

Control Board Hears Klamath School Plans

Reasonable assurance that the state will receive part of the Klamath Fall marine barracks for use as a vocational training center was reported to the state board of education at its annual meeting here Monday.

Final decision rests with the war assets administration which received application for the barracks several months ago. O. I. Paulson, head of the state vocational education department, estimated that the first years enrollment would exceed 400 and with more than 1500 enrolled at the end of five years. The state emgency board, at a recent meeting, appropriated $75,000 to cover costs of the vocational training center operations until February 1 when the 1947 legislature will be in session.

To Seek Appropriation

A supplementary appropriation will be asked of the legislature, provided the barracks are turned over to the state. It was expected that veterans would predominate in the first years enrollment.

The board approved a program for 1947 and 1948 under which teachers regularly certified in other states or by cities of 100,000 or more population, must have 20 quarter hours of study beyond the requirements for high school, with eight of the 20 hours credited since March, 1943, to teach in Oregon. This rule applies to teachers who have less education.

Certificate Plan Favored

The idea of revising the present regular high school certification, including four years training for a provisional certificate, but five years eventually for a regular certificate, also was approved. A fee schedule for physical restoration service in the rehabilitation division was presented to the board.

The board also acted favorably on a plan making it possible for the blind to receive greater opportunity in the business field. Expansion of the on-the-job training program in the public schools with federal assistance also was approved by the board. This will be the last meeting of the board before the 1947 legislature convenes.

Sen. Cordon's Daughter Dies In Washington

WASHINGTON, Dec. 23.—(AP)—Sen. and Mrs. Guy Cordon left today for Oregon with the body of their daughter, Mrs. Donald E. Crouch, 23, who died here yesterday.

She was found unconscious by Mrs. Cordon in a stateroom of the train that carried her here on a trip from Oregon. She was moved to the Casualty hospital, where she died at 11:30 a.m.

Dr. A. McGruder McDonald, coroner, attributed death to a heart condition which the young woman was coming here to have diagnosed and treated. She became ill at Chicago and was treated there and later at Pittsburgh as the train moved toward Washington.

Born in Roseburg, she attended the University of Oregon. She became the bride of Lt. Donald E. Crouch, AAF, in June, 1944.

Besides her parents and the widow, she is survived by a sister, Mrs. Plin Lawrence, and a brother, Allen Cordon, both of Roseburg.

Borden Case Dismissed by Circuit Court

A Marion county circuit court order Monday dismissed the case of the Borden company vs. Edwin Schreder in which the Borden company attempted to show why Schreder should comply with the 59 cent minimum placed by company on one of its products called Hemo.

In a memorandum report on briefs submitted by the plaintiffs and defendant, Judge George Duncan held that since Schreder had not entered into a contract with the Borden company fixing the minimum price of the product, Schreder was not bound to follow that price. The Borden company usually has contracts with wholesalers and retail dealers of its products setting the maximum and minimum prices of sale, he noted.

However, Schreder had signed no such contract and purchased his supplies of Hemo from a wholesaler who did not fall under the provision of such a contract. Judge Duncan stated in the memorandum opinion that the intent of the plaintiff's price fixing plan, as indicated in the contracts under Oregon fair trade laws, is considered to bind only retailers who are parties to such a contract.

Bowden Guilty Of 'Box' Killing

PORTLAND, Dec. 23.—(AP)—James Wesley Bowden, 49, will be sentenced Friday for the "pandora's box" murder of his wife last summer.

A circuit court jury found him guilty yesterday of first-degree murder and recommended life imprisonment, a verdict binding on the court.

Bowden was accused of rigging a box with the dynamite that blew his wife to bits when she opened it in his absence. The prosecution charged he deliberately aroused the woman's curiosity about the box.

Bowden testified he intended the box for a man he considered a rival for Mrs. Bowden's affections.

Wheatland Ferry Return To Operation Uncertain

The Marion county court has been informed that the Yamhill county approach to the Wheatland ferry was washed out during the recent flood and that the ferry is now inoperative, according to Judge Grant Murphy, Monday.

The approach was of piling, and a section of piling and decking is gone. Murphy said that he did not know when the ferry would again be put into operation.

Road Program Continuance To Be Sought

Continuance by the states of the post war highway construction program beyond July 1, 1948, when existing federal aid allocations expire, will be sought when congress meets in January, R. H. Baldock, state highway engineer, announced upon his return here Monday from Los Angeles where he attended a meeting of the American Association of State Highway Officials.

The state of Oregon, under federal allocations, received $21,000,000 of government highway aid funds and $3,400,000 of forestry money for the current three year period. The present post-war program started July 1, 1945.

Baldock said the association approved a resolution asking for an extension of time in which to expend current federal aid funds until July 1, 1949. This was necessary, he said, because of time lost in getting contracts under way due to material shortages and lack of manpower.

Baldock was elected vice-president of the association. He previously served as a member of the executive committee. Most states reported that a large part of their federal funds have been incurred by highway contracts.

Schoenfeld Tells C. of C. of Trip to England

Machinery sent on lend lease from the United States to England during the war, such as combines, were well liked and have made certain a good market for goods when available, William Schoenfeld, dean of the school of agriculture and director of extension at Oregon State college, told members of the Salem Chamber of Commerce Monday noon.

The methods used by the English to become as nearly as possible self-sustaining following Dunkirk were outlined by the Oregon man as he saw and learned of it on a recent trip to the British Isles. The talk was illustrated with colored slides made from pictures taken at the time he was traveling about the islands.

To stress the strong organization of farmers who directed the self-sustaining campaign, pictures of Windsor castle with the farm lands of King George were shown. On this farm grain was harvested with old style equipment although combines were used when available. Even King George, the farmer, was compelled by the country committee to use old-fashioned methods where the equipment was still serviceable.

Keith Brown, new president of the board of directors, and other new members of the board were seated at the head table and were introduced by E. Burr Miller, who retires as president January 1.

He also said that any boys interested in organizing their own teams in any of the sports mentioned should report to the YMCA today.
