The buildings belonging to the defunct distillery at Clatsop are being torn down and the lumber disposed of to the Sherman county farmers. The buildings, which are three, four and five story structures, are said to contain 200,000 feet of lumber.

The Dalles City this morning, besides a liberal list of passengers, appeared to have every available inch of space on the lower deck occupied with wheat, live stock and emigrant wagons, and yet had bargained to take on thirty-five head of beef cattle at Lyle.

Sam Hudson, the youngest son of Henry Hudson, of Boyd, while chopping a log in the woods Thursday afternoon was struck in the eye with a chip, which inflicted a wound that may cause him to lose the sight of one eye. He went to Portland this afternoon to have the advice and care of an eye specialist.

A recent visitor to St. Martin's Springs tells the Grass Valley Journal that there was a lady at the springs whose husband was a great snorer. The husband died recently and the lady was so used to the snoring that she had to have the hired girl to stand at her bedside and turn an old coffee mill before she could go to sleep.

Mrs. Elton, of Mill Creek, brought to this office today a box of ripe strawberries, some of which measure, or rather, alas, measured—for they're now only as a pleasant dream—over four inches and a half around the waist. They are of the Margarite and Mitchell varieties and the vines from which they were plucked have been bearing all summer.

Friends of W. H. Taylor, of Dry Hollow, were congratulating him today on his recent marriage, that being his first appearance on the streets of The Dalles since that event. The wedding took place on the 16th in Linn county, at the home of Hon. F. M. Kaiser, the bride's father, the bride being Miss Nancy Ellen Kaiser, who is a cousin of Mr. Taylor's first wife and an old acquaintance. Mr. Taylor's Wasco county friends wish him and his bride many happy days.

The Dalles High School football team have organized for the coming season with Ray Lake, manager, and John Cooper, The Dalles crack full-back and burlier, as captain. Games will probably be arranged later with the Goldendale Academy and Portland high school, besides several other schools of the state. For the past week the boys have been practicing after school hours on the high school grounds. The expectation is that a team will be developed that will give a good account of itself during the season.

Before leaving this afternoon for Portland Superintendent Gardner, of the Boys' and Girls' Home, filed fresh papers in the case of the daughter of a Mrs. Brooks, a woman of bad reputation in the East End. Mrs. Brooks has two daughters of tender years who were taken from her about two years ago because of the mother's dissolute ways. One of the girls came back here during the carnival and her presence was reported to Mr. Gardner by the county officers. Mr. Gardner has left a warrant in the hands of the sheriff, and should the girl come back to her mother she will be arrested and sent to the home. In this connection it is port-ment to add that before leaving here today Mr. Gardner asked THE CHRONICLE to publicly express his thanks and gratitude to the officials of Wasco county for the willing and efficient services they have often rendered him in his work.

The Astorian says: "Carl S. Wheeler, of Pendleton, has commenced an action in the United States district court against the Columbia River & Puget Sound Navigation Company, better known as the White Collar Line, to recover $10,000 damages for the use of two of his copyrighted photographs without his permission. He alleges that he made two photographs, 'Son of the Forest' and 'The Tale of the Frontier, No. 5, Defeat and Despair,' and that the company had used these pictures, publishing 5000 of each, for which he claims they are liable in the sum of $10,000, or $1 apiece."

Operations at the experimental prunedrier on the state agricultural college farm ended Friday, says the Corvallis Times. About 400 boxes of prunes and a quantity of apples were dried as an experiment. It is proposed to enlarge and improve the drier next year for purposes of experimentation, and the drying tests will begin with the cherry crop. The drier is also used to sterilize wheat in seedling fields on the farm. The wheat is subjected to a high temperature, which has the effect to prevent smut. The new process was originated at the college, and is regarded with much favor because it is less expensive and is not detrimental to the vitality of the wheat, as is the case when vitriol is used for treatment of wheat to prevent smut.

Superintendent Gardner, of the Boys' and Girls' Home, while here yesterday to bring young Archie Simmons, the runaway, back to the home, inquired into the case of a couple of little girls who have been frequenting one of the opium joints on First street. The children are the daughters of a German woman who claims to be the wife of a Chinaman named Toy, a cook in one of the hotels. Toy's excuse for the children's frequenting the opium joint was that the keeper of the joint was his uncle and the children visited the place as relatives and for no bad purpose. Mr. Gardner warned the Chinaman that future visits would not be permitted, and should a complaint again reach him of their occurrence, the children would be taken away from their mother.

The case of the State of Washington against Harry Dunn-ended, at least for the present, in the superior court of Goldendale yesterday morning by the failure of the jury to agree. Dunn was tried for selling intoxicating liquors without a license. He was the manager of a "social club" where liquor could be obtained by its members by checks previously purchased for that purpose, Goldendale being, otherwise, an alleged dry town. County Attorney Darch was assisted in the prosecution by Attorney B.

S. Huntington, of this city, and Judge Bennett and Attorneys Barnes and Dustin appeared for the defendant. The case went to the jury at 11:30 Thursday morning, and as no agreement was reached Friday morning at 9 o'clock, the jury was discharged.

What Newspaper Man Was This?

Yesterday's Portland Telegram says: E. L. Rayburn, advertising man in the local office of the Northern Pacific Railway Company, made a clever capture of a newspaper man yesterday, that would doubtless serve him as a strong recommendation should he desire to get on a detective force. The newspaper man was trapped in the act of attempting to scalp a ticket. He hailed from The Dalles.

Rayburn was suspicious of the applicant when he applied for the transportation, and concluded to watch him. The applicant appeared to be in nervous haste, and wanted as long a time limit on the ticket as he could possibly get. The transportation called for a first-class passage from Portland to St. Paul, and the applicant gave as a reason for the long limit demanded a desire to stop off at Tacoma, Seattle, Spokane and Billings.

Rayburn played hide and seek with the newspaper man on the streets until they met face to face in the office of a Third street scalper. While the newspaper man would be going around the block in one direction, Rayburn would take the other direction, thus permitting his man to get out of sight but for a few minutes at a time.

"I will give you just fifteen minutes to return that ticket to our office," was the greeting of Rayburn to the newspaper man as they met. The newspaper man colored up, but made no reply. Ten minutes later the ticket was back in the office of the Northern Pacific, but it was not brought by the newspaper man. It was sent back by another.

It is safe to say that henceforth at least one paper in Eastern Oregon will carry no Northern Pacific advertising.
