent to allow the school to open, it was not 48 hours until the full amount was resubscribed in accordance with instructions from the state board. The board made plain no subscriptions could be received under the promise that the state would reimburse the donor at the next session of the legislature.

The institution is beautifully located on a slightly elevation, in the eastern part of the town of Drain, and is a combination of public and state school. The district in which the location was made, helped to construct the building, and the school funds are used in the instruction of the public school children only. Those who are taking the teachers' course in the normal department have the opportunity of teaching the district school children, under the watchful eyes of four critics, who are expert teachers.

The school is provided with every modern convenience, having splendid laboratories, boarding halls, etc. The Gammels society has been a successful running order as the literary department of the college for eight years and is closed to the public societies in Oregon. There were last year over 200 students in the normal department and an equal number in the lower grades.

They Needed Him.

Saturday Evening Post. Colonel Albert Pope, bicycle and automobile manufacturer, was in San Francisco on the day of the earthquake, at the old Palace hotel. He was tumbled out of bed by the shock, and rushed to the window to see what was the matter and was told there was no danger of the fire reaching the Palace. Later in the day, he was advised to move along, and he packed two suit-cases with some of his belongings and hired an express wagon to take him to the St. Francis. It was certain there was no danger there. Still, next day the fire was imminent, and Colonel Pope reduced his baggage to one suit-case and decided to go to the Presidio, for he knew General Funston, and was certain he would find refuge there.

The Colonel is tall, whiskered and most dignified. He stood on the curb for hours trying to hire a wagon to carry him and his suit-case to the Presidio, but nobody paid any attention to him. Then he decided to wait for the fire was getting close. He carried the suit-case for half a mile or so, stopping, moving and then to throw away the contents of the stuff in it, and at the end of the second mile, had thrown everything away except a nightshirt and a toothbrush.

He sat down on a doorstep to rest. As he was sitting there an automobile, loaded with soldiers, drove down the street. The soldiers tried to fix it, and couldn't. "Pardon me," said the colonel, who had noticed that the automobile was one of the kind he makes himself; "if you will allow me, I think I can help you in your difficulty."

He looked over the machine, found where the difficulty was and fixed it. Then he started to return to his seat on the doorstep. "Get in here. We need you." "Get in here. You are too valuable a man to lose. And they tumbled the dignified colonel into an automobile, took him to a garage, and made him work two days, fixing automobiles, before he got word that General Funston, who then came and rescued him.

RAILWAY COMMISSION AND MILWAUKEE FARE

Complaints to Be Discussed and Adjusted at an Early Meeting.

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

Salem, Or., Sept. 12.—The hearing of the three cases arising out of the complaints against the street car service between Portland and Milwaukee will be held in the New Market building, Portland at 10 a. m., September 24. This was announced by the commission yesterday. Two of these cases, one treating of the ten cent fare and the other of the freight conditions were presented several weeks ago by the mayor and council of Milwaukee and the third which was against the ten cent fare by the Oak Grove Improvement association was presented later.

The last complaint particularly urged the bad effect which the ten cent fare had on real estate prices in the neighborhood of Milwaukee. Answers were filed by the Portland Railway Light and Power company stating that they were furnished copies of the complaints. In both complaints relating to the ten cent fare stress was laid on the fares to St. Johns and other stations as proving discrimination. In reply the company urged that the district in which the fare was levied was not a residential district and therefore it could not be used as evidence of discrimination against Milwaukee. Continuing, it was stated that the Milwaukee fare was 7 cents in 20-fare books, and to make a single fare 7 cents would cause considerable hardship.

In regard to the second complaint on the fact that no agent was supplied to attend to freight business at Milwaukee, the company stated that the profit on less than carload shipments amounted to a very small sum between 20 and 30 cents per shipment. It was stated that the agent could be employed only at a heavy loss. It is impossible to make any forecast as to what the commission will do on the matter. The fares between Portland and the suburban stations have been a frequent subject of complaints both by the city and by the farmers since the creation of the commission and this hearing will probably be an indication of the commission's future policy on such matters.

GERMAN SAFELOWERS.

Their Vulnerability Calls for Improved Construction.

Consul Thomas H. Norton, writing from Chemnitz, says that the confidence of German manufacturers of safes in the resistance of their wares against ordinary safebreaking operations has been rudely shaken by the recent achievements of a single unaided robber in Dresden, and that the details of his last operation are as follows: In a hotel a room was secured which was situated immediately above the office of a money-changer and an agent who raised. Beneath the floor a hole was pierced in the ceiling of the office. By the use of a drill and saw a circular piece of floor was cut out and raised. Beneath the floor a hole was pierced in the ceiling of the office. By the use of a drill and saw a circular piece of floor was cut out and raised. Beneath the floor a hole was pierced in the ceiling of the office.

Next the robber brought down two cylinders of compressed oxygen and the equally simple oxygen generator, charged with water and sodium peroxide, or the heavier cylinders of compressed oxygen. The generator of the intelligent crook the possibility of opening the strongest safes in existence rapidly and noiselessly, provided the operator can be screened from observation.

It is evident from this experience that the holders of safes must provide for new contingencies in their constructions. The simple light acetylene generators, now in widespread use, and the equally simple oxygen generators, charged with water and sodium peroxide, or the heavier cylinders of compressed oxygen, are equally simple and noiseless, provided the operator can be screened from observation.

PHOTOGRAPH CLAIMS.

Homesteaders Use Cameras to Make Sure of Their Rights.

From the St. Paul Pioneer Press. Determined that no dispute shall arise between themselves and the special agents of the government when the time comes for them to prove up a number of homesteaders in the St. Louis valley country have adopted the novel expedient of photographing their claims. To show what they told of their homesteaders is true the photographs will be on hand when the hearing on the final proof is held.

The photographs are taken from different views, and will give a clear idea of the amount of land which has been cleared and placed under cultivation, and if there is any dispute the homesteaders will be able to present strong evidence to support their contentions.

The Old Store Is Now But a Memory of the Past

Of the days when it was first opened as the leading East Side Shopping Center. In the minds of the owners there lingers the pleasant remembrance of the congratulations of the many who had helped to make that store—the fourth attempt to increase facilities to meet the requirements—possible. There were many who had patronized the first store to whom the fourth store looked big. But few realized what the future would bring forth until yesterday and today a number of our staunchest friends and oldest patrons first visited our premises at East Morrison street and Union avenue. The store was hardly ready for visitors, much less for customers, with carpenters and painters still at work here and there. But the true spirit of the pioneers would not be repelled. They came to see and see they did. Some came to purchase and they did not leave empty-handed.

All Had Unstinted Praise for the New Store at East Morrison Street and Union Avenue

And all were agreed that it is the finest, lightest and best-equipped establishment on the East Side; in every way the equal of modern department stores anywhere with floor space sufficient to permit of a satisfactory display of the vast amount of stock required to meet the constantly increasing demands of a large and growing patronage.
